Mantle Homer Wins For Yanks In Ninth

New York Leading Cardinals By Game

NEW YORK (AP)—Mickey Mantle's record-breaking 16th World Series home run on reliever Barney Schultz' first pitch in the ninth inning, a tremendous blow off the upper deck in right field, gave the New York Yankees a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today and a 2-1 edge in the Series.

Jim Bouton left nine Cardinals stranded on the bases while he matched pitch for pitch with Curt Simmons in a fine battle until Mantle ripped into the first ball dished up by Schultz, the 38-year-old knuckleball artist.

It was a typical Yankee crash finish to a bitterly-fought third game as Mantle smashed Babe Ruth's home run record with one swing of his bat.

Mantle, his legs taped tightly against further injury, had been batting right-handed against Simmons, a lefty. But he switched to the left side when Manager Johnny Keane of the Cards brought in Schultz to start the ninth.

Keane had lifted Simmons for a pinch hitter in the top of the ninth after Phil Linz' error on Tim McCarver's hopper and Mike Shannon's sacrifice brought the potential tie-breaking run to second base. Carl Warwick batted for Dal Maxvill and walked, so Keane sent up Bob Skinner to swing for Simmons.

The best Skinner could manage was a high fly to Roger Maris in center and Curt Flood left both men on base with his fly to Mantle

The chilled throng of 67,101 at Yankee Stadium roared in anticipation as Mantle came out to lead off the Yankee ninth. He had walked once and doubled in the sixth.

The Mick tore into the first thing that Schultz threw and the ball drilled its way to a crash landing against the facade of the upper deck in right, well over 400 feet away.

Ruth hit 15 home runs in 41 games, distributed over 10 Series. This was Mantle's 12th Series and 61st game. It is doubtful if any he ever hit gave him more satisfaction than this blow that put the Yanks in the driver's seat against the Cards.

Al Downing, 13-8, will pitch for the Yanks tomorrow against Ray Sadecki, 20-11, the young lefty who beat Whitey Ford 9-5 in the opener Wednesday in St. Louis.

It was a heart-breaking defeat for the Cards.

Quit Politics, Top Buddhist Tells Priests

Order Could Mean Stability For Vietnamese

SAIGON (UPI)—Thich (Rev.) Tam Chau, one of the nation's top Buddhist leaders, told Buddhist priests throughout South Vietnam today to get politics out of the pagodas.

The move, which could bring some political stability to South Vietnam, coincided with these major developments:

1. Authoritative U.S. military sources disclosed that Vietnamese Air Force fighter-bombers killed 30 innocent civilians and wounded 20 more by mistake in neighboring Bien Hoa Province two weeks ago.

2. An American military spokesman said Vietnamese police arrested 200 women yesterday during a Communist-inspired demonstration in the Mekong Delta city of Can Tho. The 300 to 400 women carried placards demanding the government stop using artillery and aircraft against the Viet Cong.

3. The government in an announcement through its news agency said 16,101 Communist troops and agents have deserted to the government in the past 20 months under its Chieu Hoi (open arms) campaign promising amnesty for rebel defectors.

4. The United States asked South Vietnam to delay the execution of convicted Communist terrorist Nguyen Van Troi who tried to plant a bomb designed to kill U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. Terrorists in Venezuela kidnaped U.S. Lt. Col. Michael Smolens and said they would kill him if Troi is executed.

Thich Tam Chau is the powerful chairman of the secular affairs institute of Vietnam's Unified Buddhist Church. As a moderate, he emerged as the most powerful leader of the Buddhists in a struggle for control of the movement early this year.

His telegram instructed clergymen to "systematically avoid the use of the name of Buddhism to participate in or support any political movement as well as avoid letting the church buildings be used for political meetings."

He called on priests to purge all subversive elements in their ranks and urged closer contacts with other religious leaders, in order to "solve all possible differences between religions." He said they should purge politicians from the Buddhist movement regardless of what political party they belonged to.

Terrorists Offer Swap For Colonel

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI)—Terrorists offered today to exchange the life of an kidnaped American lieutenant colonel for that of a convicted Communist plotter in far-off South Vietnam.

In Saigon, the United States asked the South Vietnamese government to delay the execution until the American officer's fate is determined.

The hostage is U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Smolen, 45, of Chandler, Ariz. Smolen, deputy chief of the U.S. Air Mission in Venezuela, was kidnaped in front of his home yesterday morning. His abductors were believed to be Communist terrorist supporters of Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro.

Police were conducting a massive search for Smolen, who is believed being held in Caracas. More than 100 suspects were rounded up for questioning and dozens of leads were checked

COPTER PILOT

Marine Flyer Dies In Crash

Marin Capt. Marshall H. Dahl, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Dahl of 220 Canal Street, San Rafael, was one of four men killed in a helicopter crash shortly after it took off from a naval air station at Kingsville, Texas, Thursday morning.

His father, former assemblyman from the 16th District (Oakland-Piedmont) from 1953 until 1961, said he and his wife, Marie, were notified of their son's death by the Marine Corps when the arrived home at 6 p.m. Thursday.

"The crash, they said, was caused either by a mechanical failure or a flock of birds which flew into the copter's stabilizer," he said.

Captain Dahl was the pilot of the helicopter and was the safety officer for the squadron. He was promoted to the rank of captain a year ago, seven years after he had enlisted in the Marine Corps.

A graduate of Piedmont High Schools, he had attended Stanford University before enlisting.

Barry Gives His Side To Helping Birchers

COMBINED UPI & AP

Sen. Barry Goldwater said last night that he did not know that an anti-Communist committee to which he had lent his name five years ago, had been set up by the John Birch Society.

Goldwater also said he had no recollection of having been recruited for the committee by the society's founder, Robert Welch.

The Republican presidential candidate's statements were made on a filmed television show.

They were in apparent response to remarks made earlier on the show by John Rousselot, public relations director of the John Birch Society, that Welch had recruited Goldwater for the ad hoc group. Identified as the "committee against summit entanglements."

The committee was formed in 1959 to protest an expected summit conference involving former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Asked whether Goldwater had been active "in other fronts" of the Birch Society, Rousselot, a former republican congressman from California said, "Not that I recall."

"I do remember very clearly," Rousselot said, "that Robert Welch called Senator Goldwater on that particular issue because Senator Goldwater felt very strongly that we should not be engaged in any discussions with Mr. Khrushchev because you couldn't carry on an honorable discussion with a murderer. And consequently he did support that and granted the use of his name in support of that movement."

Goldwater said, however, that he had no recollection of saying anything to Welch over the past nine years other than "Hello" or "Goodbye." He said it was William Buckley Jr., a leading rightwing spokesman,who had asked him to serve on the committee. He said he did not know at the time that the committee

Deadline On Drug Review Is Reached

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today is the deadline for makers of nearly 5,000 drugs to submit proof to the government that the drugs are safe and effective.

The 5,000 include most of the important modern medicines your doctor prescribes — and some you buy without prescription.

It is the beginning of a huge review of nearly all the drugs that have entered the U.S. market since 1938 — about 6,000 in number, from the sulfas to the cortisones, from tranquilizers to anti-histamines.

It will take years to complete. But, as of today, the Food and Drug Administration must have in its hands reports on 5,000 of the drugs.

The FDA expects full compliance and has not set up punitive action in advance.

The drug makers and their organization, the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Assn., have brought suit in Federal Court, challenging the FDA's authority.

Senate Getting Ready For Reapportionment

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A special Senate committee is working to nail down the last word in any court-ordered reapportionment of the upper house.

Unanimously opposing the recent U.S. Supreme Court reapportionment decision as "all wrong," the 11-man, newly-formed Senate Reapportionment Committee made it clear yesterday that the Senate alone intends to handle any reshuffling.

The Senate traditionally has let the Assembly draw the line when the lower house is reapportioned after each federal census. And yesterday it emphasized, by individual statement and in committee, that the senators expect the same courtesy from the Assembly.

Sen. Stephen P. Teale (D-Westpoint), chairman of the committee, which sat in executive session, said the group explored the forms reapportionment might take in California.

Teale, interviewed after the closed session adjourned, said "we are faced with the prospect of having to absorb many new legislators and we want to save as many experienced men as possible."

He said that George H. Murphy, on the legislative counsel staff, sat in as an adviser on reapportionment possibilities.

The Calaveras County Democrat said the group unanimously rejected the idea of forming a unicameral legislature, a political system found only in Nebraska.

"We all agreed that the reapportionment decision is all wrong," Teale said. "But we also felt that we should be well prepared if the time does come."

Teale added that several pending law suits in the state may have to be decided before any definite action is taken. One suit brought by Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty in the State Supreme Court, demanded immediate reapportionment.

Yorty said California must follow the guidelines set by the U.S. Supreme Court which ruled earlier in this year that both houses of state legislatures must be apportioned on a population basis. The Assembly is formed that way, but Senate districts are drawn along geographic lines.

However, California's high court has said it won't intervene in the reapportionment controversy until "the legislature has had an opportunity to rule on the matter."

Ord Will Get U.S. Survey

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Army's surgeon general is flying from Washington to California as soon as possible to survey the Fort Ord meningitis situation, Gov. Edmund G. Brown's office said today. (See also, page 2.)

Lt. Gen. Leonard Heaton advised Brown he would start for California as soon as he can make flight arrangements.

Brown last night wired Army Secretary Stephen Ailes urging that the training base be quarantined because two San Francisco Bay Area civilians "were stricken with meningitis after contact with soldiers recently returned from duty" at the post.

Stricken Driver Dies In Hospital

A 63-year-old San Francisco man suffered a heart attack as he was driving on Highway 101 this morning, and collapsed by his car as he tried in vain to flag down other motorists to help him.

Wasil G. Kyryllow died at 8:10 a.m. at San Rafael General Hospital, where he was taken after his wife succeeded in getting a Novato couple to stop.

A hospital spokesman said Kyryllow, who came to the U.S. from the Soviet Union in 1951, became ill near Terra Linda.

Elizabeth Gets Cold Shoulder

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — French Canadians gave Queen Elizabeth a cold shoulder today. Some students shouted insults at her as she drive through the streets of this provincial capital in the heart of Separatist territory.

Terrorist organizations had threatened to harm the 38-year-old monarch. But there was no major incident other than the booing by groups mainly made up of teen-agers. The rest of the population all but ignored her.

Armed soldiers and police stood nearly shoulder to shoulder along the route from the dock on the St. Lawrence River where the queen left her royal yacht to the Provincial Legislature buildings where she spoke.

One group of about 200 demonstrators shouted "kill the queen" as her bullet-proof limosine moved slowly through the streets. About 50 police quickly surrounded the group and arrested eight—including Separatist leader Reggie Chartrand, a former Montreal boxer.

As the Queen left the Legislature, following a speech which showed considerable sympathy for the current French-Canadian viewpoint on confederation, the catcalls started again.

Terrorists Offer To Swap Colonel

out. But there was no trace of Smolen.

Suspected chief of the kidnap gang is "Major" Maximo Canales, youthful terrorist killer who has been involved in previous Red propaganda kidnapings.

Anonymous telephone callers told newspapers and radio stations that Smolen is being held hostage for Nguyen Van Troi, a Communist terrorist sentenced to death in Vietnam for trying to kill Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara with a bomb.

"One hour after we learn of Troi's execution, Smolen gets a bullet in the head," the callers said.

Informed sources said a public execution by firing squad had been planned for Troi by next weekend.

But when word reachd Saigon about Smolen's kidnaping, it was brought directly to U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor. A spokesman said then that "we are obviously concerned about the reports from Caracas."

Troi Smolen

Then the embassy in Saigon received a message from Washington this morning, asking it to try to delay Troi's execution until Smolen is out of his kidnaper's hands.

An official of the Saigon U.S. Embassy who went to the Vietnamese foreign office this afternoon, was informed that no definite date had been set for Troi's execution. The American official told the Vietnamese the United States hoped that Troi would not be executed while Smolen's life was in the balance.

In New York Smolen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Smolen, both 69, were reported "very upset" and "trying to control their feelings." Smolen's wife here was reported in a state of shock.

Five men took part in the kidnaping as Smolen stepped from his home to ride to work with Col. Henry Lee Choate, the mission chief. Two young gunmen seized Smolen. Three others chased Choate, but he jumped over a fence and took refuge in a home.

Smolen, the father of four children, is a 20-year veteran with the Air Force and a decorated World War II pilot. A native of Johnstown, Pa., his permanent home is Chandler, Ariz.

The kidnaping was almost identical to that of Lt. Col. James K. Chenault, former deputy chief of the U.S. Army mission here. Chenault was abducted by FALN terrorists last Nov. 27 and released unharmed eight days later.

In Chenault's case the assailants almost immediately notified the U.S. Embassy, calling attention to their cause. The pattern of calls in the Smolen case followed the FALN style.

Canopy Is Suggested For Bridge Leapers

A nine-foot metal mesh canopy, studded with barbed wire, was suggested today by James F. Doyle, retired Sausalito police chief, as a means of reducing suicides on the Golden Gate Bridge.

The canopy would start from the bumper edge of the roadway but not interfere with vehicles, arch up nine feet over the sidewalk and down to the hand rail at the bridge edge. It would be suspended at the top from the large vertical bridge cables.

Most important feature, according to Doyle is that it would be arched, thus allowing for windage which Doyle said "is the big problem."

Holes in the mesh—similar to the wire mesh used on highway dividers—would be from three to four inches wide. This space would allow people to see through and to take photographs.

Barbed wire would run in rows four inches apart all over the canopy to discourage anyone from climbing the canopy and jumping.

Doyle said he realizes that a fence or barrier has been recommended to the Golden Gate Bridge directors as a preventive for leapers and adds he has been working on his plan for two months.

"It may not be perfect but it would give a person enough trouble so that he could be detected before he gets over," said Doyle. Doyle, who lives at 415 Napa Street, worked on the span 18 months as a guard during its construction.

State Wants Ord Closed-- Army Refuses

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state today sought to close or quarantine the Fort Ord Army training base in the wake of a meningitis epidemic but the Army refused.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown last night asked the Secretary of the Army to quarantine the fort and suspend recruit training at the post where 84 persons have been stricken this year and 13 have died.

The governor also announced he was directing the National Guard to stop sending guardsmen to the base. A group of 50 guardsmen was due to go to the post Oct. 13 and a total of 435 was slated to go there this month.

The governor took his action after receiving a report from the California Department of Public Health recommending that all rookies and outside visitors be banned until the crisis is over.

It said that trainees should be thinned out until there are none at all in residence for a four-week period. The Army already has ordered a cut in recruits from 4,600 to 2,500 by the end of this month, and a two-week recess.

Brown's action was taken after Army Secretary Stephen Ailes had announced that the meningitis problem at the base appeared under control and said he did not intend to close the post despite recent requests from California congressmen.

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—Thousands of goose-stepping Nationalist Chinese soldiers and cadets saluted President Chiang Kai-shek on their country's 53rd anniversary in one of the largest military parades ever held by Nationalist China.

He was accompanied on the tour by Ian Schiller of Mill Valley, guide and driver.

State Sen. John F. McCarthy will speak to students at the College of Marin on the main lawn of the campus at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. The speech is sponsored by the College of Marin Republican Club.

Marin Democrats Gain 7,010 Registered Voters

Marin Democrats gained 7,010 registered voters since the June primary, more than double the Republican gains, bringing the total Democratic registration to within 692 of the Republicans.

This was revealed yesterday in revised figures released by County Clerk George H. Gnoss after an official count. The county clerk said some discrepancies were discovered after the first figures were released last week.

These are the total registered voters now in Marin:

Republicans 42,042; Democrats 41,350; declined to state 3,463; independents and miscellaneous parties 147; grand total 86,002.

The figures show that Democrats gained 7,010 since the June primary, and Republicans gained 3,458 during the same period.

Mrs. Gatov To Talk On JFK-Johnson

Elizabeth R. Gatov of Kentfield, who served as United States Treasurer in the Kennedy administration, will speak on the Kennedy-Johnson record at a San Rafael luncheon next Wednesday, Oct. 14.

The luncheon will be held in the Redwood Room of the Kaehler-Farrar Building, Fourth & C Streets. It is sponsored by the Marin Committee to Elect President Johnson.

Paintings and scultpure by Sausalito artists will be on sale at the luncheon. Mrs. Isabel Iribarne, coordinator of the San Rafael group, said proceeds from the sale will go to the Sausalito Johnson for President Committee.

Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. will preside, and the Rev. Wesley C. Baker will give a short talk on "Extremism."

The luncheon is open to all Democrats and interested voters, Mrs. Iribarne announced. Helping her on the luncheon committee are Mrs. Dorothy Smith, Mrs. Dotty Putscher, Mrs. Laura Winton, Mrs. Joan Yost, and Mrs. Bette Morgan.

Wedding Vows Are Renewed After 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Weber, former Marin residents, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently by renewing their marriage vows in a ceremony at St. Joseph's Church, Cotati.

The Webers spent 19 of the 50 years in San Rafael, where John worked as a carpenter. They moved to Marin County in 1941 from Kansas, where they were born, reared and married.

A reception in the Women's Improvement Club of Cotati followed the renewal of vows.

A son-in-law and daughter of the Webers, Mr. and Mrs. Gale C. Woodall, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on Sept. 13.

Girls Accused Of Store Thefts

Two teen-aged girls were picked up in different parts of the county on shoplifting charges yesterday.

Linda Yuling Auyueng, 18, of 124 Locust Avenue, San Rafael, was booked at county jail after an employee of Macy's signed a citizen's arrest.

San Rafael police said the girl was charged with theft of two sweaters and a skirt from the San Rafael store.

Earlier, sheriff's deputies cited a 13-year-old Novato girl for the alleged shoplifting of $9 worth of assorted merchandise from the Roger Wilco food store at 455 Entrada Drive, Novato.

On School Agenda

Hazards for pupils walking to and from Edna Maguire School along sidewalk-less streets of East Blithedale Avenue, Camino Alto and Lomita Drive will be discussed at 8 p.m. Monday by the Mill Valley School District trustees. Also on the agenda, under staff reports, are field trips and curriculum development.

Expansion Is Planned At Seminary

A newly formed development advisory committee at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary last week laid the groundwork for Project 74, a 10-year program of seminary expansion.

The program authorized by seminary trustees last year will be implemented by the committee which recommended in its meeting Tuesday and Wednesday that campus housing be increased and a permanent library be constructed by 1970 to meet the increased enrollment.

Projection 74 also calls for increase of the endowment to five million dollars for the seminary on the Strawberry Peninsula. The present endowment is "very little," seminary president Dr. Harold K. Graves reported.

The executive committee of the board of seminary trustees, meeting Thursday, took the first concrete step toward campus construction with approval of bid letting in early 1965 for construction of 15 two-bedroom apartments on the campus, to house student families, Graves said.

Graves said the ultimate student population of the 126-acre campus will be 1,000 persons. It now has 259 students.

Ultimately a chapel seating more than 1,800 persons, a gymnasium, student center and additional student housing will be constructed on the campus, Graves said.

The five million dollar endowment fund which will aid in development of facilities will come mainly from persons within the Southern Baptist Convention which operates the seminary, Graves reported.

The development advisory committee which will lead the work will be composed of up to 50 persons from throughout the United States. The 20 thus far selected last week elected as their chairman Jerry Wheat, assistant to the president of the Lone Star Gas Co. of Texas.

Included on the committee are Reginald R. Jones Jr., San Rafael, and Dr. Ernest Guy, a member of the seminary board of trustees, who lives on the Tiburon Peninsula.

L. A. Hyland, general manager and vice president of Hughes Aircraft Co., presented the trophy.

This is the first time in the 12-year history of the trophy that a unit flying the F-106 has won the award.

A group of about 30 parents met informally last night at Marin City to discuss the exchange of pupils between schools in Marin City and Mill Valley. They decided to meet again on Oct. 22.

The gathering was purely informational and there is no intention of carrying the group beyond an informal basis, a spokesman said.

DRAMA REVIEW

Melodrama Is A Good Bet For Weekend In County

By KARL BARRON

"East of the Rockies" or "She Knew Not Her Father," a musical melodrama, opened last night at the new home of the Terra Linda Little Theater. A converted cow barn (TLLT calls it Le Petit Cow Palace) is the location on Golden Hinde Boulevard in Los Ranchitos. Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 the time—and it should be around for quite a while when word gets about.

A cast headed by a blonde sprite named Patti Newman takes the inconsequential book of Lou Mason and sometimes delightful songs of Jon Sutton and sets up an evening that's gone before you realize it.

Miss Newman, reminiscent in her swirling energy of Mary Martin (but not by any means an imitation) struts, swaggers, coquettes, charms and utterly endears herself to the audience as Chip Gordon, the girl who doesn't know her daddy.

Art Zasada plays her father as a sort of happy snapping turtle, shining on his solo "She'll Never Want For Nothin'." Lindsay Ouellette postures his way through the improbable lines of Julian Gray, the hero(?) of the piece. He does well with "How Gently We Caressed," by far the best romantic song in the show.

Mary Smutek and her girls of easy virtue have a real show stopper in "There's a Little Lump of Sugar Down Inside," then cap it with a leggy can-can.

Other standouts in the large cast are Lou Mason, Betty Petit and Richard Reutlinger, whose ingenious Chinaman is delightful.

A meladrama must have a villain, and Jake Dalton is played by Joe Bologna as a man haunted by being forced into villainy. It's quite difficult to dislike him thoroughly, but it doesn't matter. Enjoy him.

The direction of Mary Balensiefer keeps her cast on its toes all the way, and Leonard Jared at the console of collector Reutinger's "Wurlitzer Theater Orchestra" lends a smooth background throughout.

Le Petit Cow Palace is quite petite, the actors standing in danger of belting the front row audience with any ill-timed gestures, but B. J. Leibovitz has done a fantastic job of settings, including a sort of flying arrangement. ("Flying" being the generic term for raising sets above the stage). The Palace is a pleasant little place — and standing behind it is a huge barn which TLLT hopes will someday be its permanent home. The property, courtesy Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Cervantes, is blessed with a large parking area, so all in all, the happy gleam in the eye, and the bubbling verve of the TLLT members is understandable.

You'll go far looking for a better way to spend Friday or Saturday night.

Dog Is Still Being Sought

The parents of a 5-year-old Ross youngster were still searching today for the dog which bit the youngster during school recess Thursday.

Mrs. Justin L. Williams of 1 Allen Lane said her son, Lowell, and his teacher, who held on to the dog briefly after the incident, had looked at several animals so far, but with negative results.

The mother appealed to anyone owning a dog similar to this one to come forth.

"We are not interested in causing them any trouble," she stressed. She wants to avoid the boy's having to undergo the painful Pasteur series of rabies shots.

If doctors are unable to find the dog and observe its actions within a few days, they will start the treatment as a precautionary measure.

The dog, which turned on the child after a fight with another dog, was described as a short-legged, fat and white with brown spots.

Teen Club Dances Out

Directors of the Bolinas Beach Public Utility District voted unanimously last night to prohibit further dances by a teen club known as Troll House in the Mesa Clubhouse building.

The vote followed a recommendation by the Bolinas Improvement Club that the dances, held earlier but stopped, be allowed to resume.

Directors said the district could not obtain adequate insurance to cover possible liability for the dances.

Gets College Post

Jill Rosean, 402 Live Oak Drive, Mill Valley, has been named publicity commissioner for the associated students executive council at the College of Marin. The appointment was made by Public Relations Commissioner Warren Glass.

Students Try To Light 'M' Is Foiled

A group of College of Marin students tried to create an "instant landmark" in the form of an illuminated letter M on the side of Mount Tamalpais last night, but were ordered to take it down. Firemen and sheriff's deputies feared the gear would ignite dry grass on the mountain.

The large electric M flickered on and off several times between its installation, just at dusk, and its removal a couple of hours later.

Firemen said the youths' motor-driven generators had no spark suppressors and there was no insulation on the wires. Too, they noted, the students picked an area which had neither water nor a fire trail in case there was a blaze.

The short-lived venture was apparently timed to coincide with the school's home football game against American River Junior College. The local team had even worse luck than the amateur electricians, however, losing 44-0.

Runaway Boy Being Sought

Sheriff's deputies yesterday put out an all-points bulletin for a 17-year-old Novato High School student who left home after being suspended from school.

Missing is Warren Edwin Hale of 727 Sutro Avenue, Novato, who left yesterday morning without saying where he planned to go.

His mother, Mrs. Henry A. Hale, said the youth is six feet one, 160 pounds, slender, with dark blond hair and blue eyes. He was believed wearing a black sweater and green denim pants.

Driver Cuts Hand As Car Rolls Over

Randolph L. Jones, 22 of San Francisco suffered a small cut on the palm of his left hand when his car overturned on Highway 101 just north of the Golden Gate Bridge at 8:30 a.m. yesterday.

California highway patrolmen said Jones, headed north, tried to make lane changes and lost control.

Believed Drowned

ST. HELIER, Isle of Jersey—(UPI)— Five persons were believed to have drowned last night when the 50-foot motor yacht Marcelia sank in high seas off the harbor here.

CAMPAIGN

was a John Birch society front organization.

In San Francisco last night Goldwater urged the young people of America Friday night to "keep faith in their ideals" in the spirit of Christopher Columbus.

The Republican presidential candidate brought his campaign to Fisherman's Wharf.

"Christopher Columbus had faith in his ideals," said the Arizona senator, in speaking at festivities commemorating the discovery of America, and "I urge the young people with their ideals to keep the same kind of faith in them that he did."

There were several boos and some heckling in the crowd that stretched out over the wharf, but these were quickly drowned out by cheers from the big partisan crowd.

"What our forefathers came to this country for has never been provided by politicians," Goldwater said. "These things come from the human spirit. Freedom comes to us as a gift from God," Goldwater said.

The senator was campaigning in Spokane, Wash., today.

President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson relaxed today at their ranch at Johnson City, Tex. The president will travel to San Francisco tomorrow for Columbus Day ceremonies. He said he plans to deliver a major speech at Washington Square in North Beach about 3:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The Murphy - Salinger show continued on a somewhat subdued level.

Republican senatorial candidate George Murphy told newsmen in Los Angeles that he "welcomes any opportunity to campaign with Sen. Barry Goldwater" but he doesn't have any joint appearances on his schedule. Murphy added: "I want to help Barry Goldwater any way I can, but I also reserve the right to disagree with him."

Democratic Senator Pierre Salinger said at a rally in the Los Angeles suburb of San Pedro that development of an effective trade agreement among nations bordering the Pacific would help promote free enterprise and counter communism.

Rep. William E. Miller, nursing a cold that took some of the zip out of his stride, pushed ahead on a motorcade tour into Ohio today.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey campaigned in Pennsylvania today.

Family Pet Survives Cleaning Job

Ambrosia must have wondered what was going on when 4-year-old Bobby tired to make a vacuum-cleaner attachment out of her yesterday.

Ambrosia is a little black kitten belonging to the family of James Dower, 8 Hillside Avenue, Kentfield. Her little brother Ambrose, was killed by a car recently, and so when Mrs. Dower's nephew Bobby Kyle, put Ambrosia's head in the intake of the vacuum cleaner, a minor family tragedy seemed about to be compounded by an accident.

Fortunately, when Kentfield firemen arrived Ambrosia was still all right. They managed to pry her loose without further damage, to Ambrosia, that is.

"She's an adorable kitten," said Mrs. Dower.

Injuries Treated

Edgar Reason, 14, of McNear's Beach was treated at 6:30 p.m. yesterday at Marin General Hospital for scrapes and bruises of his right arm suffered when he fell from a junked automobile on which he had been playing near his home.

Theft From Home

A portable ice chest, a camp stove and other items of camping equipment were stolen from a storage room at the rear of her garage, Mrs. Nina R. Johnson of 107 Bret Harte Road, San Rafael, told police yesterday.

About 55 persons, including several candidates for office, heard Marin County Supervisor Peter H. Behr give his tongue-in-cheek views on both major presidential candidates to the Stinson Beach Progressive Club last night.

Behr's 20 minute address followed introduction of his fellow supervisor, George Ludy and his opponent Thomas Storer; Vera Schultz, who seeks the state senate seat; Bolinas Harbor District director Gene W. McDaniel and two of the four men opposing him, Capt. David S. Edwards and Thomas S. Tawns.

How Do Foreign Women Stack Up For The Olympics?

Who has the top Olympics talent on the distaff side? A look at foreign prospects for women in the Olympics.

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—With heads as high as the hope in their hearts, girls from swimming pools and gyms and tracks around the world converged upon Tokyo for the XVIII Olympiad.

Who will carry home the coveted gold medals?

Every nation has its potential stars, and here are some of the most noteworthy:

The U.S.S.R.—The Press sisters—Irina, 25, and Tamara, 27 — are a formidable twosome. Irina the '60 Olympics hurdles champion, has a good chance to win the 80-meter hurdles and the new Olympic Pentathlon event, in which she holds the world record with 5,194 points.

TAMARA WON the discus at Rome in '60 and the shotput event at the U.S.-U.S.S.R. track and field meet in Los Angeles in July. Both girls are married, and have always combined sports with studies. Recently Irina became a post graduate student and Tamara graduated from a construction engineers institute with an ambition to build new cities in northern Russia.

The graceful Soviet women gymnasts seem pretty unbeatable, and Marisa Latynina hopes to retain her '60 title. She is married to a naval engineer and has a 5-year-old daughter, Marina.

In Helsinki in '52, Soviet sportswomen captured six gold-medals, in Melbourne in '56 seven, in Rome in '60 thirteen. Will the upward trend continue in Tokyo in '64?

AUSTRALIA: Dawn Fraser, 27, was 100 meters Olympic freestyle champion in '56 and '60 and will be trying at Tokyo to become the first woman swimmer ever to win the same event at three successive Olympic Games. She says: "I know I must have a good chance at Tokyo but I also know I'm no certainty. In sprint racing you only have to make one small mistake."

In track there's sprint star Margaret Burvill, Betty Cuthbert, 26, who won the two dashes in '56, and Dixie Willis 22, possible winner in the 800 meter.

Blonde, blue-eyed Betty, a horticulturist, works for her father in his suburban Sydney nursery. She has lost none of the fresh attractiveness she had in '56 when sports writers named her the Golden Girl at the Melbourne Games, where she won three gold medals. She says: "The work is hard . . . But there is a lot of satisfaction in it."

Curley-haired brunette Dixie, from Perth, is a stenographer when she's not in training.

ENGLAND: Mary Bignal Rand is Britain's big hope. She's entered for the broad jump, the pentathlon, the 80 meters hurdles and the relay.

At 24, she's married to British Olympic sculler Sidney Rand and the mother of 2-year-old Alison. Husband and wife spent many hours getting to peak fitness for the Olympic games, but he failed to make the team this time.

"I want to go to Tokyo, try to land a medal—and then become an ordinary housewife," says Mary.

Ann Packer, 22, engaged to British Olympic track captain Bobbie Brightwell, goes to Tokyo in search of the gold medal in the women's 400 meters. As soon as the Olympics ends, they're getting married. "And my marriage won't come second to anything," says Ann. "Perhaps I'll miss big time athletics at first. But once we start a family I won't miss it at all."

EAST GERMANY: Newlywed Ingrid Kraemer-Engel, 21, who won two gold medals for diving in '60, may well repeat this year. She has close-cropped blonde hair, large blue-gray eyes and a beauty queen's figure. She doesn't consider herself much of a housekeeper, but, she adds, "my husband is very proud of me." Husband Hein is an economics student.

Like Dressing Up In Heels

'OH, YOU KID'

A style borrowed from the kids—a baby bonnet tied over the chin—and made of the same white kidskin as the coat is one of the fashions of Paris designer Andre Courreges that were shown in New York Thursday. The coat and bonnet are starred with beads and worn over white architectural pants in part of collection by Courreges for leather fashion maker Samuel Roberts. The models wore no tops with the coats of the collection that failed to close by about six inches. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP)—The current pride of Paris, Andrew Courreges, stops just short of diapers in giving age-conscious American women the youngest collection of clothes ever cut in adult sizes.

TURNING the tables on little girls who like to dress up in their mothers' high heels and long gowns were grown-ups in white leather booties, baby bonnets that tied under the chin and dresses that quit a considerable distance above the knee.

Indeed, the audience at the opening of the Courreges collection for leather fashion maker Samuel Roberts Thursday saw the cutest, roundest, pinkest, dimpled knees in town. These, rather than faces, were major considerations in choosing models, a Roberts spokesman said.

YET THOSE knees very often were covered by leather slacks slim as space suits — the kind that made Courreges the most controversial French designer since Yves St. Laurent in the middle 50's.

SINCE THIS was an "oh-you-kid" collection, kid, naturally, was a favorite material, supple and sexy as it slithered over the model's bodies, fitting like that proverbial glove.

DRESSES were simple little A-line slivers.

An Extra Inch Of Material Will Close A Gap In A Coat

By EUNICE FARMER

How can I keep my winter coat from gapping open when I walk? I'm one of a "lost race" of persons who still enjoy walking, but would prefer not to freeze to death.—Mrs. C. T.

Dear Mrs. C. T.:

Instead of the usual ⅝ inch between the center front and the front seam line, add an extra inch to the front of your coat, remember to add the same amount to the facing. The buttonholes will still be spaced at the center front, don't move them.

Another solution that works beautifully with a winter coat is to choose a pattern that is double breasted. Not only are they very fashionable this season, but that extra lap in front will make the coat warmer and it won't gap. Double-breasted coats are not as satisfactory in warm weather climates because they must be buttoned to look well, you can't wear them casually open like you can with single-breasted coats.

"KNIT TOO" NOTES

Correct dropped stitches by using a crochet hook to pick them up. Catch the loose stitch and work it up on the horizontal thread of each successive row until you reach the row you are working on.

If your stitches have come off the needle accidentally, or if you have ripped back part of your knitting, carefully put back on the needle by inserting the needle from the FRONT to BACK through each loop. This will avoid twisting the stitch.

I am going to make a sequined sheath out of 18-inch stretch fabric. Do I make darts in this kind of fabric?—Miss N.T.

Dear N. T.:

Darts will not work well in sequined fabric. I would suggest you make the dress as simply as possible. Instead of darts, you could achieve a slightly blouson look by using a narrow tie belt at the waist.

Be especially careful when pressing any sequin fabric. The iron will dull the sequins. Instead of pressing, open the seams and loosely hand whip the raw edges to your dress.

LONG SLEEVES

With the new longer sleeves so fashionable this season, I wanted to lengthen the sleeves of my fur jacket.I removed the fur cuffs, replacing them with velvet cuffs which added the width of the cuff to the length. I then covered the velvet cuff with the original fur cuffs. Neat!

Mrs. Martha Pike, Scotia, New York, is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix pressing board with this helpful suggestion.

Every time I make a suit, the front edges swing to the side instead of hanging nice and straight. I love to sew, but am getting discouraged.—Mrs. W.H.

Dear Mrs. W. H.:

You didn't mention your figure measurements, but I imagine the pattern you have chosen is styled for someone with a larger bust than you have. This could also happen if you didn't walk erect or were slightly round shouldered.

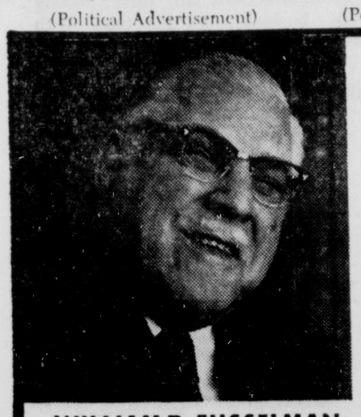

The front of your pattern is too long between the shoulders and the waist. Make a fold in your pattern at the bust line, tapering the dart or fold to nothing at the underarm. (It would be a good idea if you would make a muslin pattern with this correction and check it carefully before cutting your garment.

Some of you have been asking about the Tailor Trix pressing board which is awarded each week for the best sewing tip of the week. If you want more information about it, send your request to Eunice Farmer, in care of the Independent-Journal. Also, mail all questions and sewing tips to the same address.

'Choice Instead Of Echo' Theory Just Not Working

THE REASON THAT NIXON, Dewey and Willkie were unsuccessful Republican candidates was that they were too much like their Democratic adversaries.

A true conservative had no one he could back enthusiastically in the years that those men were candidates.

So many conservative votes were uncast.

The foregoing represents the strong conviction of many conservatives. It gives rise to the Goldwater slogan, "A choice instead of an echo."

Their theory—their strong conviction — is that this previously uncast conservative vote will come now to the polls in force on Nov. 3 to sweep Goldwater into the presidency.

THIS THEORY HAS SOME flaws in it.

The biggest flaw is that it just isn't true.

Polls around the country seem to indicate that it will be a Johnson—not a Goldwater—landslide on Nov. 3.

And a contributing factor will be Republican stay-at-homes. That is, some Republicans who don't like Johnson feel that they cannot in good conscience vote for Goldwater.

So they will not vote for president at all.

This might be called, in the popular idiom of the moment, another kind of "backlash."

With the handwriting on the wall that Goldwater "can't win," notice how many Republican candidates are quietly disassociating themselves with the Goldwater candidacy.

When Eisenhower was president, almost every Republican was eager to share campaign headquarters space with President Ike. Now you find Republican candidates for Congress, State Senate, and State Assembly campaigning out of independent, separate headquarters displaying a scarcity or total absence of Goldwater campaign placards, pamphlets and what-not.

Only George Murphy, GOP candidate for U.S. Senate, was an exception. But in recent weeks, as the handwriting on the wall has become more legible, he, too, has seemed to soft-pedal his Goldwater leanings.

NON-VOTING BALLOT casters are a problem in other races, too.

Supervisor Byron Leydecker says his studies indicate that something like 40 per cent of citizens who cast a vote in the presidential primary last June did NOT make a choice for supervisor.

Obviously, this is the untapped reservoir of votes that Leydecker and his opponent, San Rafael Mayor John McInnis, must seek to win.

About the worst that could happen would be for the lack of enthusiasm for either presidential candidate in November to keep people from voting on the many other important issues and contests on the ballot.

WHAT HAPPENS IF the Johnson landslide (and the Goldwater defeat) turns out to be as great as some expect it will be?

Will the Republican Party be as destitute of leadership as the Democrats were after the 1920 pasting that knocked them down and almost out?

Some moderate, progressive Republicans are worried about this. They cite registration trends which show Republican numerical strength (in ratio to Democrats) dropping sharply over the state since the Goldwater nomination.

A Goldwater "debacle" on Nov. 3 could also decimate Republican ranks in the legislature at Sacramento.

AND IF THE Republican strength in the State Senate were to be decimated, technically speaking, only one and one-third Republican senators would be left, representing all the GOP party registrants in the entire state.

Perhaps we are, as some have speculated in the aftermath of the U.S. Supreme Court decision on reapportionment, headed toward "proportional representation"—a system long discussed in political science classes but only rarely given second thought by practical politicians.

One bit of speculation as to how the Republican Party in California might make a future comeback involves the hint that U.S. Senator Tom Kuchel, whose progressive reputation is universally recognized, would become a candidate for governor here two years hence. Tom Kuchel would make a strong race and he could be a good governor in the Earl Warren G.O.P. tradition.

Strange Tenants In Crow's Nest

Marin has a number of crows, especially in the less-inhabited western part of the county. Their nests are strongly built of sticks, deeply hollowed, and comfortably lined with moss, rootlets and bark. They usually last for years.

They are often taken over by hawks and owls. Sometimes, mice or squirrels find an abandoned crow's nest and dome it over with leaves and soft materials to make a snug winter home.

Opossums have been known to rebuild crow's nests into winter quarters, too. The clever coon often climbs up to one of these nests and basks, belly-up, for hours in the sun.

Crows' nests are not strictly for the birds, so to speak.

START WHERE YOU ARE TO SHOW LOVE

Absence of love is a big factor in attempted suicides, especially among school children, according to the N. J. Department of Education.

At least 41 youngsters ended their lives in the state in a 3-year period, while 738 others tried and failed. Fifteen-year-olds appear to be most susceptible.

"The threat of suicide," the report said, "is a serious attempt by an individual to call attention to his need for social involvement and acceptance."

The study also said: "He may be desperately seeking someone to honorably accept his love, or he may be calling out for someone to love him and prove him worthwhile."

More personal unhappiness, family misunderstandings and large scale conflicts can be laid to lack of love than to any other cause.

While we may not always be able to compel others to show love, we can, by the power of God, show genuine love ourselves and make the lives of all just that much better.

"Love one another with fraternal charity, anticipating one another with honor." (Romans 12:9)

Let me put love where there is no love, O Jesus, and thus imitate Your divine example.

Sports Story Error Noted

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Attn. Maurice Weinger (I-J sports writer):

I feel obligated both to myself and also to my team to inform you and your staff of an error in your article (Oct. 5), describing the outcome of the Novato - Marin Catholic football contest. You stated, erroneously, that this year's Hornets established a new school record in total points scored in one encounter—43; this is a misstatement.

The team of 1958, Novato's first varsity year, exceeded 43 points on two occasions, once against the Drake Pirates, 48-13, on Sept. 20, 1958, and again, Nov. 21, 1958, when they defeated the Marin Catholic Wildcats, 47-20.

UNICEF Needs Every Penny

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I was very interested to read Mrs. Locati's letter suggesting that youngsters give treats in their door-to-door Halloween march, instead of the traditional taking of candy for themselves.

May I make one additional suggestion. Why not collect for UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund?

It is a real tragedy that in an era of vast technological progress millions of the world's children, three-quarters of them, still suffer from lack of medical care, adequate nutrition, educational opportunities, and are subjected to handicaps that we in Marin County cannot even conceive of.

Is this then not a most opportune time for our children to make a worthwhile contribution to their less fortunate brothers and sisters, and also learn the wonderful lesson of sharing, and still have all the fun that surrounds the excitement of Halloween?

Each penny that our children collect will buy five glasses of milk for a malnourished child. Please help for—"The trick is to treat—all the world's children."

Grape Festival Has Promising Future

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Sunny Hills' 65th Annual Grape Festival . . . broke all records, thanks to our many friends throughout the community.

In the vanguard of those friends we count the Independent-Journal, which has shown a sympathetic interest in our service to children throughout our 70-year history.

The Board of Directors of Sunny Hills has asked me to express its appreciation to you and to all those who helped stage this heart-warming community event.

Marin may be assured that the traditional Grape Festival has a future as well as a past—it has an important place in plans for the New Sunny Hills soon to be built.

Barry's Record Is Assailed

Editor, Independent-Journal:

At a (recent) United Press interview (Aug. 1, 1964), the Republican presidential candidate said, when President Kennedy was assassinated, he lost interest in seeking the nomination, but later changed his mind out of a "responsibility to the Republican Party."

But last December . . . in Phoenix, (he) finally said . . . "You've got to do it. It was rather a reluctant decision."

At a Republican meeting in Atlanta, in a burst of excitement, (Sen.) Barry (Goldwater), in response to a question exclaimed, "The country can't stand another four years of Kennedy." He thought the Europeans had been "terribly misguided," (and) promised if elected, "My foreign policy is exactly the same as Eisenhower's. . . ."

(He) forgot to mention . . . that, as a senator, he was a silent partner for eight years in Ike's administration, . . . and had the audacity to advise the Demos "to keep our heads" in the tense international situation, but he felt that President Kennedy "was making progress in foreign affairs." . . .

. . . Is it a wonder, in the light of the past, Ike can't find issues to bolster Barry into the White House? If the Republican pretender to the presidency intends to follow in (Eisenhower's) footsteps if and when he by any mischance is elected, Heaven save the U. S. A.

Nancy Clark's Reporting Good

Editor, Independent-Journal:

There has been much comment and discussion recently regarding the objectivity and fairness of various news media in connection with Senator Goldwater's campaign for the presidency, and there is no question in my mind but that some reporters "editorialize" on the front page and that some newscasters slant their reporting. On the other hand . . . (we) must be careful to distinguish between unbiased, analytical, penetrating reporting on the one hand, regardless of whose feelings may be hurt on a given day, and unfair, distorted reporting on the other hand.

It is always dangerous to single out one person, publication, or network when acknowledging credit. However, I feel compelled to comment upon a letter to the editor which appeared in your issue of Sept. 17, criticizing Nancy Clark of Television Station KPIX.

I have had the pleasure of working with her on numerous occasions. . . . Nancy Clark has been extremely fair to the Goldwater campaign and I firmly believe that her reporting has been unbiased. While I cannot claim that she has favored our candidate in either of the campaigns, and although on a given day it may appear that she has been critical, on an over-all basis she has been fair, impartial, analytical, and a "darn good reporter" who found stories that other reporters missed.

Johnson Using Needles To Keep Goldwater Busy On Defensive

WASHINGTON (AP) — After watching Sen. Barry Goldwater let himself be needled into using up a lot of his presidential campaign time defending himself, President Lyndon B. Johnson has begun to use the needle technique on the Arizonan.

DEMOCRATS AND Republicans (before Goldwater became the party candidate) accused the senator of being impulsive and trigger-happy. Goldwater has worked hard at trying to erase such an image of him from the public mind.

And in his first television broadcast of the campaign he said: "You may have heard it said that I am impulsive—imprudent—that I am trigger-happy. A deliberate campaign has been and is being waged to create such an image."

AGAIN AND AGAIN in this campaign, in speech after speech, he has assured his listeners that he is neither impulsive nor reckless and that he has only one "goal in mind. Peace."

He protested that he is not a "warmonger" but a "peacemonger."

But members of Johnson's administration—Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara—have called the senator "irresponsible." And Johnson increasingly has sought to keep Goldwater similarly irritated.

In the past few weeks he has been hammering on the theme that the voters must not turn the nation over to "extreme and reckless men" and, without mentioning Goldwater, said the Republican Party had a "new and frightening voice."

IT'S A GOOD GUESS that Goldwater, since Johnson is sensitive to criticism, is getting under the president's skin. But, judging from Johnson's reaction in public, the Texan seems determined not to let any irritation show.

As he campaigned in earnest in the Midwest Wednesday Johnson worked the needle technique overtime by referring to various previous Goldwater positions that the senator has sought to get away from.

FOR INSTANCE, on Social Security. Before he lost the New Hampshire primary last March Goldwater had talked of putting Social Security on a voluntary basis. It got a bad reaction and his campaign manager said it was a major goof.

Ever since, Goldwater has been insisting he wants to make Social Security stronger. Wednesday, Johnson chose to ignore what Goldwater is saying now and referred to what he had said before the primary without mentioning him by name.

IN 1963 AND BEFORE that Goldwater was suggesting the United States get out of the United Nations. But now he is saying he wants to strengthen the U. N.

Again Johnson ignored what Goldwater had said more recently and told his listeners suggestions are made for withdrawing from the U. N.

Earlier this year Goldwater talked of breaking off diplomatic relations with Russia if he is elected. But he hasn't said it recently. Wednesday, Johnson referred only to suggestions that have been made for breaking off relations with Russia.

SINCE THIS KIND of thing can't go on indefinitely without boring audiences with repetition—and the campaign still has 24 days to go—Johnson almost certainly will have to find new techniques to irritate the senator.

BARKER ON CHINA

Portrait Of Mao As He Reaches 71

THIS YEAR Mao Tse-tung is 71 years old. Last week his Communist government celebrated its 15th year in power. Yet this man who has been pictured as everything from a fanatic monster to a poetic intellectual and great humanitarian is perhaps the greatest enigma of our time.

In the summer Mao lives in Peking with his ailing present wife, an actress, whom he married in 1939. They occupy an old, graceful, one-story, yellow tile-roofed residence in the Imperial City, where he greets selected foreign visitors and plans political strategy. He dislikes the harsh North China winters and usually vacations in the South for several months.

AS HE HAS grown older, he eats moderately, drinks some maot'ai spirits and smokes fewer cigarettes, his chief indulgence for many years. He tells foreign visitors his health is good, but in recent photographs he is starting to look old and frail.

He had three children. His eldest son, Mao An-ying, was killed in the Korean War; another son is now an engineer in the provinces; a younger daughter is reportedly studying at Peking University.

ALTHOUGH MAO was married to a village girl by his parents when he was 14, he did not like the girl, never lived with her and did not regard it as a valid marriage. The great love of his life was the daughter of one of his professors at the University of Peking, whom he married in the autumn of 1920. This union lasted until her execution by the Nationalists 10 years later.

His father was "a rough, tight-fisted peasant, an autocrat for whom existence was measured by the gap between buying cheap and selling dear." His mother was illiterate and superstitious, but warm and loving with her children. Mao was the eldest of the four children, three boys and a girl. "All the children survived to adulthood; all became Communists; all except Mao Tse-tung met violent deaths."

MAO DESPISED his father and early rejected paternal authority. Perhaps this set the pattern for his life. It was but a small step to rejection of governmental authority. Even in the Communist movement in China, he rejected the idea that the vanguard of the Revolution should be the workers in the big cities. Gather the peasants and indoctrinate them and we'll have an unbeatable army, he said. He stuck to his guns and history proved him right.

Some China scholars believe that Mao understands the Chinese peasant mentality better than any man on earth, but that his vision of the world outside China is distorted by the fact he has never been outside China, except for two short visits to Moscow after his 1949 victory.

MAO IS A POET, a peasant, a soldier, a Marxist metaphysician and scholar. But most of all, he is a revolutionary. And, as he himself has said, revolutions are dirty, bloody business, not for those with tender sensibilities. Not for the faint-hearted. Mao may be lots of things—but tender and faint-hearted are not among them.

Military Song Writer Honored

CLEVELAND (AP)—That best-known song of the nation's military airmen ("Off we go, into the wild blue yonder . . .") and its author, the late Lt. Col. Robert McArthur Crawford of New York, have been honored with a plaque at Cleveland Hopkins Airport.

Crawford introduced the song at the National Air Races in Cleveland in 1939.

Prop. 3 Passage Would Give Aid To Needy Schools

Politics Took Bond Issue Off June Primary Ballot

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—Proposition 3 on the Nov. 3 election ballot is the only one of the three such measures not defeated in the past.

It authorizes issuance of 260 million dollars in general obligation bonds for construction of the school building aid loan program —loans to so-called impoverished school districts for classroom construction. In 1962, a 200 million-dollar bond issue was approved for this purpose, while bond issues for state construction and beach and park acquisition were defeated.

The school building aid program, administered by the local allocation board in the department of general services, will be about 60 million dollars behind by the time the Nov. 3 election rolls around. For the past several months, the board has been approving applications for state loans but, in many cases, merely has advanced $1 to the school district, with the balance to be considered when bond funds become available.

For the past several elections, the school building aid bonds have been submitted to voters at the June election but the vote was delayed this year until November.

Reason for the delay, strangely enough, was strictly political and admittedly so. A little-known constitutional provision was discovered this year which provided that, if any bond issue were submitted to the voters at a primary it then became a general election and any initiatives qualified for the ballot would have to be submitted at such an election.

The housing initiative, which will be on the November ballot as Proposition 14, was qualified well before June and would have had to be placed on the primary election ballot if the school building aid bonds had been voted on in June.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown admitted there might be some shortage of school funds but said he would take his chances and insist that the housing initiative vote be delayed until November. This would give more time, Brown explained, to mount a campaign against Proposition 14.

Paul Hoyenga, executive officer of the allocation board, said no actual construction has been delayed by the unavailability of money to apportion to districts. In fact, Hoyenga, said the fund still will have a balance of nearly 30 million dollars at the end of October.

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, in his report to the legislature on proposition costs, said the school bonds will cost 394.7 million dollars including interest. Of this total, the state's general fund will pay an estimated 258.5 million dollars and local school districts 136.2 million dollars.

Post said the state-local share of costs is estimated at 65 per cent state and 35 per cent local although the state's share could go higher.

About one-third of the state's 1,500 school districts have borrowed funds under the program, which has totaled $1,-123,000,000 so far. Districts repay the loans under a formula which requires them to levy a tax of about 40 cents per $100 in assessed value. The districts first pay toward retirement of their own bonds out of this 40-cent tax levy and then pay the state what's left over.

After 25 years of paying on principal and interest, the districts then pay on the principal only for five years, and are forgiven the balance. In the case of non-classroom construction—such as auditoriums, kitchens, etc.—an additional 10 years of repayment is required.

To qualify for state loans, districts must be bonded to their capacity (5 per cent of the assessed value) and still be unable to meet classroom needs of pupils.

Hoyenga estimated that the one-third of the districts which do borrow state funds for construction get from 60 to 70 per cent of the growth in the state. They generally are the "bedroom" areas which have thousands of new homes but little industrial or commercial property to provide a tax base.

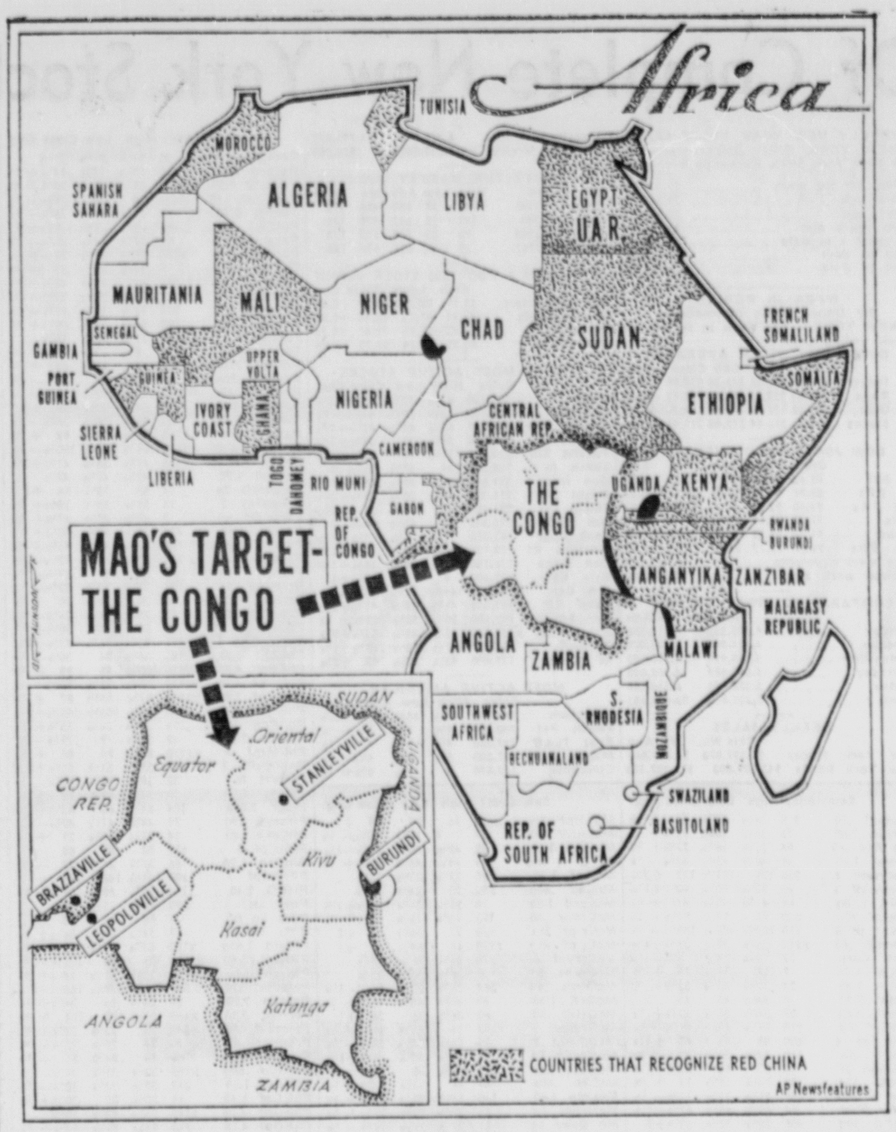

The principal arguments advanced in favor of Proposition 3 are that there must be 10,000 new or renovated classrooms provided each year to keep pace with the enrollment increase. Even more classrooms will be needed under new legislation which penalizes school districts financially if they have classes with more than 33 students.

Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, said an intelligent bonding program is essential for operation of public schools. Under this theory, future generations pay for costs of the buildings.

Opponents of Proposition 3 attack this very contention about spreading cost of school buildings to future generations. They point out that the need for new schools is a recurring one. Thus future generations must pay for bonds which build today's schools but must also pay for the new schools that will still be needed then.

The voter's pamphlet on ballot propositions does not have an argument against Proposition 3. However, the California Taxpayers' Assn., a former supporter of the program, is opposing the 260-million-dollar bond issue this year.

The CTA said the school loan program permits uneconomic school districts to remain in existence by providing money for their buildings. As a result, the CTA said, the program actually is a deterrent to unification of school districts.

Peking Is Steadily Infiltrating Africa

China Seeks Spread From Congo Area

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Correspondent

While Americans and British look on with concern—and Russians with dismay — Chinese Communists are making steady progress with their infiltration of Africa.

The long-term goal of Peking in the Dark Continent, attributed to Mao Tze-tung by a Chinese diplomat who defected from an African post last spring, is to penetrate the Congo (Leopoldville) and from there spread their influence among new nations suspicious of the West and the white man.

Western sources report the Chinese have been liberally passing out money to sympathizers in strategic positions in the Leopoldville Congo, the Brazzaville Congo, the Kingdom of Burundi, the United Republic of Tanganyika and Zanzibar and to rebel elements elsewhere, including Cameroon.

The campaign seems directed equally at Soviet and Western influence. Peking's Afro-Asia campaign already has crowded Moscow severely in the Asian-African solidarity organization. There the Chinese have concentrated heavily on the theme that Russians are just as white as any white man and have no claim to being an Asian nation.

The Chinese trade heavily on the notion that Africans have more affinity for non-white Asians than they do either for the Russians or Westerners. A month ago Moscow complained testily that Peking propaganda has pictured the USSR as in the same category as "colonial powers with possessions in Asia and Africa." Moscow accused the Chinese of sowing distrust and even hatred for Russians throughout Africa.

The Chinese are offering the Africans a model: Reliance on their own resources, a la Peking, rather than on help from either the West or the Russians. Peking proffers technical and other help, promises "no strings," and in fact offers attractive trade prospects. Red China needs raw materials which Africa can provide.

A dozen African nations recognize Red China: Burundi, Brazzaxille Congro, Gahana, Guinea, Kenya, Mali, Morocco, Somalia, Sudan, Tunisia, the United Arab Republic and the United Republic of Tanganyika-Zanzibar. About 15 others still recognize Nationalist China. But Peking influence is growing swiftly.

Prime target is the former Belgian Congo. Nearby in Burundi, the Red Chinese are reported extremely active, and Congo Premier Moise Tschombe charges that Burundi serves as a base for a pro-Communist, pro-Peking rebellion against the Leopoldville government.

On the west of the Leopoldville Congo, a so-called National Liberation Council is set up in approved Red Chinese style in the Brazzaville Congo playing an important role in the bigger Congo.

That rebellion, based in Stanleyville, obviously takes its cues from the Red Chinese, even to the extent of naming its forces the "People's Liberation Army" and its regime "the People's Republic," in Red Chinese style.

The Red Chinese are hard at work in Tanganyika-Zanzibar to step up their influence, already felt in a leftist revolution in Zanzibar early this year.

In Kenya, Red Chinese have been reliably reported funnelling money to support anti-Western and anti-Moscow elements. Chinese diplomats in Kenya recently came under fire on charges of openly supporting the rebellion in the Congo. A high-ranking Kenyan expressed fear that the Chinese were capable of similar activity in Kenya.

Kenya appears to be becoming more and more nationalist. Jomo Kenyatta, its independence leader, has been Moscow-oriented and conceivably would dislike the results of Chinese penetration. He and other Kenyans appear intent now on a policy of Africa for Africans.

Kenya played a leading role in attempting to deal with the revolution in the Congo, sponsoring a resolution seeking conciliation efforts under the auspices of the Organization of African Unity (OAU).

Chrostophe Gbenye, who has proclaimed himself president of "the People's Republic of the Congo," said recently his movement "trusts elder statesman Jomo," but rejected the OAU resolution.

Even in Ghana, whose President Kwame Nkrumah long has expressed admiration for Soviet postures, the Chinese drive seems to have borne fruit.

When Premier Nikita Khrushchev was quoted recently as saying he had terrible new weapons, the official Ghana radio deplored the statement as one which would lead to a new arms race and said "many people may feel disillusioned and dismayed at this unfortunate turn of events."

Nkrumah's opposition — in exile—has been charging that Ghana now permits influx of Chinese money and arms for the training of rebels against the governments of Leopoldville Congo and Malawi.

In Malawi, formerly Nyasaland, Prince Minister Hastings Banda recently accused Peking of trying to bribe some of his ministres into supporting recognition of Red China.

Angola, Mozambique and other African areas can be expected to be targets of agents liberally supplied with Red Chinese money. Peking propaganda pictures such areas as ripe for "liberation."

Percy Is Man To Watch In Illinois—A Hard Driver

By JULES WITCOVER
Advance News Service

CHICAGO — The other day in the downstate Illinois city of LaSalle, a short and stocky young man with a boyish manner hopped aboard the Goldwater campaign train.

At the next whistlestop, Joliet, he mounted the speaker's rostrum and unveiled an orange ballot about four feet long. He read the first four names and the last four on a list of 118 Democratic candidates for the state legislature.

All eight, it turned out, had the same last name as the powerful Democratic Mayor of Chicago, Richard Daley. The partisan Republican crowd loved it.

CHARLES H. PERCY
Running for governor

They roared as the young man, Republican gubernatorial candidate Charles (Chuck) H. Percy, proceeded to paint his opponent, Democratic Gov. Otto Kerner, as a handpicked puppet who acts "on orders from you-know-who."

Percy's vigorous and energetic platform manner was all the more evident when the man he finally introduced, Sen. Barry Goldwater, delivered one of his standard speeches on the erosion of individual freedom in his usual rasping monotone.

But if the presidential candidate was upstaged by the gubernatorial candidate, he didn't seem to mind. Nor did it seem to bother Goldwater that Percy, in his introduction, stopped short of an all-out personal endorsement. Goldwater, for his part, went on to tell the crowd Percy would be one of Illinois' greatest governors.

The explanation for Goldwater's attitude is simple: More and more Illinois politicians are saying that Goldwater's chances of carrying Illinois this year depend on a big Percy victory in the gubernatorial race.

There is an ironic twist in Goldwater's dependency on a Percy runaway. If Goldwater loses the national election, Percy might well emerge as one of the likeliest leaders of efforts by Republican moderates to wrest national party control from the Goldwaterites.

Though he has never before run for public office, Percy has been prominent in state and national Republican Party politics for a long time.

He won national attention by becoming president of the Bell and Howell camera firm at 29, seven years after joining the company fresh out of college. Two years later he was named chairman of the board.

Percy looks to be little more than 31 today, even close up, but he actually is 45 and the father of five children, including 19-year-old twin daughters. His natural look of youth is augmented by a boyish grin, Ivy League clothes and a bouncy campus fraternity manner.

Percy's bright outlook is partly a result of his personal appeal and partly of his phenomenal business success.

Son of an accountant for Bell and Howell, Percy worked for the company as a $12-a-week apprentice on high school and college vacations.

At the University of Chicago, where he had a half-tuition scholarship, Percy set up and managed a purchasing cooperative for the schools' fraternities. The business was bringing in an annual gross of $150,000 when he graduated in 1961, leading the school's chancellor, Robert M. Hutchins, to call Percy "the richest boy who ever worked his way through college."

Actually, it didn't take Percy seven years to make it with Bell and Howell. He was elected to the board of directors at 23, after a year full-time with the firm. But he left to serve in the Navy as a seaman during World War II. Four years later when he came back he was boss.

In 1960, he was named chairman of the GOP platform committee.

His life has not been all roses. His first wife and the mother of his first three children, Jeanne, died in 1947. He remarried in 1950. His second wife, Loraine, gave him two more children, one in 1953, another in 1955.

Percy is running under the slogan "the dynamic Republican." In the Republican Party, he already is considered a veteran toiler. He started as a precinct captain after World War II and was president of the United Republican Fund in Illinois in 1959.

Percy had been riding high until the Republican National Convention in July, when the nomination of Goldwater was thought likely to jeopardize his chances as a moderate. When the Illinois delegation followed the lead of Sen. Everett Dirksen into the Goldwater camp, Percy stuck to a pledge to support the will of the delegation.

His relationship with Goldwater has been a lot easier for Percy since poll after poll in the state has shown him to be running ahead while Goldwater trails President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Percy, running long and hard in his first big race, looks and acts like a man who is not used to failing.

A-Ships' Cruise Around Globe Ushers In New Era For Navy

By JAMES FREE
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—A new era in U. S. naval history has arrived, and with relatively little notice.

It is the era of the nuclear task force, a new defense arm that has now proved itself, just as atomic-powered submarines have shown their superiority over the old within the past decade.

The final, conclusive demonstration that nuclear-propelled surface ships can perform, as Navy advocates long have claimed, came when Nuclear Task Force One wound up a world cruise last week in Norfolk, Va.

This force, the aircraft carrier Enterprise and two guided missile escorts, the cruiser Long Beach and the frigate Bainbridge, made the 30,565-mile trip in 57 days at an average speed of 25 miles an hour, and without refueling or taking on new supplies.

Rear Adm. Bernard Strean, task force commander, says the speed could easily have been stepped up to about 34 mph, which would have cut travel to 42 or 43 days.

Strean is convinced that atomic-powered ships not only can outrun and outlast conventional warships in all kinds of weather, but can outfight them as well.

The ability to go at high speed for indefinite periods means that nuclear-powered ships can move in and out of danger areas quicker, he said.

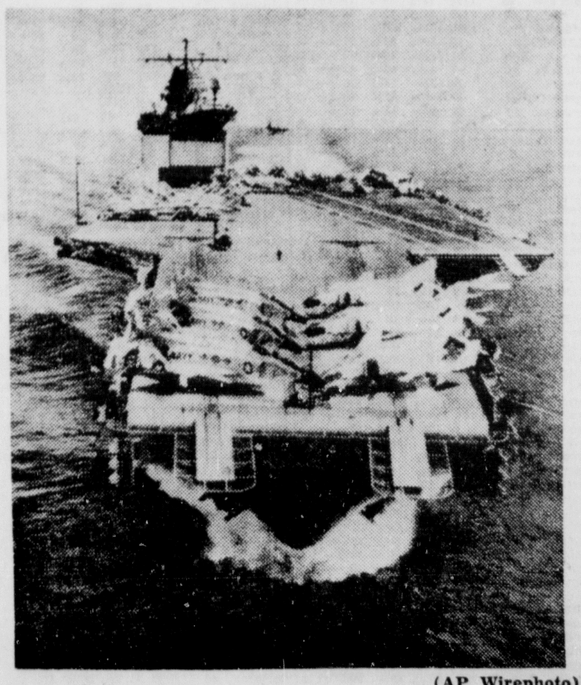

"Also," he said, "we don't expose our ships to the added hazard of being compelled every few days to bring two or more ships close together for transfer of black oil. With conventional power, our task force would have required refueling at sea every four days.

"We do not have to forage on distant islands and in distant lands for our food, as did the men on the old sailing ships. After our cruise that covered over two months, including six days in port, we had one-half of our subsistence supplies left."

Many defense strategists believe atomic-powered ships provide an answer to the problem of how to fill the power vacuum now threatened in Southeast Asia and the Indian Ocean area. Rather than risk sizable land forces where they might be overrun, the U. S. could have a nuclear task force patrol the danger zone in international waters.

The Navy long has urged an Indian Ocean fleet, and Great Britain and Australia would welcome it. Newspapers in London and Sydney have reported American-British discussions of joint bases in the Indian Ocean.

Defense officials of Pakistan and Australia are said to have been tremendously impressed by demonstrations of the task force's capability in both aircraft and guided-missile weaponry.

Theater Offers Year-Round Bill

The first-night performance of Festival Theater's production of "A Thousand Clowns" on Oct. 23 at the theater on Kensington Road, San Anselmo, will mark the beginning of year-round performances by the stage group.

Since moving from earlier "stands" in Berkeley and Lafayette, where it metamorphosed from the "Strawhatters," to the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, the Festival Theater had been a summers-only operation.

Performances of the Herb Gardner comedy will be given at 8:30 p.m. on Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, and at 7:30 p.m. on Sundays. Season tickets will go on sale soon, according to Elizabeth Berryhill, founder of the stage group.

Case Dismissed In Auto Theft

Complaint of auto theft against Harry Ernest Meeker, 27, former manager of the closed Anderson Chevrolet Co. in Novato, was dismissed yesterday by Marin Municipal Court Judge Leonard A. Thomas following a preliminary hearing.

Judge Thomas said the dismissal was because there was no evidence of a public offense having been committed.

Meeker, of 55 Crescent Drive in Novato, was arrested Sept. 25 after allegedly taking a hardtop convertible from the auto firm's own lot at Grant Avenue and First Street.

Counterfeit Bill Passed In Novato

A counterfeit $20 bill was passed Thursday in Novato and the United States Treasury Department has assumed jurisdiction in the case, according to Novato police.

Officer Otto Haiungs reported that the counterfeit bill was passed at the Safeway store in the Novato Fair Shopping Center between 6 and 10 p.m. Thursday.

"It was the same as bills passed in Palo Alto, Mountain View and San Mateo," ofifcer Haiungs said.

Today is Saturday, Oct. 10, the 284th day of 1964 with 82 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning stars are Jupiter, Mars and Venus. The evening star is Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1845, the U.S. Naval Academy was formally opened at Fort Severn, Annapolis.

In 1913, President Woodrow Wilson pressed a button in Washington which caused the last remaining obstruction in the Panama Canal to be blown up.

In 1943, Generalissimo Chaing Kai-shek was sworn in as president of China on the 23rd anniversary of the founding of the republic.

A thought for the day—English novelist Jane Austin said: "Those who do not complain are never pitied."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Take Any Reasonable Risk Rather Than Accept Defeat

"Is it necessary for a bridge player to be a mathematician?" asks a regular reader.

"We had a big argument about a hand last night, but the conversation got too mathematical for us."

Opening lead — ♠ 4

"East took the first two spade tricks and returned a low diamond. South took the ace of diamonds and led out six rounds of trumps, but nobody made a helpful discard. Declarer finally had to give up two diamonds for down one.

SET UP CLUBS

"Dummy said that South should set up the clubs. After winning with the ace of diamonds, he should take the ace of clubs, ruff a club, and lead a low trump to finesse with dummy's eight. When this works, South can ruff a club, get back with a trump to ruff another club, and get back with a trump to cash the last club.

"South said he would gain only if West had the 10 of hearts and if the clubs broke 4-3. If anything slipped, he would go down two instead of just one. In the long run, he said, it was better to settle for the smaller loss.

"Who is right?"

EVEN SHOT

If South plays the hand 10 times he will lose the finesse five times and thus go down two.

Three times out of 10 he will make his contract. The other two times the finesse will work but the clubs will break badly, so that South will go down one.

Averaging out the 10 hands, South scores plus 86 points per hand if he plays to make the contract.

MINUS 100

He scores minus 100 points per hand if he settles for down one.

Who wants to give up 186 points per hand?

You don't have to work out your chances in this way.

When you're not doubled, whether vulnerable or not, make any reasonable play that gives you a chance for your contract even if failure will cost you an extra hundred points.

QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ K 8
♥ J 9 8
♦ J 6 2
♣ A 8 6 3 2

What do you say?

Answer: Bid 1 NT.

You cannot raise with only two trumps, and the hand is not quite strong enough for a response of two clubs.

Heaviest traffic in Marin County

Each day, 84,560 readers cross over to a full view of the news . . . and of advertised values

This is one bridge that, for all its reader traffic, is never jammed. Readers move leisurely through the I-J's 8 "lanes" of news and advertising, taking in everything. Because this is THEIR BRIDGE to complete information in Marin County.

If you're an advertiser, the I-J is the ONE BRIDGE that spans the entire county . . . the direct freeway for bringing more customers at least cost to your store. Many a business has built its sales success by consistently using the I-J and nothing else.

Merchants who cannot afford weak advertising results (much less hard cash) know there's no substitute for the I-J's bonafide circulation. In the I-J, they buy EXPOSURE, not just space. They buy guaranteed, paid circulation, not a claimed figure.

And with the I-J, they find that reader interest in advertising is cabled closely to top news coverage and features. That's what makes the I-J THE BIGGEST BRIDGE, AND THE SAFEST BRIDGE, in attracting customer traffic to your store.

THE SIMPLE MATHEMATICS OF I-J READER TRAFFIC

The I-J is subscribed to by 35,271 households in Marin County (more than 2 out of every 3 homes). Each household, research shows, averages 2.4 readers of the I-J. Thus, simply by multiplying I-J circulation (35,271 households) by 2.4, you get 84,650 readers. And that's daily!

Splendorous, Moving Opening For Olympics

Independent-Journal Sports

The Competition Starts Tomorrow

TOKYO (AP)—Emperor Hirohito of Japan formally opened the Games of the 18th Olympiad today in a splendorous, moving ceremony that mixed the wonders of the modern age with the ancient pageantry of the Orient.

The 63-year-old Emperor stood ramrod-stiff and solemn in the royal box as 7,169 athletes from 94 nations paraded over the circular red dirt track of the National Stadium, which will serve as the center of the biggest Olympics of them all.

Competition begins tomorrow in basketball, field, hockey, soccer, swimming, water polo, weight-lifting and hockey, setting off two weeks of a spirited scramble for gold medals in 20 sports.

The powerful United States and Soviet teams are expected to grab off the major share of the honors in their traditional battle of sports giants, but they were given no special recognition in the colorful march behind national flags.

A packed stadium of 80,000 cheered loudly for the one-man Bolivian team, a single flagbearer, and rose to applaud the gaily, robe-clad entrants from the newly-developing nations of Africa.

"I welcome the Eighteenth Modern Olympiad and hereby declare the Tokyo Olympic Games open," the little graying Japanese Emperor proclaimed over the loud speaker system while the Olympic torch burned from atop the Eastern stands.

Strong men choked up when five jet planes traced the five rings of the Olympic symbol in the sky in five different colors and rumbling tones came from age-old Japanese drums made from cow hides.

The ceremony was carried out with clock-like precision — typical of the Japanese — in cool, sunny weather without a cloud in the sky.

Rain Disappears; Perfect Weather

The weather broke perfectly after days of rain and fog.

Emperor Hirohito, wearing a yellow flower in the lapel of his suit, never smiled during the 45 minutes of the march of athletes, but nodded as each of the 94 contingents passed his box.

There was a bit of psychological warfare which showed immediately between the rival Soviet and American teams.

The huge Russian delegation was led by Yuri Vlasov, the 305-pound world heavyweight record-holder in weight lifting who carried the Soviet's hammer and sickle insignia in one hand straight out from the shoulder.

Halfway around the track he shifted from his right to his left hand, but never once did he use both hands.

The Stars and Stripes of the United States also was carried by one of the nation's muscle men — 260-pound Parry O'Brien, double gold medalist in the shot put, competing in his fourth Olympics.

The Americans wore Western style ten-gallon hats. They were dressed in conservative white pants and skirts and blue jackets.

The men of the huge Russian squad wore continental suits with a double split in the back of their beige coats and the women in smart suits of lighter hue. They waved red handkerchiefs as they circled the track.

One of the most impressive and touching parts of the ceremony came with the raising of the Olympic flag.

The white banner with the five rings — representing five continents — was born into the stadium by six sailors and hoisted while a chorus chanted a hymn.

Theme: Faster, Higher, Stronger

The huge lighted scoreboard flashed the words: "Citius, Altius, Fortius," Latin for "Faster, Higher, Stronger." This is the watchword of this great international festival.

"We have now bridged every ocean, bringing the Olympics to the Orient," said Avery Brundage, newly re-elected president of the International Olympic Committee, "proving that the Olympics now belong to the world."

Daigoro Yasukawa, president of the Japanese Organizing Committee, welcomed the athletes and the fans and said: "The Olympics are historical and history is the best safeguard of peace."

A hush went through the stadium when Yoshinori Sakai, the 19-year-old athlete born near Hiroshima on the day the Atomic Bomb was dropped Aug. 6, 1945, dashed through the portals bearing the flame which had been brought by air, land and water from Greece's Mount Olympus, where the Games were born.

He raced over the track easily and then trotted up the 167 steps to the huge cauldron which was immediately set afire, to burn unceasingly until the Games end Oct. 24

Thousands of pigeons are released d uring Olympics opening ceremonies.

Cal Saved By A Toe, 9-7

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Craig Morton, the second best passer in college football in 1964, was forced to call on Tom Blanchfield's toe last night to salvage a 9-7 victory for California over Miami's underdog Hurricanes.

Miami's team, which has a highly sophomore tone because of the loss of 17 players through academic failure and violation of training rules, shocked the Bears by striking for the first touchdown and leading into the third period.

And when Blanchfield finally went in to boot California into the lead, it was a ground attack and not Morton's passes that moved the Bears into position.

"The boys we had left went out there to play tonight," said Miami's harried coach, Charlie Tate. "It was our best all-around performance this year, and we played an all-sophomore backfield almost the whole game."

Fred Cassidy, taking over the fullback spot from the injured Pete Banaszak, got Miami its touchdown on two brilliant option runs and accounted for 127 of the 149 yards the Hurricanes netted on the ground.

Cassidy, a 212-pound sophomore, took a pitchout from Bob Biletnikoff for a 20-yard gainer in the opening period, then grabbed another for a 25-yard touchdown dash and Miami surged to the front 7-0 as Don Cifra booted the extra point.

It was midway in the second quarter before California scored. Jerry Mosher made a beautiful diving catch of a 40-yard Morton pass at the Miami eight and caught another for the touchdown.

But Blanchfield missed the extra point and California trailed until seven minutes before the end of the third quarter, when Blanchfield got the game-winning three pointer.

Morton, completing 14 of 25 passes for 147 yards, ran his seasonal total to 68 out of 108 for 804 yards. But Miami's Pat Ratesic spoiled his record of 111 completions without an interception when he stole one in the last quarter.

The Hurricanes whacked down the average of Jack Schraub, the nation's No. 1 receiver with 22 catches for 248 yards in three earlier games. They limited him to two of 19.

49ers Asking For Trouble, Tackle Packers Tomorrow

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—The largest crowd in the city's history is expected to turn out tomorrow to watch Green Bay and San Francisco battle in National Football League action.

This is not really a tribute to the Prospectors, who bring a 2-2 record into town. It's just that enlargement of County Stadium has just been completed so that 47,000 can now cram into its seats.

Green Bay also has a 2-2 record, but rates as a heavy favorite for this one.

Defensive coach Dick Voris of the Prospectors gave the Packers any incentive they might need by stating that he did not feel the Packers were quite the team they once were.

"The Packers don't muscle people around the way they did a couple of years ago," he said. And then he added "I suppose they'll run all over us after I've said that."

Voris, who formerly coached at Green Bay, lauded the San Francisco defense for its work so far. He especially praised defensive back Jim Johnson, who weekly draws the opposition's top pass receiver. Johnson will be guarding Boyd Dowler tomorrow.

Jim Taylor, top Green Bay ground-gainer, and Henry Jordan, all-league tackle, are both supposed to play against the 49ers after suffering earlier injuries.

San Francisco also has an injured star who hopes to play. He's flanker Bernie Casey, who has been battling a leg muscle pull all week. Dale Messer will probably start in his place.

49ER TRICK?

The 49ers also may have a long-awaited trick up their sleeve here. Runback ace Abe Woodson has been working out at flanker and may see action there. If he can hold onto the ball, he should be outstanding. There's no more feared open-field runner in the league.

The 49ers will round out their backfield with quarterback John Brodie, fullback Mike Lind, and halfback Don Lisbon. The great Green Bay backfield includes Taylor, Dowler, quarterback Bart Starr and halfback Paul Hornung.

Raiders Ready, Due For First Victory

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Oakland Raiders' search for victory takes them into flashy Shea Stadium tonight and a date with the New York Jets.

Coach Al Davis says that the Raiders (0-4) are "about ready to put one together," and indeed, Oakland flashed its 1963 form only last week against Buffalo. The Raiders lost 23-20 to the undefeated Bills, but Billy Cannon dropped a sure touchdown pass in the second quarter.

Davis has been announcing a new starting quarterback almost hourly, but as of now Cotton Davidson would seem to have the nod over Tom Flores.

Two of the best Raiders of them all are banged up, but will still play. End Art Powell has a bruised thigh and linebacker Arch Matsos is slowed by a charley horse. Bill Miller probably will start for Powell.

Baseball has pretty well pushed football into the shadows today in this World Series-happy town, but a crowd of more than 35,000 is still expected to show up for tonight's grid clash.

Marin's Semi-Pro Winter League Openers Tomorrow

The 1964-65 Marin County Semi-Pro Winter Baseball League gets started tomorrow with three games spread through the county.

The Mill Valley Merchants host the Pacifica Lions at Project 17 field, the DeMaestri Fairfax Garage baseballers play against the Tiburon Sox at Memorial Park in San Anselmo, and the Indian Valley Lumber team of Corte Madera battles the Billings-Hutchison Builders at Albert Park in San Rafael.

All three games will start at 1:30 p.m. Drawing the opening round bye is the Maggi Florist team of San Anselmo.

Bud Dawson of San Jose State is slated to hurl for Pacifica, and will be opposing either Keith Fraser or Dave Perlis for Mill Valley.

Expected to pitch for DeMaestri's team is southpaw Art Meyers, probably going against righthander Lee Walker of Tiburon.

Terry Christman, a leftie, is scheduled to hurl for Indian Valley in its opener. Starting on the hill for the Builders, who won the summer Marin Semi-Pro League, will be either righthander Ron Cole or southpaw Bob DeRosa.

6,103 Watch Seals Capture Opener, 3-2

Beginning a successful defense of their Western Hockey League title, the San Francisco Seals edged Portland 3-2 last night at the Cow Palace before 6,103 fans.

Seal defenseman Dallas Smith, who came to San Francisco from Portland this season, scored the winning goal at 11:56 of the final period when he ran home a low shot from the blue line, through a screen, while the losers were shorthanded.

It was the Western Hockey League opener for both teams.

For the first time the winners were able to score on a power play after failing all exhibition season and on four previous occasions in this game.

Portland took a 1-0 lead at 17:23 in the opening period on Tom McVie's 20-foot goal, but the Seals came back to tie it when defenseman Tom Thurlby scored from the point at 13:39 in that same period.

It became 2-1 for San Francisco on Wayne Connelly's tipin of Charlie Burns' shot at :46 in the first period, only to have Cliff Schmautz deadlock it again at 10:27.

Then Smith put in the game winner.

The Seals started the games minus holdouts Del Topoll and Len Haley, but the latter signed between the first and second periods and played from that point on.

Terra Linda 'C' Cagers Nip Cats

The Terra Linda High School Class C basketball team handed Marin Catholic's team its first loss of the season Thursday when the young Trojans nipped the Wildkittens 38-36 on the winner's court.

Chris Cupples scored 19 points for T.L. in its come-from-behind victory.

Niners Tied With Packers Now, But There The Similarity Ends

Randol

It is a little shocking to realize that the San Francisco 49ers and their NFL playmates have already completed half of their scheduled games for the 1964 season. Five pre-season and four regular contests, with nine to go.

Tomorrow, in Milwaukee, the Niners come face to face with grim reality when they tangle with the Green Bay Packers. Both teams go into the game with two-won two-lost records, but there the similarity ends.

After last Sunday's win over the Chicago Bears you have to admit the possibility that the Niners can lick any club in the league, week after week. Don't go out and mortgage the house and bet on this proposition, however. There is also the possibility that the 49ers won't win another game this year.

THE ODDS are the Niners will win a few and lose a few before the end of the year, and that's good. After last season, every win from here on is gravy, and where there is gravy there must be some meat around somewhere.

Both Packer losses this year have been by one point. In each case the usually reliable toe of "Golden Boy" Paul Hornung has missed conversion attempts that would have brought ties. Unfortunately for the 49ers, Green Bay will be out to see that this game does not depend on the margin of one point.

UNFORTUNATE, too, is the return to action of big Jim Taylor, Packer fullback. With this "animal" in good health the Green Bay offense is the best in the league, and already the Packers are conceded the best defense around. That's a tough combination to beat.

Where the Packer offense picks up with the return of Taylor, the 49er offense takes a big drop with Bernie Casey either on the bench or available for limited action. If there is any question of his future involved, I hope Casey is not used at all. This young man has greatness stamped all over him and it would be wrong to jeopardize his career.

Casey's substitute, Dale Messer, is as gutsy as they come, but he will never demand the attention of two defenders as does Bernie. I have a hunch that Kay McFarland will actually put in more time than Messer, and may be the big surprise. Kay has great potential but has never had the opportunity to develop it with consistent playing time.

WHILE JOHN BRODIE is having a great year at quarterback, it would be interesting to see George Mira operating against the Packers. His quick hands, quick passes, and scrambling action are made to order for upsetting the composure of a strong defense. Should the Packers run up a lead Mira will get his chance.

Since the Vikings upset the Packers, you have to give the 49ers a chance, but the chance is slim. If the Niners must lose, let's hope they lose with dignity and honor so that the promise for the future holds bright.

WORLD SERIES, OLYMPICS AND 49ERS ON TV

Miss the televised opening ceremonies of the Olympic Games this morning? If so, you weren't alone. The big show was on from 1 to 3 a.m., a time most of us were only dreaming of the Olympics.

However, all is not lost. The ceremonies will be repeated on TV (Channel 4) at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Other TV treats tomorrow for sports fans are the World Series (9:30 a.m., Channel 4); the Packers-49ers (11:40 a.m., Channel 5) and the Kansas City-Denver AFL game (1:30 p.m., Channel 7).

Ulrich Star In Cadets' TV Victory

Roger Ulrich took a swing pass 22-yards to a third quarter touchdown and then kicked the extra point to provide the San Rafael Military Academy Cadets with the winning margin in their 19-12 triumph over St. Vincent's of Petaluma yesterday on the Cadet gridiron.

The Bay Counties League game was televised for a videotape showing at 8 a.m. today.

Ulrich's seven points gave the Cadets a 19-6 edge at the time, well beyond reach of St. Vincent's fourth quarter touchdown.

Earlier Cadet scores were by Bob Bonny on a 10-yard pass from Tom Davis after a 55-yard-run by Mel Baruh set it up and on a 65-yard pass play, Ulrich to Bill Jelden.

Terra Linda Rally Nips Novato In 20-13 Thriller

Two Big 'Breaks' Help Trojans; 4,700 Crowd

By RALPH CHATOIAN

They say football is a game of breaks—or mistakes, as some call it—and Terra Linda took advantage of two big ones last night to beat Novato 20-13 before about 4,700 fans in the San Rafael High School stadium.

Both breaks came on recovered fumbles in the second half, the first paving the way for Terra Linda's tying touchdown and extra point, and the second shutting off a Novato bid to tie the score in the closing minutes of the game.

Early in the second half, Novato's Bruce Hoddy fumbled and Terra Linda's middle guard Dennis Comgros fell on the ball on the Novato 44-yard line. Six plays later fullback Steve Frazzini punched through left guard and fought his way to a touchdown from 14 yards out. A pass from Gary Lieberman to Rick Edwards was good for the extra point, tying the score at 13-13.

Then in the fourth quarter, the Trojans of T.L. drove 50 yards in seven plays, with a pass of seven yards from Lieberman to end Bill Hall hitting for the touchdown that put the Trojans ahead, with 5:17 left in the game. The Lieberman to Edwards pass again clicked for the extra point, giving the Blue and Golds a 7-point lead.

The Hornets exploded some fine offense when they got their hands on the ball. After the return of the Terra Linda kickoff, Novato had a first down on its own 35-yard stripe. Quarterback Don Phillips skirted right end for 13 yards, moving the ball to the Hornet 48. Then on a double-reverse pass play, which saw Phillips first hand off the ball and then get it back, he threw a strike to end Ron Tieche, good for 34 yards and another first down.

A CRISP RECOVERY

Tailback Dick Otis then crashed through left tackle for 12 yards, giving the Novato boys a first down on the Terra Linda six, with still 3:14 left in the game. And then it happened. Phillips bobbled the snap from center and Terra Linda linebacker Jim Crisp fell on the ball as Phillips tried vainly to get it back. Novato never touched the ball again.

Terra Linda scored the game's first TD on its opening drive of the game, with only three minutes and seven seconds gone in the period. It was a drive that covered 66 yards in nine plays, helped by 20 yards worth of penalties against Novato. Halfback Rick Edwards scored the touchdown from 10 yards out, hitting through right tackle. Lieberman's pass for the PAT went incomplete.

ONE-MAN OFFENSE

Later in the opening stanza, Novato went ahead. Otis, a one-man offense who picked up 150 yards on the ground to lead all runners in the game, brought the crowd to its feet with a dazzling 51-yard touchdown scamper. He slashed through left tackle and then outraced the Trojan secondary. Steve Coontz added the extra point with a kick.

It was Novato's turn to get a big break in the second quarter, when Rod Moxie intercepted a Lieberman pass on the Terra Linda 42 and got as far as the 27 before being hauled down. From there, the Hornets used eight plays to drive for the tally. From the one, Otis dove into a big mass of blue-shirted Trojans and barely got over the goal line before being knocked back.

Coontz' kick was wide this time, but the Hornets had fought to a 13-6 lead before the intermission.

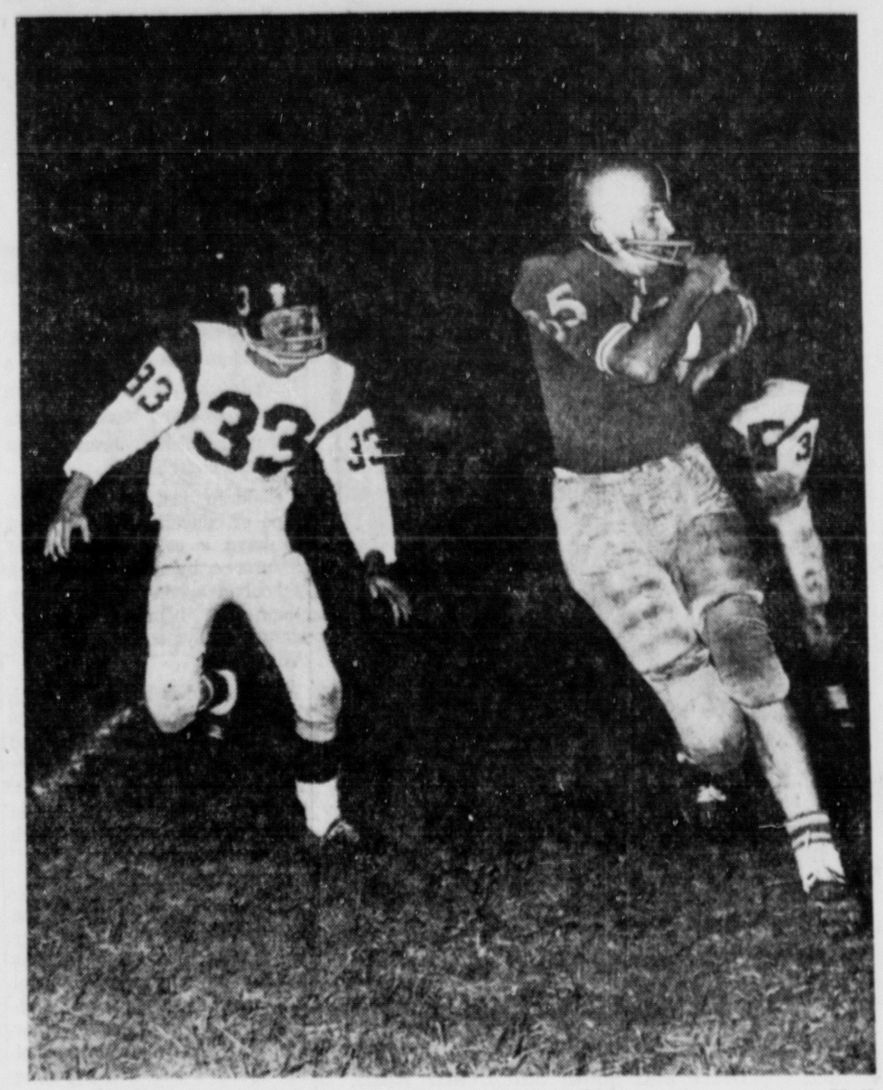

The standing room-only crowd was treated to a fine display of offense from both teams. Novato gained a total of 260 yards to 255 for Terra Linda. And that's how close the game was all the way. The amazing thing was that Terra Linda didn't lose a yard either passing or running and Novato lost only eight, and both teams have shown fine defensive platoons prior to the game. But this was a game of offense.

TOP PASSER

Lieberman, Northern California's top passer prior to the game, completed seven of 16 passes for 67 yards. Novato's defensive secondary was blanketing the Trojans' receivers for the first half, but Terra Linda hit for some key plays in the air in the second half.

The big gun for Terra Linda in its second half rally was Frazzini, a hard-runner who didn't get in one play in the first half of the game.

But when he came in fresh in the second half, it was big. In 13 carries he gained 67 yards for a 5.2 average. The Trojans' leading runner, Edwards, was held to 34 yards, but had a night's average of 4.9.

KEY PLAY—Terra Linda end Bill Hall caught this pass for key 15-yard gain during fourth period drive that resulted in winning touchdown against Novato last night. Hall, chased here by Hornet Randy Stoops, later caught TD pass as Trojans copped thrilling 20-13 victory. (Independent-Journal photo)

MARINERS CLOUTED BY AMERICAN RIVER, 44-0

By PAUL MILLER

In a game plagued by penalties, interceptions, fumbles and injuries, College of Marin last night suffered its third shutout of the season as American River Junior College besieged the Tars 44-0 at Kentfield Stadium.

Hard running, illusive Beaver halfback John Henry Lewis poured it on, scoring touchdowns in the first and third periods and two others in the fourth quarter. Sacramento halfback O'Neil Jones also chalked up a TD in the first period. Two other touchdowns were tallied in the last five seconds of the first half and of the last half by wingback Dennis Stevens and second string quarterback Dave Ellick, respectively.

Coach Dick Read's Tars performed well enough as underdogs in the first half; they held the Valley Conference favorites to two touchdowns until the final seconds of the second period. Lewis scored four plays after a costly Marin fumble on the Tar 22. His points were made on a 10-yard dash around Marin's left end. Beaver Jones got his chance after Sacramento recovered another Marin fumble on the Tar 35. He scored nine plays later on a 4-yard run.

FINEST HOUR

The game's second quarter was Marin's "finest hour" this season—but not fine enough.

Marin safety Bill Gillingham started the Tar offensive fireworks that finally fizzled out at the Beaver 10-yard line. The 170-pound speedster returned a Beaver punt from his own 3 to to Marin 49. Actually his run took him as far as the Sacramento 25. But it was ruled he stepped out of bounds at midfield. The impetus in the spectacular was all the morale the Marin offensive squad needed, and three plays later from the Marin 29 (penalties put the Tars back there) left end Frank Shippy grabbed a pass from Wisner for a 38-yard gain and a first down on the American River 37.

On the next play John Handly drove over his own right tackle to pick up 11 yards and another first down. Two plays later Wisner completed an aerial to Handly, who stretched it to the American River 10. But four uncompleted passes and Marin's most spirited offensive drive of the year went for naught.

The Tar defensive squad, overworked all evening, came in to hold the Beavers scoreless for 22 plays, 18 of them successive. But a Marin penalty in the last five seconds of the half—a fractional time period in which the Beavers had tried an unsuccessful play — allowed Sacramento the down over. It was a pass play from quarterback Bruce Lee to Stevens from the Marin 27. Stevens caught it on about the Marin 8 yard line, evaded three Marin defenders and scored. That extra, unnecessary TD was a psychological blow that probably helped account for the extraordinary score at the final gun.

A drawn out second half included nine of the contest's 25 penalties.

DEFENSIVE STARS

Outstanding defensive players included right safety Tom Corbett, a 172-pound San Francisco lad, who knocked down at least six Beaver passes and intercepted one; right end Scotty Alexander, left tackle Ed Fellows, both of whom put some bruises on Sacramento's cocky runners; Mike Congdon, although rusty from being sidelined with injuries, was in on tackles at middle guard, and the two work horse linebackers Steve Minutoli and Bill McIntyre.

Injured last night was halfback Rich Bottini, Marin's best driving back next to Handly. Bottini apparently dislocated a shoulder. Although wingback Craig Bond, an outstanding receiver when somebody can hit him with the ball or at least get it near him, sprained his left ankle, he continued to play some after it was wrapped by trainer Harry Hicklin. Whether either player will be ready for the Golden Valley Conference opener against Sierra at Auburn next Saturday remains to be seen.

Two Marin Prep Grid Games Tonight

San Rafael-Tam Clash At Bulldogs' Stadium

The San Rafael High School Bulldogs will play their first Marin Athletic League football game of 1964 tonight when they host the Tamalpais Indians at 8 o'clock on the S.R. field.

Drawing the opening round league bye, the Bulldogs looked sharp last Friday when they bombed St. Mary's of Berkeley 34-6 in a practice game. Tam, meanwhile, was taking it on the chin from Terra Linda, 28-6.

"It can go either way," said San Rafael head coach Bob Muster. "Tam's got good speed and they throw good. We have a lot of respect for that boy (halfback Mike) Holloway."

Holloway is Tam's breakaway threat, both on running and pass plays. He scored the Indians' lone touchdown last week on a long pass play of 61 yards, with quarterback Randy Fontan supplying the bomb. Fontan, Barry Warnock and Will Stubblebine shuttle in-and-out at the QB spot, and all can pass good.

San Rafael has two boys on the doubtful list, fullback Scott Bell with an injured knee and defensive back Dave Cooley who is trying to shake the flu bug. Muster rates Cooley as the best defensive back in the league.

A junior varsity game between Tam and S.R. will start at 5:45 p.m.

A WOMEN'S WORLD

Gals Cop Spotlight In Bowling And Angling

Two women bowlers at Greenbrae Lanes cracked the pins for 600 series to highlight the past week's league action.

Lil Scotto of the Nite Owlers League had a 614 set that was topped by a 239 game, and Marilyn Epidendio had a 611 series and a 242 line in the He's and She's Doubles. In another league, Marilyn came back with a 233 game, that was in the Ladies 620 Scratch.

Roy Deffner of the 905 Classic League rolled a 630 series that included games of 210 and 223 to lead the men.

Deffner's series was just one pin higher than Jim Kilpatrick Jr. of the Strugglers League. His 629 set included games of 210 and 220. Fred Ness of the 905 Classic had high game, a 244.

JO LYNAM of 51 San Marino Drive, San Rafael, is a gal who sure knows how to fish.

She proved that when she caught a 55-pound, 3-ounce salmon to take top fish honors in the last week of the Schenley Sportsmen's Club salmon contest. Jo caught the beauty south by southeast of the Lightship on Sept. 25.

Sausalito police chief Howard Goerndt was another winner for the week, ticketing a 37-pound, 3-ounce salmon near the Lightship on Sept. 26.

Other Marin County winners included Bill Holt of 391 Hibiscus Street, San Rafael, a 35-pound salmon caught near the Lightship on Sept. 26, and Else Sorensen of Ross, a 36-pound, 5-ounce winner caught near Rocky Point on Oct. 3.

Freshmen Football

Armindo Candido, Larry Bresnan and Don Alvarado each scored two touchdowns to lead Drake to a 39-13 victory over Marin Catholic and Terra Linda blanked Novato 14-0 yesterday in Marin Athletic League freshmen football action.

Drake-Marin Catholic In Kentfield Tussle

It's out of the frying pan and into the fire for the Marin Catholic Wildcats tonight when they tangle with the Drake High School Pirates in Marin Athletic League football action, 8 o'clock in College of Marin stadium.

The Wildcats were drubbed 43-0 last week by Novato High and things won't get much better tonight. Drake, pre-season pick to win the league title, won its league opener last Saturday against Redwood, 28-6.

Drake has only one lineup change from its starting offensive unit of last week. Richard Cohen, a 190-pounder, will replace John O'Mara (200) at right tackle.

"It was definitely our best game of the season," said Drake head coach Bob Franceschini about last week's win. "Our passing was good, and it's improving all the time."

Although the Drake-Redwood game was a rough one, with the boys hitting hard, the Pirates came out with no major injuries.

"You have to remember," said Franceschini, "the last two years we played Marin Catholic they were both close games."

A junior varsity game will precede the varsity at 5:45.

Probable starting offensive lineups for the game:

Most Protestant Churches Facing Cash Crossroads

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The next few weeks will be a crucial period for thousands of Protestant churches from coast to coast.

They will be conducting their annual membership canvasses to obtain pledges of financial support for the coming year.

The results of the fall Every Member Canvass determine whether a church will have enough income to do a good job in its own community and make a decent contribution to missions; or whether it will stagger from one financial crisis to another, depending on bake sales and bazaars to pay the pastor's salary and keep the roof repaired.

Church members react in a wide variety of ways to the canvass appeal.

Some refuse to sign pledge cards. They say they do not like to be tied down to a promise to give the church a specific amount each week. "We'll give what we can," they assure the canvass committee member who calls at their door.

This usually means that they will drop a dollar bill in the collection plate when they come to church—which is by no means a regular occurrence.

At the other extreme are those who take seriously the Christian teaching that none of us owns anything outright. We are merely "stewards," or trustees, of the time, talent and money which has been placed at our disposal, and are responsible before God for the unselfish and constructive use of all these resources.

Members of this group usually pledge a definite percentage of their income to the church. Many set aside 10 per cent or more for contributions to the church and to other worthy causes, such as the community Chest. This is called tithing. The Bible speaks of it as the minimum standard of giving.

Between the tithers who give 10 per cent and the tip-givers who toss a dollar into the collection plate are the great middle class of church members. They sign pledge cards, because they recognize an obligation to pay dues to the church just as they pay dues to a lodge, country club or bowling league. But their pledges seldom bear any realistic relationship to their incomes.

Denominational reports compiled by the National Council of Churches show that giving in major Protestant bodies averages out to less than $75 per year per member. Even when allowance is made for the fact that wives and teen-agers as well as heads of families are represented in this average figure, it is not a very impressive testimonial to protestant stewardship.

Although the Catholic Church does not publish comparable figures on giving, it is a common complaint among Catholic bishops that Catholics are even less generous than Protestants in support of the church.

Perhaps the most vivid way to depict the level of giving to churches is to imagine that every church member in the United States was suddenly bereft of all income and assets, and placed on public relief.

Now suppose that each church member—subsisting on the average welfare payment—began to give a tithe of this meager sum.

The income of America's churches, under those circumstances, would be about 35 per cent greater than it is now.

Farewell Dinner Scheduled

A dinner and farewell service for Dr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Brown will be held at he First Baptist Church of San Anselmo at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday under the direction of Mrs. Ralph E. Ford, social chairman. Soloists for the evening will be Mr. Charles Prescott and Mrs. George Hardisty.

Dr. Brown has been an interim pastor at the church for the past four months.

The missionary couple has served 36 years in the Congo. Of their five sons (four of whom were born in the Congo), two are missionaries to the Congo; the others are pastors and teachers.

Dr. and Mrs. Brown will be residing in Santa Cruz after their last meeting at the church on Oct. 21.

City Planner To Address Congregation

Planning consultant Lawrence Livingston Jr.—who has worked on long-range plans for many Bay Area communities—will be the guest speaker at tomorrow's 10 a.m. service of the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Marin.

The service will be held in the Tamalpais Centre Women's Club, Kentfield, according to Rev. Karel F. Botermans, minister.

Livingston "will share with us his concern over the current change in our established cities through suburban migration and urban sprawl, and its effect on the human and spiritual values traditionally associated with great cities," the minister reported.

Sunday school registration will be held at Ross Nursery and Olney Hall, College of Marin, from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. tomorrow. Seventh and eighth graders will meet at 5 p.m. in the Tamalpais Centre Women's Club to hear Dr. Botermans speak on Unitarianism, and to have a sack supper.

Radio Man To Speak At Men's Fellowship

Guest speaker for Thursday's dinner of the Men's Fellowship at the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo will be William Mansdorfer, director of communications for the Family Station radio network and volunteer counselor at San Quentin Prison.

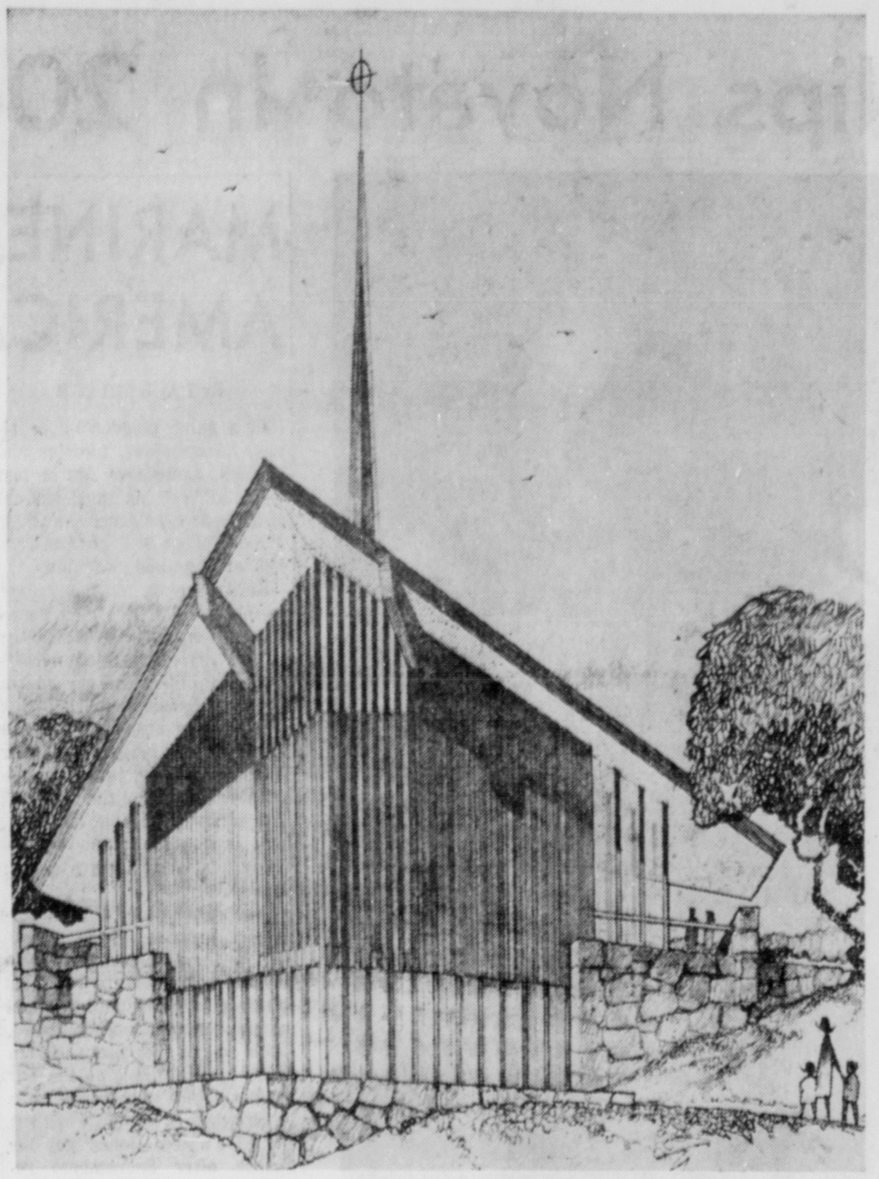

All men are invited to the dinner meeting, with reservations requested in advance through the church offices.

Baha'i Organizing Adult, Youth Classes

Baha'i study groups for children and adults are being organized in Marin County, according to member George Barker.

The children's class will open for pre-school age to 15 years, at 10 a.m. tomorrow, featuring teaching about the world's great religions. The class will be conducted at 248 Mount Shasta Drive, Lucas Valley.

The adult study class is being organized to meet Thursdays at 11 a.m. in the residence of Miss Dorothy Smithson, 1118 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Apt. B., Kentfield.

OVERLOOKING BAY — St. Luke Presbyterian Church will hold groundbreaking ceremonies tomorrow for this $117,000 sanctuary building, on a knoll at Bayview Drive and South San Pedro Road. Architect is Donald Powers Smith, of Archistructure, Inc.

St. Luke Presbyterian To Break Ground For Sanctuary Tomorrow

Church and civic dignitaries will participate tomorrow in groundbreaking ceremonies for the sanctuary of St. Luke Presbyterian Church in San Rafael.

The rites will be held following the 9:30 a.m. worship service, according to the church's minister, the Rev. Henry Kent.

When completed, the sanctuary will seat 230 worshippers in a semicircle on the main floor; a lower floor will contain a multi-purpose room designed for use as church school, board meeting room and site of wedding receptions. The location at the corner of South San Pedro Road and Bayview Drive is a knoll overlooking the Loch Lomond area and San Pablo Bay.

"Since the church is in county territory," Rev. Kent explained, "greetings will be brought by Byron Leydecker" of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, at the groundbreaking. Howard Robie, director of new work for the Presbytery of the Redwood of the United Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.; contractor's representative William Horstmeyer, and others will participate.

Chairman of the church's building committee is Dr. Bert C. Corona, superintendent of schools for San Rafael; chairman of the board of trustees for the church is Gordon Zimmerman.

The public is invited to the groundbreaking, Rev. Kent said.

Methodist District Ballots Proposition 14 Opposition

Fifty Methodist ministers and laymen—including Marin County members—recently voted 37 to one, with 12 abstaining, on a resolution condemning Proposition 14 on the Nov. 3 ballot.

The action came at a meeting of the Redwood Empire District of the church, held in Napa County, according to Richard H. Walsh of Santa Rosa, district superintendent. The district comprises 48 churches in Marin and six other counties extending along the coast to the Oregon border.

Walsh pointed out that the California-Nevada Conference of the Methodist Church took a stand opposing Proposition 14 at its annual session in June.

The world-wide General Conference on Methodism in Pittsburgh, Pa., meeting last June, passed a statement on church and race, with which the two-state conference stand agrees, in urging a "no" vote on the California proposal to amend the state constitution to block any further fair housing attempts in waterfront area.

Film To Remind Of Massacre Of 5 Missionaries

The dramatic filmed story of the massacre of five young missionaries who were killed by the Aucas Indians of South America, will be shown at the Christian Church, 50 Ranchitos Road, San Rafael, at 7 p.m. tomorrow.

"Through Gates of Splendor" contains much film taken by the missionaries themselves before they were martyred. It is narrated by Betty Elliott, who took her daughter to live among the Indians after they had murdered her missionary husband.

The public is invited to the film showing, according to the church's pastor, Rev. Dennis B. Rickard.

The church's youngsters also are scheduled for a special event at 10 a.m. tomorrow, when a photographer will take a picture of the entire church school assembly, Rev. Richard said.

Layman's Sunday

Layman's Sunday services tomorrow at the First Baptist Church in San Anselmo will feature an 11 a.m. sermon by attorney George D. Hardesty.

His theme will be "A layman views tragedy and success."

Missionaries To Review Efforts

Just returned from missionary service in Bolivia, the Rev. and Mrs. Leland Good will be pulpit guests of the San Rafael Assembly of God at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The church is at 517 D Street.

The missionary couple will show slides of their work as Assemblies of God missionaries in the South American town of Cochabamba, according to Rev. Lester H. Sheets, pastor of the San Rafael church.

Rev Good attended San Francisco Baptist College and Bethany Bible College in Santa Cruz. Educated in Washington and Oregon colleges, Mrs. Good has shared with her husband in evangelistic and pastoral duties throughout the western states, before becoming missionaries.

The church service is open to the public.

Tam Valley Cleric To Test New Church School Concept

Youngsters Will Study Near Home

A home church school for children has been established in Tamalpais Valley.

The idea is to bring youngsters into one home within a three-block radius of their own homes, to learn basic concepts about the Bible, Jesus Christ and the church.

Children just beginning this type of education are expected to have a certain amount of assurance by attending church school in a home not far from their own homes, said Rev. James E. Symons of Tamalpais Valley.

The school is being held each Wednesday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bailey on Bay View Road. It is sponsored by the St. Andrews United Presbyterian Church of Marin City, of which Symons is a pastor.

"After six weeks," said Symons, "we hope to grade the children from this introductory home church school to regular Sunday morning church school at Marin City. The program, expected to be enlarged to other homes in the valley, is part of the church's idea of integrating church work in the two communities.

Teachers are Jeff Goldsmith, a San Francisco Theological Seminary student; Dolores Magee, a college student who lives in Marin City; Mrs. Harry Bailey, a teacher at Marin Montessori School Inc. in San Rafael, and Symons.

Two Decades Celebrated By Seminary

The institution's first Founder's Day was commemorated on the campus of Golden Gate Seminary on Wednesday.

Featured speaker was Dr. I. B. Hodges, founder and first president of the seminary. Now a Bay Area resident, Hodges became a California resident in 1935 and in 1944, led in the organization of the theological school in Oakland.

Special greetings at the Founder's Day services were brought by Reverend J. L. Brantley, pastor at Bakersfield, and a seminary trustee from 1945 to 1964.

Presiding at the twentieth anniversary observance was Dr. Harold K. Graves, who became the third president of the seminary in 1952.

The first meeting of the seminary Development Advisory Council was held on the campus and the Executive Committee of the school's trustees met this week. Chairman of the trustees is Dr. Elwin L. Skiles, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Abilene, Texas.

Catholics Come Upon Lean Times In India

PANJIM, Goa (UPI) — The Roman Catholic Church in this former Portuguese territory faces difficult times because of the loss of Portuguese patronage since India took the area in 1961.

In an exclusive interview with United Press International, Auxiliary Bishop Francisco Xavier da Piedade Rebello of Goa denied reports of religious persecution by India, whose troops captured the area Dec. 18, 1961, ending 450 years of Portuguese rule.

Bishop Rebello said that under Portuguese rule the church received nearly $10,000 monthly from Lisbon for upkeep of the dozens of Roman Catholic churches in Goa, one of which (Basilica of Bom Jesus) contains the sacred remains of St. Francis Xavier.

"Now that is all gone and the church is trying to be self supporting," Bishop Rebello said. "There is a great need for help."

The problems of maintenance and support which now face the 300,000 Catholics in Goa are apparent when one sees the magnificent churches which stud this land of green fields and palm trees.

Inside such ancient churches as the Church of Our Lady of the Immaculate Conception, the beautiful white chapel of St. Catherine, and the Church of Our Lady of Divine Providence lies a treasure of frescoes and sculpture in silver and gold which forms the heritage of Portuguese rule dating back to the time Vasco de Gama discovered the sea route to India.

"But the fact there no longer is patronage does not mean there is persecution by the Indian government," Bishop Rebello said.

"Here and there we have some misunderstandings, particularly about properties and the rights of the church," the Bishop said during the interview in his ornately furnished apartments in the immense Patriarchal Palace.

"They, India, do not interfere with our religious ceremonies, however."

Bishop Rebello referred to an earlier official statement in which he said that "the Catholics in Goa have full freedom in the practice of their religion."

In the same statement issued Sept. 25, the Bishop said "that by the grace of God there is no persecution of the Catholic religion in Goa."

Bishop Rebello said that during his 1963 visit to Goa, the late Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru promised financial assistance for restoration of Catholic church buildings for the exposition of the body of St. Francis Xavier which will commence Nov. 24.

"New Delhi has agreed and is now assisting in repairs of some churches in preparation for the exposition," the Bishop said.

St. Francis Xavier, known as the Apostle of the Orient, was a Jesuit priest born of a noble family in Navarre, Spain, on April 7, 1506. Making Goa his headquarters, he travelled throughout Asia to Japan commencing Sept. 20, 1542. He died in 1552 in China.

The body of St. Francis Xavier, still miraculously intact, has been in Goa since March, 1554. It had been packed in salt in China, according to legends, until it could be moved to Goa. The body was rested in the Basilica of Bom Jesus since 1924.

The Indian government is concentrating its repair work on the Basilica of Bom Jesus, where the body rests in an elaborately carved silver casket from Florence. It also is cleaning the Cathedral of Goa, where the body will be taken in its crystal glass inner coffin in solemn procession on Nov. 24.

The government is also cleaning some buildings in the old Goa area to impress Goans and foreigners participating in the exposition ceremonies with improvements made by the new rulers of Goa.

"Can you imagine, this is about the 15th exposition and this will be the first time it has ever been filmed," said a government official recently while explaining plans of the government to film the procession and exhibition in color.

But Bishop Rebello emphasizes that the present assistance in maintenance of the churches "is specifically one time help and no further help is expected."

"Excuse my halting English," said the Bishop whose silver grey hair shone under his red hat of office. "But we spoke Portuguese until recently, you know."

"It was very favorable before," he said reminiscing about the days of Portuguese rule. "But all that is gone now."

WHERE DO THEY COME FROM?
(we refer to home buyers)

- The largest percentage of home buyers (71.9%)* who buy homes in the Novato Area are ALREADY living in Marin County.
- And the PRIME MEDIUM for reaching Marin families is the Independent-Journal, COVERING 2 OUT OF EVERY 3 HOMES in the county.
- The I-J daily circulation in Marin County is GREATER than that of the San Francisco Chronicle and the Examiner COMBINED.
- In the I-J, your sales message goes where the GREATEST NUMBER of BUYERS are.
- NO WASTE — NO HIGH-PRICED SPACE GOING TO NON-PRODUCTIVE AREAS.
- The Prime Market then, for home sales, is Marin itself . . . and the I-J Classified "gets home" to the people who buy the MOST HOMES in Marin . . . Marin families themselves.
- SOURCE: "A Survey on the Origins of Home Buyers in Marin County," conducted by the Marin County Abstract and Title Company.

- The I-J daily circulation in Marin County is GREATER than that of the San Francisco Chronicle and the Examiner COMBINED.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Treatment Of Angina Pectoris Has Changed Little Over Years

VAN DELLEN

The treatment of angina pectoris has changed little since the turn of the century. Victims of this condition develop chest pain after excitement, exercise, or overeating. They obtain immediate relief when a nitroglycerine tablet is placed under the tongue. This remedy is one of many organic compounds (nitrites) that relaxes the coronary arteries and relieves heart paint.

Amyl nitrite was the first to be used. It is a highly volatile, fruity-pungent liquid that was available in a fragile glass vial. It was placed in a handkerchief, crushed, and inhaled. Nitroglycerine has replaced the vials because tablets are easier to carry and use.

NITROGLYCERINE is used occasionally to prevent as well as to ease attacks. This is done by placing a tablet under the tongue on leaving for work in the morning, making it possible to walk to the station without developing pain at the halfway mark.

Physicians may recommend a tetranitrate or a product such as Nitroglyn that provides weaker but a more prolonged relaxation of the coronary arteries. These medications are available in ordinary and in long-acting or timed release tablets. They are said to offer protection for a longer time but many sufferers still prefer the old reliable, nitroglycerine.

NEWER REMEDIES include operations that improve circulation to the heart muscle. These procedures are recommended only when the attacks occur frequently and are disabling. A two or three week rest in bed helps others in this category.

Sedatives are useful when chest pain follows excitement. These individuals should avoid situations that bring anger, anxiety, or frustration. Cold winds also encourage the pangs. This is offset by holding a scarf over the mouth or wearing a heated mask when walking in winter gales. Smaller meals cause less distress than larger ones.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.)

DRYING DRUGS

R. D. writes: I'm 17 and perspire excessively over all parts of the body. I read of a drug that dries out the pores. Would this be a solution to my problem?

REPLY

Probably not, because these drugs have side reactions that are just as uncomfortable as excessive sweating. Send stamped, self - addressed envelope for leaflet on excessive perspiration.

MOLE ON NOSE

R. D. writes: I'm 15 years old and have a mole on the tip of my nose that has grown along with me through the years. It is quite large now and gives me a stupid look. What can be done about it?

REPLY

There are moles and moles. Some can be removed easily whereas others are more difficult and risky to eliminate. Consult your physician on this question.

HAIR-PULLER

Mrs. J. writes: My 14-year-old daughter continues to pull out her hair. Can the family doctor break the habit or does this girl need a psychiatrist?

REPLY

Why not ask your family doctor? If he does not feel capable of helping the child, he will recommend a psychiatrist.

The swimming pool of the Tiburon peninsula club will remain open all winter and club members plan a full round of activities.

The heated pool will be open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. each day. From November through March members may bring guests with out paying a fee for them, directors decided last night.

Two Drunken Drivers Fined

Two persons were fined in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for drunken driving.

Isabel Hall Hood, 56, of 73 Hazel Avenue, Mill Valley, was fined $166. She was arrested Aug. 28 by Mill Valley police on Edgewood Avenue.

Everard James Woods, 62, Sonoma, was fined $276. He was arrested Oct. 8 by Marin County sheriff's officers on Highway 101.

In Collier-Seminole State Park, 17 miles east of Naples, Fla., on U.S. 41, is a memorial to the men who built the Tamiami Trail in the 1920s. It is one of the dredges used to fill for the highway's base.

Negro Middleclass Is On Rise Throughout Nation

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.

(Last in a series)

YOUNG

The best answer to the fable that "Negroes don't do anything to help themselves" is the story of the significant rise of the Negro middle-class.

The riots in Harlem, Rochester, and New Jersey cities have tended to obscure the fact that only a fraction of Negro citizens had anything to do with them. The first bulwark against such disorders is equal opportunities, the chance for Negro families to earn a place in the sun for themselves and their children.

Millions have already done so. They have fought their way out of poverty and ignorance and today are on the road to greater prosperity and shouldering a larger part of the burdens and obligations of citizenship from paying taxes to voting and attending PTA meetings.

The number of Negroes whose incomes exceeded $4,000 rose dramatically between 1949 and 1959, Census Bureau reports show. In New York City, the number jumped from 10,995 to 198,905. In Cincinnati, it grew from 750 to 13,224; in Philadelphia from 3,805 to 74,567; in Chicago, from 10,045 to 147,414; in Baltimore from 2,280 to 36,351; in Houston from 1,085 to 17,772 and in Washington, D. C., from 1,300 to 27,168.

Across the nation, Negro parents struggled to see that their children had the opportunities which they themselves had been denied.

Whereas only 28 per cent of all dwellings occupied by Negroes in 1950 were classified as "standard" by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, 10 years later this figure stood at 56 per cent. Among Negro homeowners, (you know, the people who are supposed to lower property values,) the percentage of sound homes soared from 33 to 63 per cent—a greater gain than among white homeowners, among whom the percentage of sound homes rose from 71 to 90 per cent.

What kind of people comprise the bourgeoning new Negro middle-class? An excellent example, I think, are the Henry C. Joneses of Louisville, Ky., named the Urban League "Family of the Year." Jones, 64, has just retired from the post office after 41 years as a clerk. His wife worked catering dinners, and together they put three sons and two daughters through college and guided a fourth son into an Army career.

Among the Jones children are Dr. John H. Jones, 40, of Dayton, Ohio, a medical doctor and World War II veteran; Louis C. Jones, 38, medical technician at Kaiser Hospital, Oakland, Calif.; M/Sgt. George R. Jones, 36, Los Angeles recruiting officer; Mrs. Gilmer Mae Callender of Brooklyn, formerly an assistant college administrator; The Rev. William Jones, 31, Unitarian minister and Harvard Phi Beta Kappa who is lecturing at Washington's Howard University this fall, and Mrs. Lela Belle Wise of Brooklyn, an RCA employee married to a rising junior executive.

The children now have families of their own. They were raised in a house where education and spiritual values flourished. "I put my last dime into them," Jones says. "I always felt that to give them a good education was more important than giving them money. They could squander money, or be defrauded or lose it. But education cannot be taken away."

In virtually one generation, four out of every 10 Negro families—people like the Joneses—have pulled themselves out of poverty, and the march to full citizenship and prosperity is underway. But others must have the chance, which, in today's world, means a crack at a good education, a decent house, a good street, and the opportunity to train and find work.

Barney West New Complaint Is Ordered

Filing of an amended complaint in the case of Barney West, 42-year-old tiki carver charged with building and zoning violations of Sausalito city ordinances, was ordered yesterday by Marin Municipal Court Judge Leonard A. Thomas following a hearing on a demurrer.

The demurrer by A. Leonard Bjorklund Jr., Sausalito attorney representing West, maintained the original complaint was not sufficiently specific.

West was charged with building onto an ark at the foot of Mono Street on railroad-leased property without a building permit, and with occupying the land and a building for business without a zoning or occupancy permit.

Leland H. Jordan, Sausalito city attorney, agreed to amend the complaint.

Marin County's Rugged Western Shore

Double Point dominates the shoreline in the center of this picture.

Nearby is the rolling table land of Bolinas Mesa, laced with roads and dotted with farm houses. That white building near the center of the plain is the RCA short wave station.

Beyond Double Point the aerial photo gives a sweeping view of Drakes Bay. It and the long Point Reyes Beach beyond are part of the New Point Reyes Station National Seashore.

Inverness Ridge, covered with pines, bays and oaks, stands out as the darkest area of the picture. Beyond the ridge in the upper right of the photo is Tomales Bay.

Formed by a fault line, it is easy to see its direction, pointing northwest toward Bodega.

This block of land, from Bolinas, which is out of the picture below, to the north point of the Peninsula, is said by geologists to have migrated northward through eons of time.

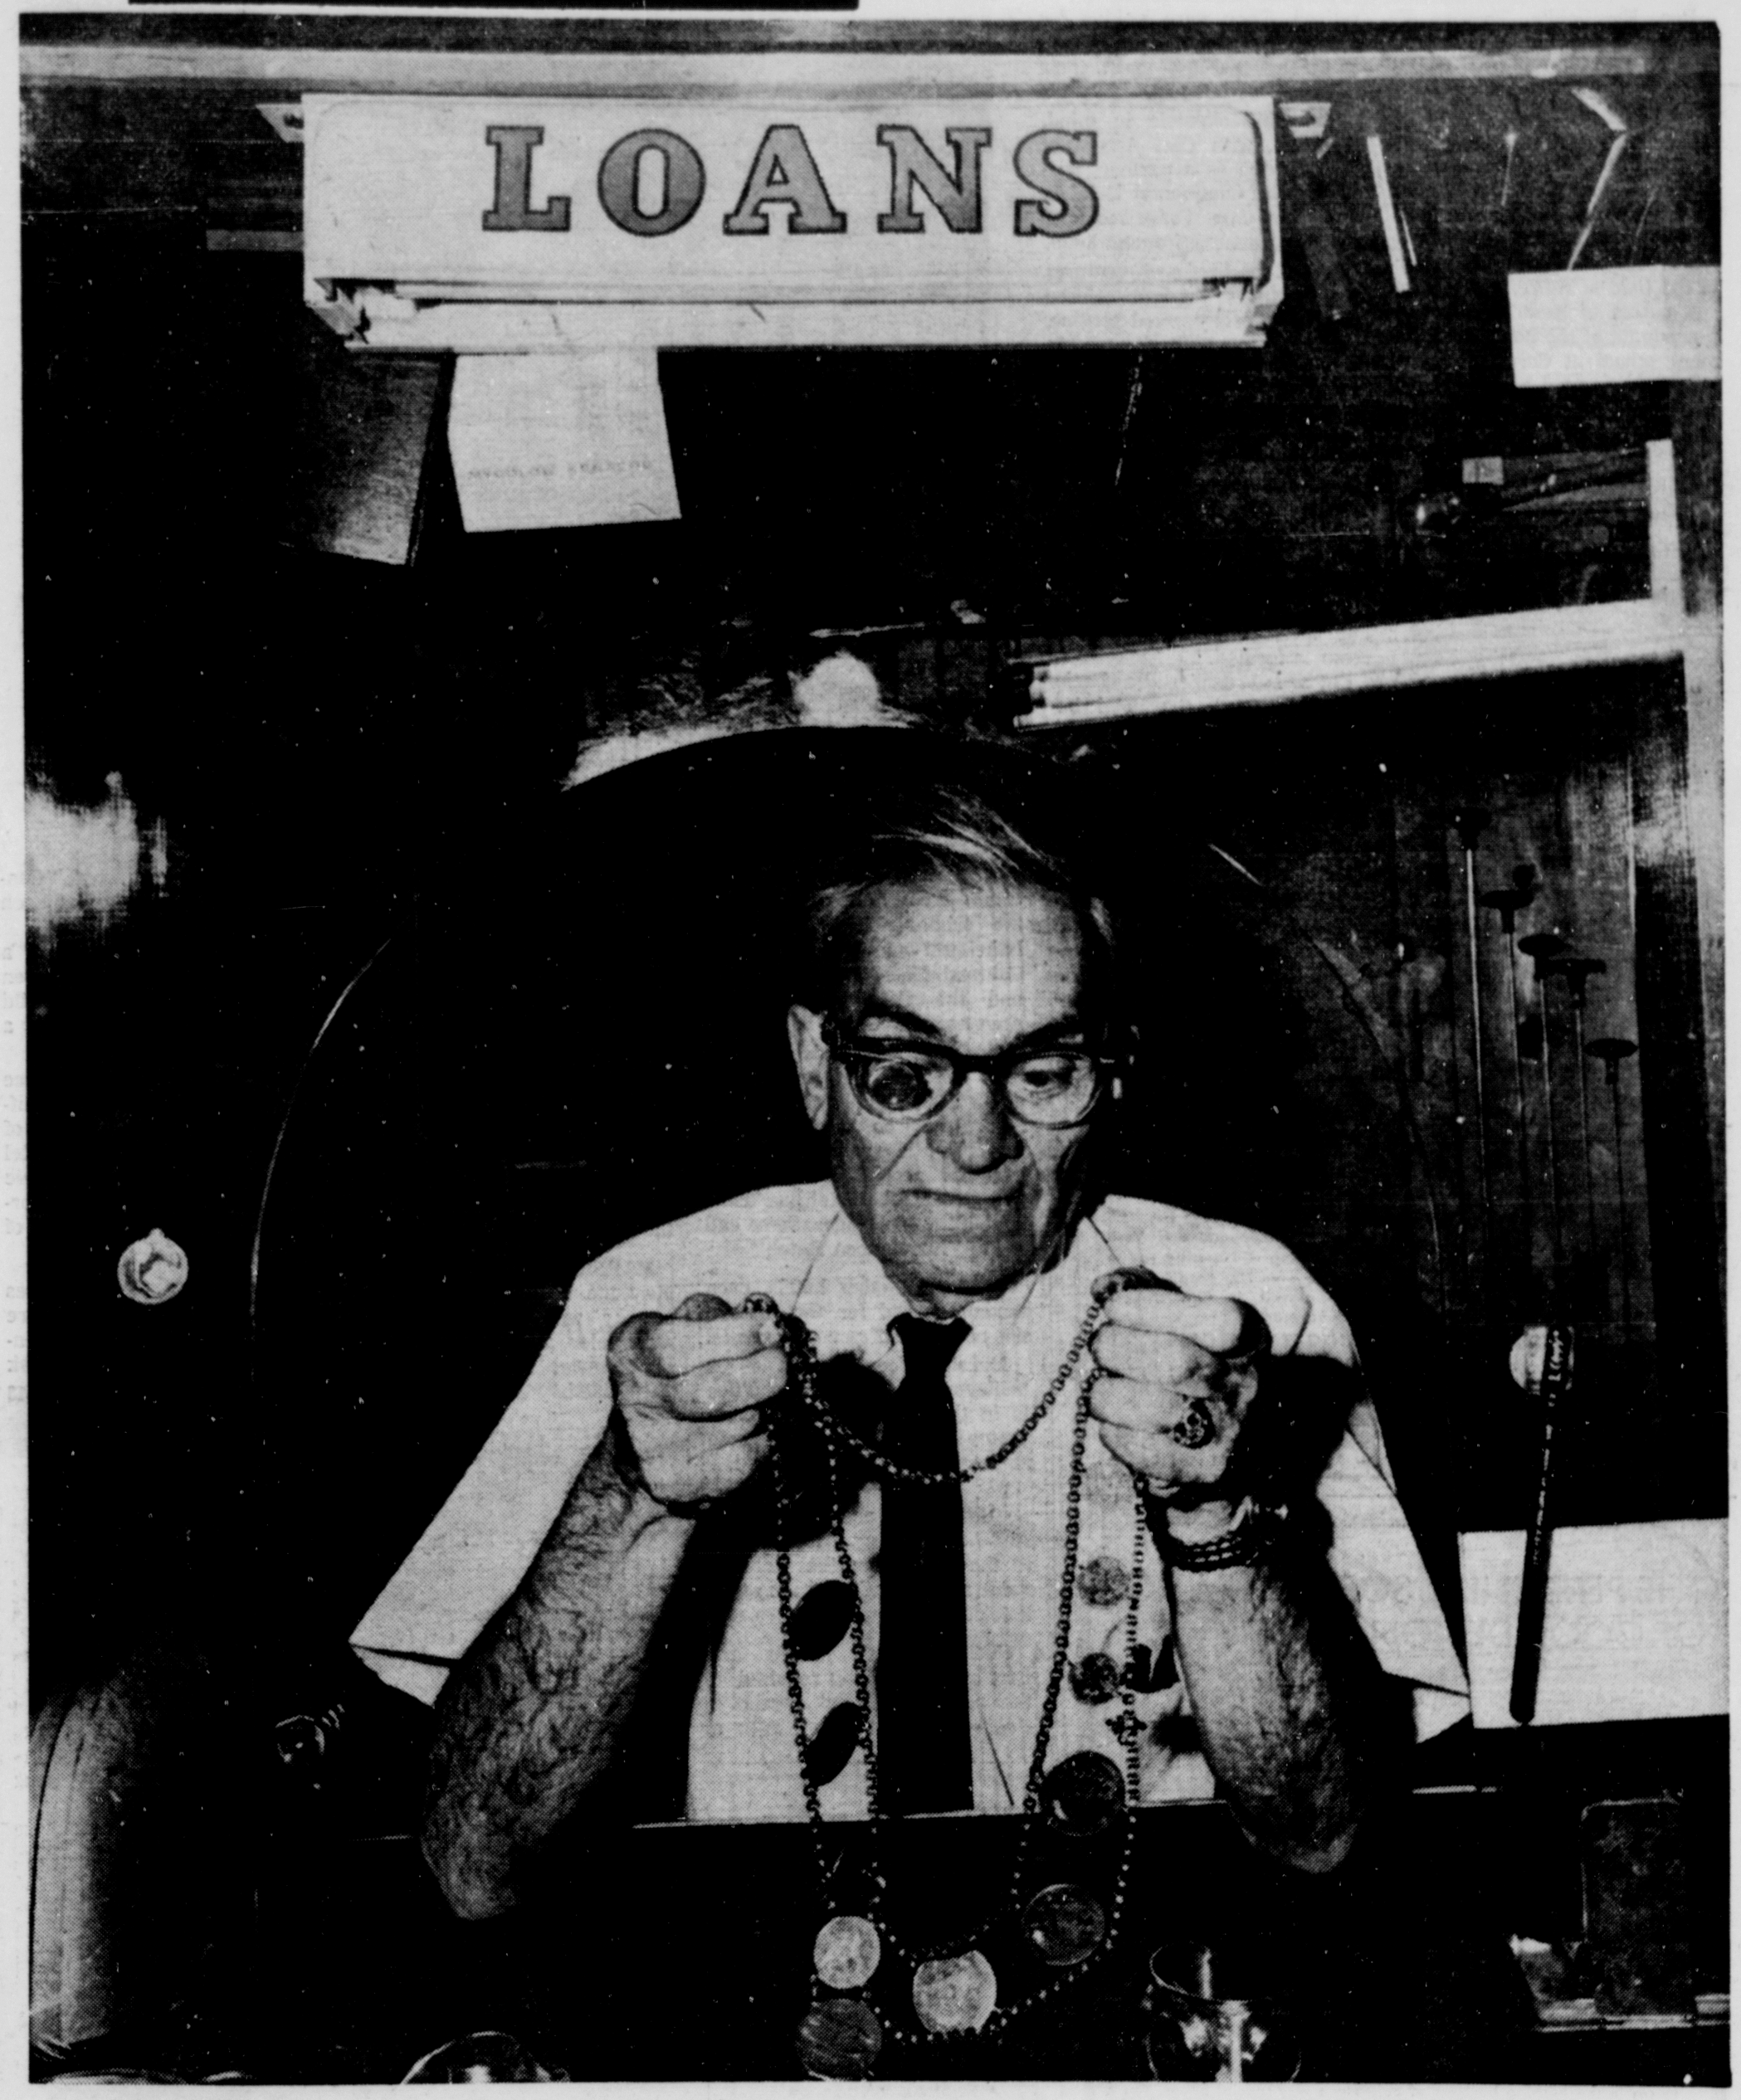

The granite is of the same composition as that found in the Tehachapi Range. If the theory is true, this chunk of real estate has traveled along the San Andreas Fault about 300 miles.

The Bolinas Mesa thrusts up sea cliffs at the shore, making Marin's coastline here look much like the coast in Oregon and Washington.

He Pioneered Retirement Hotels

Marshall's Young Energy Helps Older Citizens

WHERE GAMBLE paid off for Thomas C. Marshall of Kentfield was in the purchase of the Continental Hotel in San Francisco for conversion to a retirement hotel. The idea brought success and has been enthusiastically adopted by other hotel men across the nation.

For Kentfield's Thomas C. Marshall, success in the hotel business came with an idea he developed at the age of 27.

That was only eight years ago, but since then, Marshall has seen his idea grow into a chain of hotels, and other hotel men across the nation have copied him with enthusiasm.

Marshall, now 35, is a pioneer in the field of retirement hotels.

A native of New Mexico and a graduate of the hotel management school at Cornell University, he managed several California hotels before getting his idea.

HE NOTICED, during this work, that many patrons were retired. They were looking for a comfortable place to stay with rates that did not upset their fixed-income budgets.

With this clientele in mind, Marshall, with Carl Arnold of Hillsborough as a partner, purchased the Continental Hotel in downtown San Francisco and turned it into a retirement hotel.

One of the first such ventures in the country, the hotel offered two meals a day, maid service, well-kept rooms and monthly parties and entertainment all for $95 a month.

THE VENTURE was a gamble that had some shakey moments for the partners.

"When we purchased the hotel it had been a hangout for the fight and theater crowds," he said. "Pigeons roosted in an upstairs hallway and a nightclub had operated where our dining room is located."

But as soon as these drawbacks were corrected, the hotel became a success almost at once.

The hotel attracted a more permanent resident. Marshall and his partner found that they could count on a much higher than normal percentage of occupany. In fact, with the reasonable rate, they had to count on 90 per cent occupancy to make an economic success of the venture. In the hotel business, this is a high rate, but the Continental met it.

THOMAS C. MARSHALL
His Idea Successful

THE CONTINENTAL was the start of a venture that has grown into the Continental Pacific Hotel Chain, a corporation. It includes the original Continental, the Lakehurst and the Claridge in Oakland, Hotel Fresno in Fresno and the Commodore in Los Angeles.

Marshall, who heads the chain, does not rule out young residents. The Lombard Hotel in San Francisco, also part his endeaver, is geared for young business people. In less than three years, the hotel has "celebrated" 16 marriages. Some call it the "Honeymoon Hotel."

AND THE other hotels, even though geared for the retired, do not refuse younger guests.

Marshall does not rest on his achievement. His paneled office is in the Continental. He commutes there daily from his home at 1 Orchard Way, Kentfield.

But there are many days he has to fly south to Los Angeles or Fresno to keep up to the minute on the management and operation of the other hotels.

OUTINGS and parties are part of the planning required in the retirement hotel specialty. Boat trips on the bay even a "fair" have been part of recent programs.

The "fair" was planned after one of the guests told Marshall that many living at the Continental were too old to visit the World Fair in New York.

Marshall decided to bring a fair to his hotel and staged a "Continental Fair Week." It included entertainment by residents and members of the staff, display booths in the lobby and tea presided over by the Maritime Queen.

MARSHALL finds time in his busy life for some leisure and activity with his family. His wife, Helen, and children, David, 13, Pamela, 10, and John, 1, often take bay excursions of their own on their power boat, "Candida," which is berthed at Loch Lomond.

He is also in the midst of a home remodeling job and even finds time from this to rebuild old cars. Current project is a 1932 Chrysler.

Marshall is executive vice president of the Northern California Hotel Assn., a member of California State Hotel - Motel Assn., a member of the Olympic Club and past president of Cornell University's Society of Motel Men.

THERE ARE other Marinites associated in the hotel venture with Marshall. One is Clem Finney who helped open Tomahawk

How Goes Loan Trade In Marin?

CARVED IVORY is one of the many objects you can find in a pawn shop. Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Chene, owners of San Rafael Loan, examine an intricate globe. The elephant clock on the counter was once part of the Gump collection.

ANCIENT violin, decorated with intricate inlays is admired by Francis M. Burns, Chene's assistant in the pawn shop. Musical instruments are frequently offered for loan collateral. This one is not for sale. It is in storage, waiting for the owner to redeem it.

Ask Paul Chene; He Has The Facts At Fingertips

By RICHARD LYTTLE

Got anything in hock?

If not and if you haven't seen your pawn broker for some years, you might be under some delusions about the business.

You might think that pawn brokers are having it rough in this age of employment and prosperity. You might think that Marin County, with one of the highest average incomes in the nation, is a poor place for a hock shop.

AND YOU might have the thought that getting loans on nonperishable goods, one of the oldest customs in economic history, cannot survive in this age of rockets to the moon and atomic power.

It's not so.

"Business is growing all the time," says J. Paul Chene, proprietor of San Rafael Loan at 846 Fourth Street.

Chene and his wife, Amelia, have been in business in San Rafael for 10 years. He started out in a news stand across Fourth Street from his present location. The news stand gave him the opportunity to make a gradual start in the loan business.

A GRADUAL start is necestary for two reasons. First the broker must accumulate capital.

"Actually, that's what we're trading in—money," Chene explains.

Second he must accumulate a wealth of knowledge. To be able to make quick appraisals on everything from old guns to chain saws, from fur coats to diamonds and from violins to binoculars is not a talent one acquires over-night.

IN FACT, Chene and his assistant Francis M. Burns, still rely heavily on manufacturer's catalogues for appraisals. And there are a few things they do not attempt to appraise or accept on a loan.

This is hard to believe after seeing the variety of goods stored in the room at the back of his shop.

Watches, radios, cameras, power tools, rings, luggage, banjos, trumpets, phonographs, pistools, shotguns, rifles, sterling silver, plumber's tools, television sets and typewriters comprise only part of the inventory.

BUT CHENE cites a recent business day when a man came in seeking a loan on some electronic testing equipment. The pawn broker could not accept it, explaining that he was unable to appraise such items.

All items remain in the back room at least six months. If the owners continue paying interest on the loan, the items remain until reclaimed.

HOWEVER, an owner who does not make any interest payments and does not reclaim it in six months, gives up his ownership. Then Chene can put it on sale, but first he must send a certified letter to the owner, giving him a final chance to redeem it.

All this takes a vast amount of bookkeeping. But Chene has worked out a system that tells him at any moment, how much money he has on loan and how much in goods he has in storage.

EACH ITEM is tagged with an account number, the owner's name and the date it was received. In making a loan, the broker fills out a slip in triplicate, giving one copy to the customer, keeping one for store records and sending the other to police.

That's right, the police get records of pawned goods. So, if you have any "hot" items, don't take them to a pawn broker.

Chene says the pawn slips that he has turned in to the police department with a description of an item have frequently solved burglary cases.

SOMETIMES, Chene is suspicious of a customer. He cited one recent visit from a woman who brought in a valuable diamond ring and a gold watch.

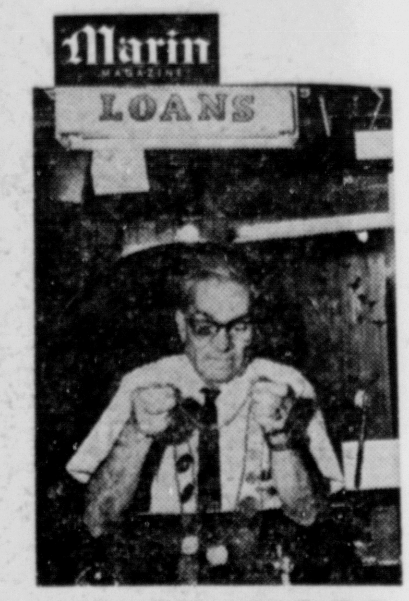

"I knew she had no business having those things," Chene said. He called police. The woman was arrested and another case was solved.

In cases where pawned goods are found to have been stolen, the original owner usually comes in and redeems the item at the principal loan value with no interest being charged, Chene said.

NOT ONLY is it tough to get stolen items past the sharp eyes of a broker, but it is also very difficult to deceive him on the true value. Brokers have had too much experience to be deceived.

Often a customer will argue that something is worth more and the loan should be higher. The solution to this protest is simply to suggest that the customer take it elsewhere. This usually brings the customer back to reality.

Sometimes, the argument is the other way around. One day Chene had a customer with an old pistol. The broker recognized it as a valuable collectors item, but the customer only wanted $60 for it and he wanted to sell it to Chene.

CHENE ARGUED that the gun was worth more than that and if the customer would leave it, he would offer it to a collector in San Francisco and split the sales price. But the customer was in a hurry for some money and refused the offer.

Chene later found that the gun was worth more than $300.

Gun collectors frequently make use of a pawn broker. Chene explained that they will hock some old items in a collection in order to buy an additional gun that is up for auction. Later they redeem the other games, thus slowly adding to their collection.

THERE ARE many seasonal aspects to the trade. During hunting season it is hard to find a deer rifle in the shop, but

HAND GUNS, including old, collections items like this one, are a frequent visitor to Chene's shop. Many gun collectors will hock some of the guns in their collection in order to raise quick money for purchase of a gun that has just gone on the market or is being offered at auction. This gives the gun buff time to raise money and redeem the old items of his collection later.

CHENE SAYS his supply of rifles is unusually low this time of year due to deer season, but there are still several along with a good supply of shotguns in his storage room. The shotgun supply will drop with the opening of duck season.

'Why Did My Cotton Dress Bleed When Drycleaned?'

—Mrs. T. S. A.

Dear Mrs. T. S. A.:

The real cause is a problem inherent in the fabric coloring, according to the National Institute of Drycleaning, Silver Spring, Maryland. This happens not only in cottons but Dacron or cotton and Dacron combinations as well. This seems to be especially true when perchlorethylene is used. Some dyes will "bleed" in drycleaning solvent and nothing can be done about it, excepting not to use solvent in cleansing these garments.

Wetcleaning is the accepted method for handling such fabrics. Your professional drycleaner is adept in both methods and will handle your garments to your satisfaction. Should you be tempted to use a home cleaning solvent, you had better test it on the color of an in-seam first. However, it's always safer to consult a professional.

CLEANING and repairing are part of the pawn broker's trade. Francis M. Burns works at the small bench in the back of the shop, polishing a bracelet. Often it is necessary to clean jewelry before an accurate appraisal can be made.

THESE GUITARS will probably be redeemed long before time runs out for the owners. Guitars are a hard item to keep in stock in the front, sales part of his store, and Chene has to buy new ones for retail. Here Francis M. Burns adds another instrument to the rack.

It Takes Knowledge In Many Fields For A Pawn Shop

when winter comes, hunters start hocking their weapons.

Winter also closes down many construction projects. That is when tools crowd Chene's storeroom.

One thing Chene has difficulty keeping in stock are guitars. The current rage on folk music seems to have put about everyone in the market for the instruments. Chene has been retailing new ones, just to have something to meet the demand.

WHAT ABOUT the "deals" you can get on second hand items in a hock shop?

"You can't beat them," Chene declares. "We price to sell." He has offered guarantees on all items offered. If something goes wrong, during a reasonable length of time after a sale, he will either replace it or fix it.

His back storeroom includes a small work bench where goods are cleaned and put in order.

Chene, 64, comes originally from Santa Fe, New Mexico. He left the auto business there 23 years ago to move to Vallejo where he managed a credit union.

HIS 10 years in Marin have proved successful and he can recall a few set-backs in his business. There have, however, been plenty of amusing experiences. After all, you are dealing with people and people will do strange things when they need money.

Chene recalls one time soon after he had purchased a new pair of pig skin gloves. Somehow, he had misplaced them. They were not in his home above the shop and they were not in the store.

One day, however, he happened to see some gloves that looked very familiar on one of the shelves in the storeroom. Closer examination revealed that they were his gloves, but they had someone else's name on them.

THAT SOMEONE else had picked up the gloves from the front counter of the store, taken them to the pawn window and hocked them. Chene had little difficulty straightening that out. He had the man's name.

There are many old traditions in the pawn brokers trade. One that raises many questions is the broker's symbol — three balls. This was the symbol on the Medici crest in Italy, Chene explained.

Italy is cited as the traditional origin of the hock shop. That was centuries ago, but the trade is still going strong, and it has a good future.

You can bet your pawn ticket on that.

Carpenter's Skill Serves In Garden

W. R. Quigley of 45 Belle Avenue, San Anselmo, is a man who believes in variety, especially when it comes to building planters for fuchsias and begonias.

Quigley, 75, is also a man who knows how to go about building planters. Most of his life has been devoted to the carpentry trade. He has been retired 10 years, but still keeps busy with his tools. Making planters for the backyard garden just one of his projects.

He has also become a dedicated gardner, raising about 60 varieties of roses. When he has a surplus of blooms, he delivers them to San Rafael General Hospital.

"They're always glad to have them," he said.

QUIGLEY HAS also developed a wall bracket for hanging his many planters. The bracket, consisting of three lengths of grape stake, is fitted together like a figure "4" trap so that no nails show.

A peg at the bottom of the bracket and a metal strap at the top are all that is needed to hold the bracket. Guigley developed the brackets when he started trying to figure what to do with grapestakes left over after the fencing of his yard.

THE YARD is dominated by a large boxwood tree which gives plenty of shade, ideal for fuchsias and begonias.

Quigley, a native of Lake Geneva, Wisc., moved to Marin 41 years ago. He and his wife have lived at the Belle Avenue address for 21 years.

Quigley explained that he makes his planters out of scrap redwood and cedar.

"I never throw anything away, not if it might be useful," he said.

HE DOES not sketch out the design ahead of time, but makes it up in his head. Often the design of a planter, is determined by how much and what shape the scrap wood he has at hand.

The result is more than 35 different designs. He rarely repeats the same design. Sometimes he makes planters to give to friends, but mostly they are for his own use.

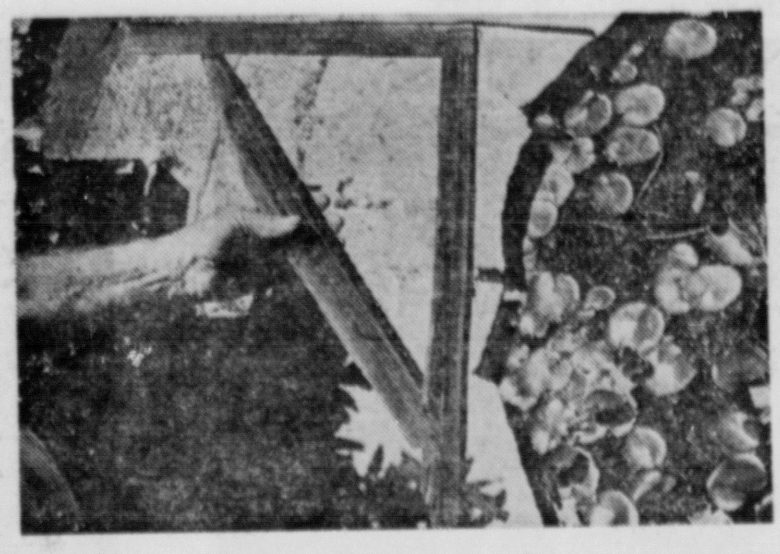

"You can't turn out too many when they are different each time," he said. "If I wanted to make a lot, they'd all be the same. It would be easier that way."

BUT QUIGLEY is satisfied with a few distinctive designs. They set off the fuchias to advantage. The plants hang from the limbs of the boxwood and line the garden wall.

There is one planter he does not hang up. That's one he fashioned from flagstone. It was from stone left over when a garden path was completed.

"It's pretty heavy," he said.

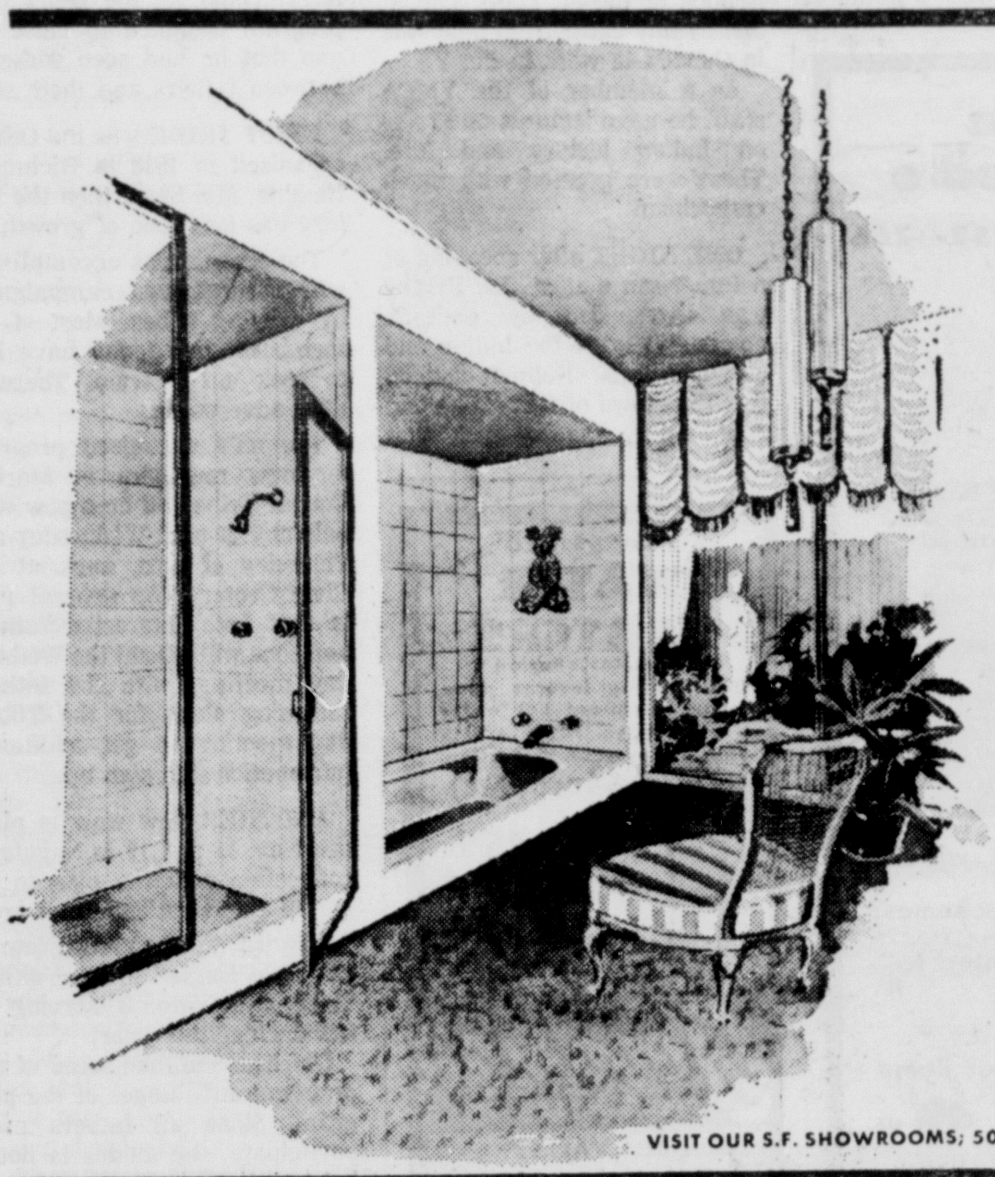

But it is another example of the inventiveness this retired carpenter uses to attain variety —the spice of any garden.

BRACKET for hanging baskets was designed from a grapestake by Quigley so that it shows no nails and does not stain a wall or fence with rust. Strap at top and peg at the bottom are all that is needed to anchor it.

BEGONIAS also are at home in W. R. Quigley's planter boxes. This rich bloom shows that he has learned the art of gardening just as well as he learned the carpentry trade many years ago.

BRACKET for hanging baskets was designed from a grapestake by Quigley so that it shows no nails and does not stain a wall or fence with rust. Strap at top and peg at the bottom are all that is needed to anchor it.

W. R. Quigley of 45 Belle Avenue, San Anselmo, is a man who believes in variety, especially when it comes to building planters for fuchsias and begonias.

Quigley, 75, is also a man who knows how to go about building planters. Most of his life has been devoted to the carpentry trade. He has been retired 10 years, but still keeps busy with his tools. Making planters for the backyard garden just one of his projects.

He has also become a dedicated gardner, raising about 60 varieties of roses. When he has a surplus of blooms, he delivers them to San Rafael General Hospital.

"They're always glad to have them," he said.

QUIGLEY HAS also developed a wall bracket for hanging his many planters. The bracket, consisting of three lengths of grape stake, is fitted together like a figure "4" trap so that no nails show.

A peg at the bottom of the bracket and a metal strap at the top are all that is needed to hold the bracket. Guigley developed the brackets when he started trying to figure what to do with grapestakes left over after the fencing of his yard.

THE YARD is dominated by a large boxwood tree which gives plenty of shade, ideal for fuchsias and begonias.

Quigley, a native of Lake Geneva, Wisc., moved to Marin 41 years ago. He and his wife have lived at the Belle Avenue address for 21 years.

Quigley explained that he makes his planters out of scrap redwood and cedar.

"I never throw anything away, not if it might be useful," he said.

HE DOES not sketch out the design ahead of time, but makes it up in his head. Often the design of a planter, is determined by how much and what shape the scrap wood he has at hand.

The result is more than 35 different designs. He rarely repeats the same design. Sometimes he makes planters to give to friends, but mostly they are for his own use.

"You can't turn out too many when they are different each time," he said. "If I wanted to make a lot, they'd all be the same. It would be easier that way."

BUT QUIGLEY is satisfied with a few distinctive designs. They set off the fuchias to advantage. The plants hang from the limbs of the boxwood and line the garden wall.

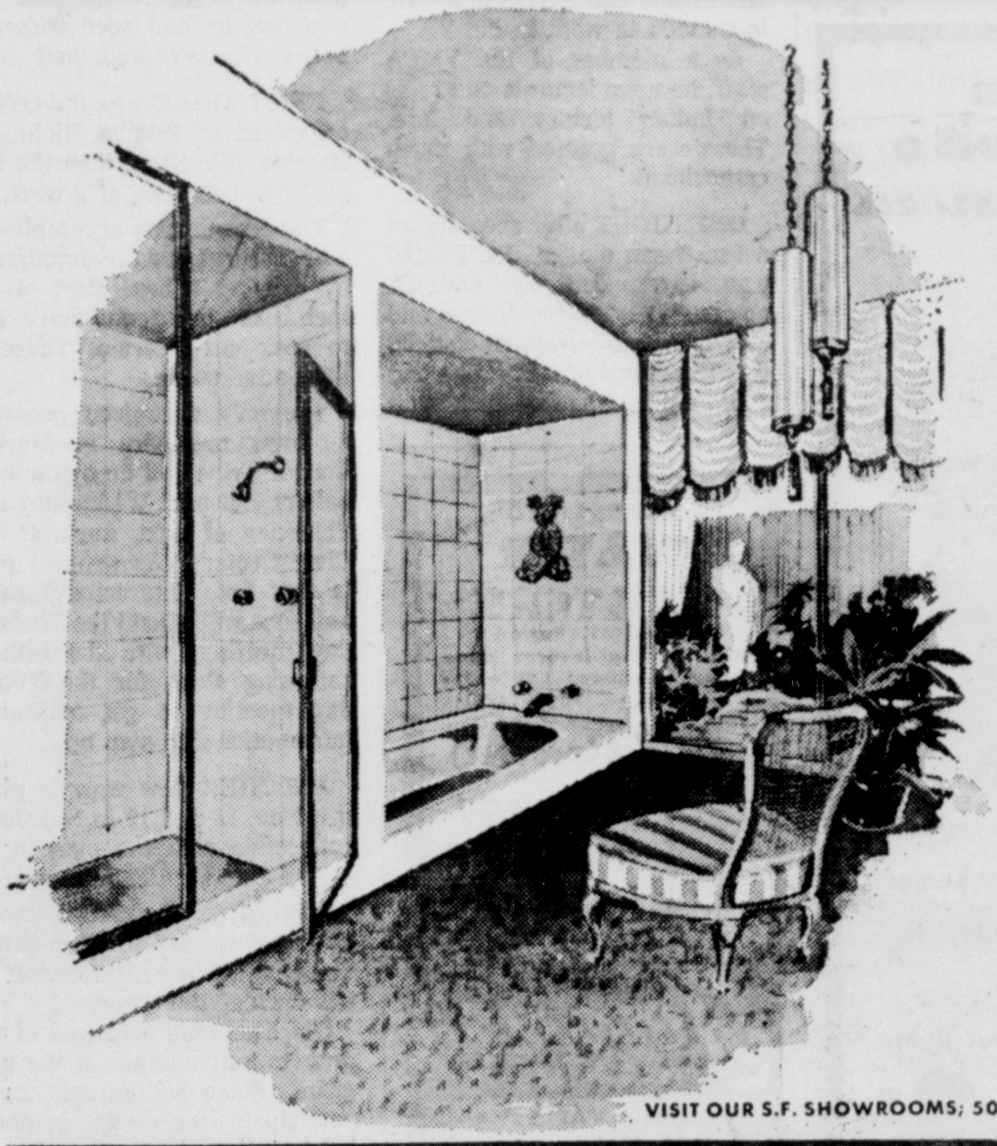

There is one planter he does not hang up. That's one he fashioned from flagstone. It was from stone left over when a garden path was completed.

"It's pretty heavy," he said.

But it is another example of the inventiveness this retired carpenter uses to attain variety —the spice of any garden.

BEGONIAS also are at home in W. R. Quigley's planter boxes. This rich bloom shows that he has learned the art of gardening just as well as he learned the carpentry trade many years ago.

STANDING PROUDLY before teepee, this father and son show how war paint is supposed to be used. The photos on these two pages were supplied from the tallykeeper's files.

HOODED BRAVES show off their colorful customes during campout. Most tribes have costume making as one of the chief projects. The work can become very elaborate.

Indian Nation Thrives In Marin

Marin still has Indians—getting more all the time, too.

They go under many names, Apache, Arapahoe, Cherokee, Crow, Navajo, Ojibway, Seminole, Zuni and several others. But they all come under the general banner of Y-Indian Guides.

Organized in Missouri in 1926, the movement has gradually spread as more and more families across the nation recognized the values of its aims. The main purpose is to strengthen the father-son relationship at a crucial age in a boy's life—6 to 9.

THE FIRST Marin tribe was the Arapahoe, organized July, 1960, with 12 big and little braves. Four years later there are 18 tribes in Marin. These all are part of the Cougar Nation.

The movement has proved so popular in Marin County that a split is contemplated. A new nation will be formed in Novato with the Cougar Nation growing into Southern Marin.

The county, or rather the Cougar Nation, has a total of about 200 big and little braves—quite a jump from the original 12 four years ago.

THE INDIAN Guide movement was inspired and in part started by an Ojibway Indian, the late Joe Friday. Befriended by Harold S. Keltner, executive secretary of the Southside Branch of the St. Louis YMCA, Joe Friday came from his home in Canada to work in the Y.

As a member of the YMCA staff, he gave lectures and talks on Indian history and lore. These were greeted with much enthusiasm.

ONE NIGHT after speaking at a father-son dinner, Joe Friday was surrounded by parents, anxious to meet the Indian and ask questions. Keltner noticed that the crowd of fathers around Joe Friday was so thick that none of the youngsters could get close to him.

This simple incident inspired Y-Indian Guides.

Keltner decided that the mutual interest in Indians might provide a common basis for a father and son program. He believed, and rightly, that the interest could be the heart of a program designed to close the gap that he had seen widening between fathers and their sons.

FIRST TRIBE was the Osage, organized in 1926 in Richmond Heights, Mo. Since then the history has been one of growth.

The growth was accomplished without organized campaigning by existing tribes. Most of the members even today have had to seek out a tribe. There is little advertising.

The only organized program for new members in Marin's Cougar Tribe will be a pow wow held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday of next week at the Civic Center. The general plan is that both interested fathers and sons will attend the Wednesday meeting, with the fathers returning alone for the Thursday meeting to get additional information and sign up.

ANOTHER pow wow is planned Nov. 11 and 12 in Novato in connection with the plan to organize a new nation in that area.

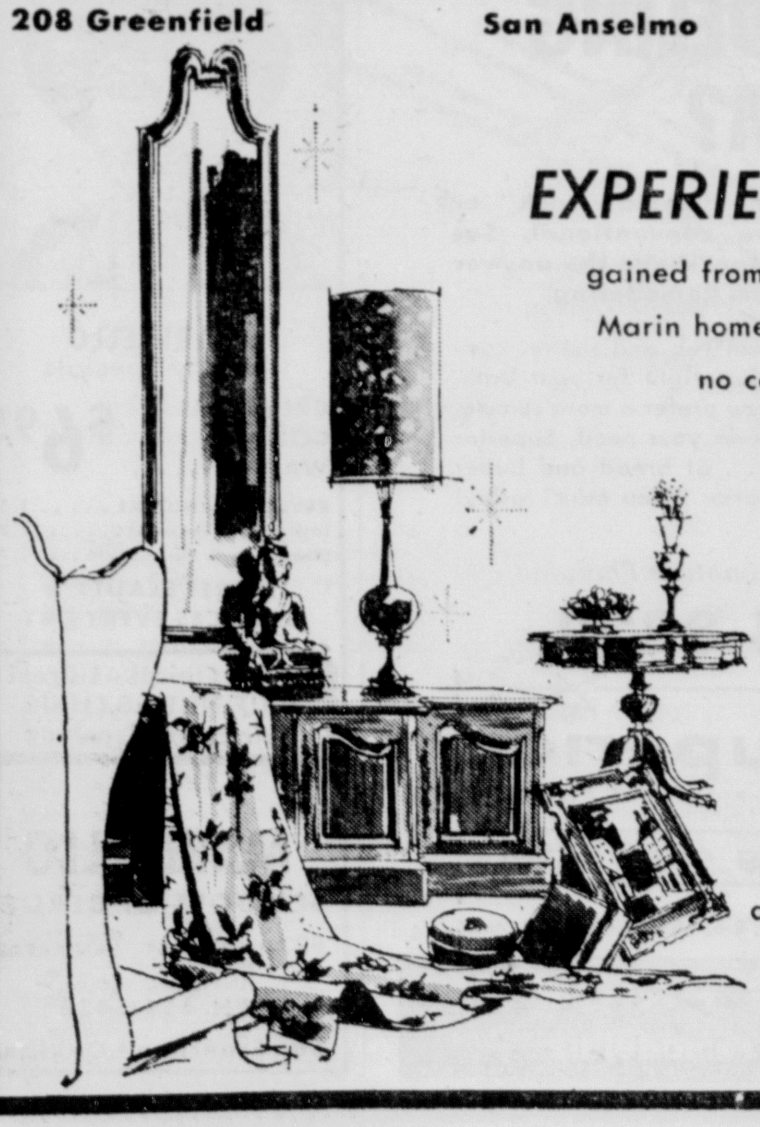

Edward T. Ghirardo, known as "Bald Eagle" to his Yakima Tribe in Novato, is serving as tribal chief this year.

Ghirardo outlined some of the practical advantages of the program. Since all fathers must participate, the guides is not a baby-sitting organization, he explained.

THE SAME requirement calls for a good deal of sincerity on the part of parents before committing themselves to the program. Consequently, the men who join have much in common.

TRIBAL DANCE is carried out after much home practice, before a crowd of admiring Indian Guides during annual campout ceremony. There is almost no limit to the variety of costume and the colors that can be used.

"I've gotten to know some fine men through the guides," Ghirardo said.

Being organized on a tribal basis, group meetings are small and do not require special halls or clubhouses. The twice-a-month Yakima meetings are rotated from home to home among tribal members. This way, each big and little brave gets a turn being host.

Operating budgets are small and a little change collected from members at each meeting is enough to cover special projects. These projects are planned at the discretion of each tribe. The Yakima Tribe takes a winter trip to Tahoe each year for a weekend in the snow.

MOST COSTUMES are hand made by members, providing both an economy and a tribe project.

Competition among members is not emphasized and there is no rank or promotion system. The son of the tribal chief, however, does have special duties during the year his father is in office. One of them is opening and closing meetings by beats on the tribe tom tom, also handmade.

Yakima's meetings last about an hour-and-a-half. In addition to these sessions there is usually one meetting a month of the fathers only, held as a planning session. These last about two hours, Ghirardo said.

EACH YEAR, each of the nations holds a weekend encampment. This is at the Y-Indian Guides' camp on a 10-acre site in Jones Gulch near La Honda, San Mateo County. This is part of a Bay Area camp currently being developed.

This summer, because of its growth, the Cougar Nation had enough members to book the camp alone for its weekend. Previously, it had joined with one other nation for the campout.

This is the high-point of the year for Indian Guides. New members are officially inducted. Other events include races, skits, hikes and nature studies.

WHEN IT becomes necessary for the guides to raise funds for a major project, such as the development of the Jones Gulch camp, the guides try to avoid straight solicitation. One Novato tribe, for instance, conducted a successful house numbering campaign, asking home owners to contribute whatever they wished for the house number painted on the curb.

About $6,000 has been raised so far for the camp development. Final cost is estimated at $18,000.

R. L. Andruss of San Anselmo, known as "Standing Bull" to his Kiowa Tribe, is tallykeeper for the Cougar Nation. He is responsible for the nation's records and reports activities to the Bay Area Longhouse. He cites the informal organization of the guides as one of the big advantages.

"EACH TRIBE determines when it wants to meet, how often, how formal or informal the meetings are to be, how much costume and what crafts and what tribal properties they want to acquire," he said.

He also said that members are active in the community and nearly every occupational field is represented among the fathers. "Y-Indian Guides is also proud of its mixed racial and religious membership," he added.

In all, there is a great deal to be said for Marin's growing Indian tribes. The most important thing, however, is that it succeeds in bringing father and son closer together.

That, after all, is the purpose.

FIREPLACE and bookshelves dominate this corner of the living room in the Richard Mayer home in Fair Hills. Simple and warm furnishings are primarily Italian Provincial.

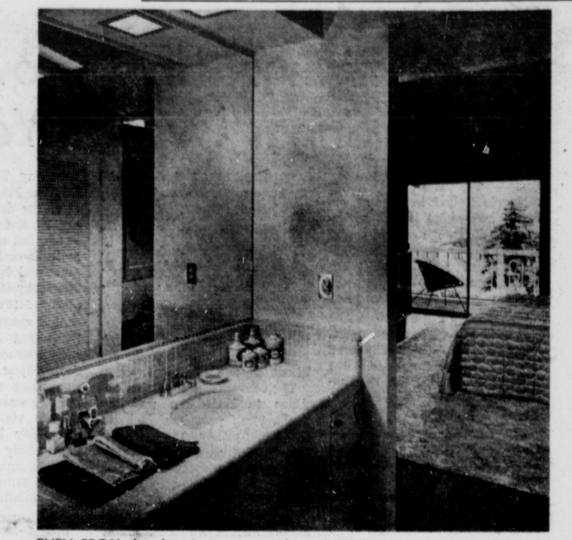

ASH CABINETS and panels distinguish this kitchen from the run of the mill. It still has all the conveniences, however, and Mrs. Richard Mayer refers to it as a "dream."

IF YOU LIKE a view, it would be tough to beat this site in Fairhills. No matter what room you choose, you will always have a view in this home built by the William H. McDevitt Co. of San Rafael. Owners, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mayers, had a big say in the design of the two-level home.

EVEN FROM the dressing room with its full mirror, one can look across the master bedroom and see a view of the Marin hills. There are two other bedrooms in the home.

Life Upon Marin Hilltop Holds Charm For Mayers

Spacious Home Gives Comfort And Grand View Of County

The Richard Mayers live on a beautiful half-acre in Fairhills, San Rafael, overlooking San Pablo Bay, the Civic Center and the new Northgate Shopping Center with its twinkling nighttime lights.

The home which they have occupied just over a year was constructed by the William H. McDevitt Building Co. of San Rafael. Architect designed, it is built to their own specifications.

The exterior is of redwood siding. A graceful deck spreads across the front of the house which nestles in the treetops, with an unusual railing of aluminum and redwood.

AS ONE approaches the home, the terraced hillside garden in various colors of yellow and brown reflects Mrs. Mayer's particular interest in gardening.

Sliding glass walls open from every room in the house to the huge deck. The house is built on two levels with a two car garage and laundry and loads of extra storage on the lower level.

An attractive gallery with Stonelite tile floors accommodates a gracious bar for entertaining with its own sink and space for glasses and refreshments.

The living room has a corner fireplace and a raised hearth, wood walls and built-in bookcases with windows on two sides of the room.

THE MAYERS are pleased with the architectural design the McDevitt firm achieved in making the house both open to the outside and still having a restful, secluded feeling.

Mrs. Mayer has furnished the living room with sculptured India wool carpet in light gold. Her furnishings are primarily Provincial Italian with accents of different periods.

A permanent card table is used in the corner window with two chairs upholstered in rich blue tones. A low, round coffee table and marble top end tables, interesting period plaques and an Oriental screen complete the living room decor.

A separate dining room opens opens to the living room with a screen divider. A brass candelabra adds glamor to the Provincial Italian dining room set. A circular gold sculptured wool rug accents the table and the chairs, which are upholstered in gold also.

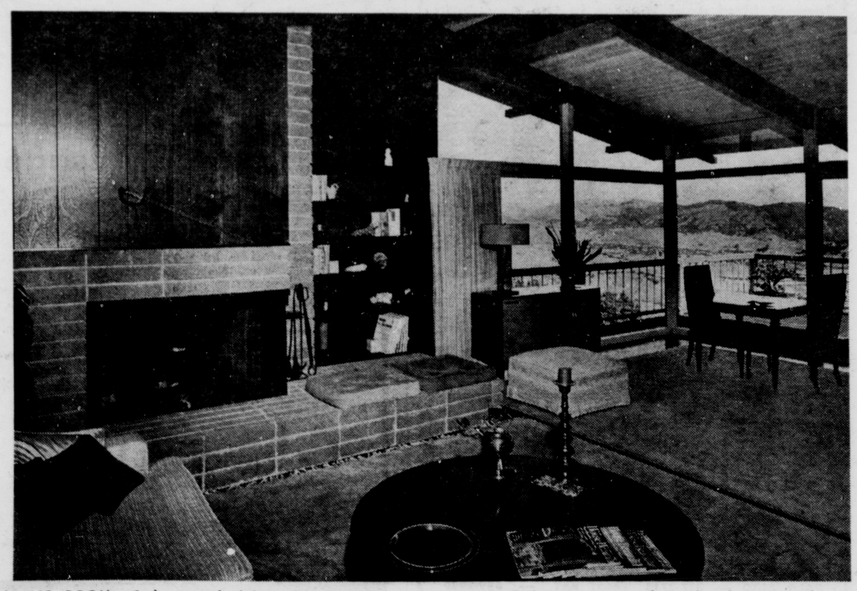

THE KITCHEN, according to Mrs. Mayer, is a "dream kitchen." It has adequate space for casual meals. Walls are finished in natural ash, counters are in Champagne Formica and the floor is Travertine. There is more than ample storage, and Mrs. Mayer has selected stainless steel for the double oven, dishwasher and double sink.

The home, which has three bedrooms, has a master suite opening to the large deck. One wall of closets, a separate double dressing room with gold mosaic tile dressing counter and gold fixtures, reflected by a full room width mirror gives a spacious effect. There is a separate shower and tub bath.

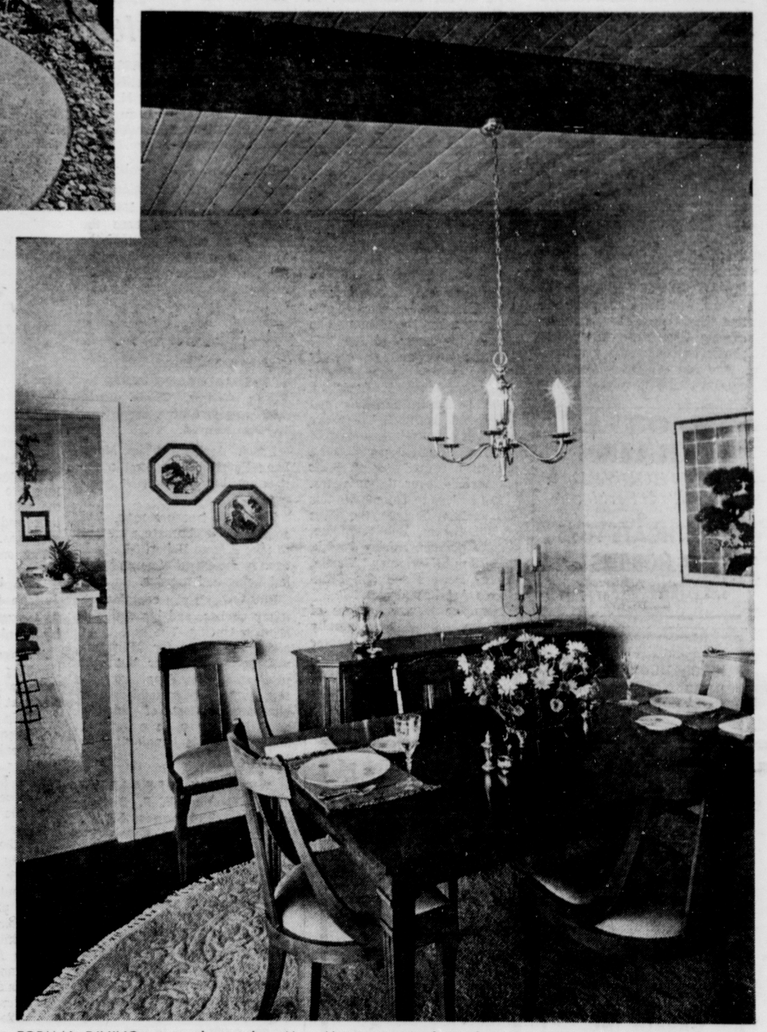

ANOTHER BEDROOM is furnished as a den. It has a desk and a comfortable leather chair. The other bedroom is furnished in conventional style with a harlequin quilt spread. A second bath serves as a powder room and as a facility for the guest room.

Mrs. Mayer, with the help of the McDevitt Company, has coordinated the color scheme from greens to golds throughout the house and has chosen random plank floors to accent the softly tinted walls.

The home, designed and built on McDevitt's package plan, included site engineering, design and construction. It is truly a show place.

Extremism Topic Of Novel; Sport Sagas Over 20 Years

By DON KEOWN

THE PATRIOT by Harold Bienvenu, St. Martin's Press, 314 pages, $4.95.

BEST OF THE BEST SPORTS STORIES edited by Irving T. Marsh and Edward Ehre, E. P. Dutton and Co., 480 pages, $5.95.

Novels linked to current political and social issues, as exemplified by the successes of such authors as the Burdick-Wheeler and Knebel-Bailey teams, continue to flow from the presses and, usually, to find large reading audiences.

Harold Bienvenu's first novel, "The Patriot," is the newest. The problem he spotlights is one prominent at both the 1964 national political conventions—extremism.

Bienvenu, an economics and education professor, has been known in the past as an author of scholarly books and articles. But he makes the shift to the popular fiction field with a considerable degree of success.

His central character is an amoral, opportunistic public relations man, William Allan Boardman, who founds an ultra-rightist group in Southern California called the American Patriots Inc. Operating behind the scenes, Boardman milks the organization for all he can get. Then, when it has outlived its usefulness to him, he callously abandons it, and the alcoholic evangelist he has installed as its figurehead president.

Readers will see the super-nationalistic movement exposed in both its facets—the naive, sincerely dedicated but frightened people, both big and little, desperately in search of reassurance; and the cynical opportunists who exploit their fears.

They will find themselves fitting the fictional characters, including Boardman, to existing people or combinations thereof.

And they will encounter a conclusion to the story that is anything but reassuring, but which rings true in the light of the political climate of recent years.

The cast of characters, in addition to Boardman and the spellbinding preacher, includes the wealthy California businessman concerned over the future of free enterprise; the rich girl in the movement strictly for "kicks"; the unscrupulous lawyer; the uncomplicated girl simply in love with Boardman; the ruthless oil multimillionaire, etc.

The new novelist's writing style is not extraordinary. In fact, rather low key. But he has an interesting story to tell. And one to which his approach and tone are well suited.

FOR THE past two decades E. P: Dutton and Co., Inc., has published annually a collection of "Best Sports Stories" from American newspapers and magazines.

Marking the 20th anniversary of the project, Dutton now offers "Best of the Best Sports Stories"—the cream of the contents from its score of anthologies.

There are both spot news coverage of events ranging from Army's football massacre of outmanned Notre Dame in 1945 to the elosing game of the 1962 World Series, and personality profiles of such diverse subjects as old-time boxer Sam Langford, Babe Didriksen Zaharias and jockey Bill Hartack. There are also keen analytical studies of some of the major sports. And a portfolio of award-winning sports photographs over the 20 years.

The writers represented in this compendium include the likes of Bill Corum, Bob Considine, Jimmy Cannon, Shirley Povich, Red Smith, Whitney Martin, Jimmy Powers and San Francisco's Art Rosenbaum.

Magazine pieces, because of the time element, are generally more polished and of greater depth than the more hastily-written newspaper stories. Our personal favorite is Al Stump's almost brutally frank profile of an aging Tyrus Cobb, written for True Magazine. The portrayal of the dying Cobb as a psychotic and tragic figure is harsh, but unquestionably a far more honest picture than that presented by Cobb's own autobiography (for which, ironically, Stump served as ghost-writer).

Also worthy of special mention, even in the company of such extraordinary talent, are Joan Flynn Dreyspool's sensitive piece on Babe Didriksen and her wrestler-husband; W. C. Heinz's vivid depiction of the day-to-day life of professional boxer Billy Graham; Povich's exciting account of Don Larsen's perfect game, and Roger Kahn's truly definitive "The Real Babe Ruth."

Sports fans without a complete or nearly-complete set of the annual collections will revel in this opportunity to catch up on the best of what they have missed, and to relive some of the most tense moments and to remember some of the most colorful personalities of our athletic past.

Political Glossary Has Gaps

DICTIONARY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE, edited by Joseph Dunner, 585 pages, $10. Philosophical Library, N.Y. Reviewed by Wat Takeshita.

This is a collection of political terms, definitions and biographies, compiled in collaboration with 195 political scientists from 13 different countries.

What soon becomes evident to the reader is pointed out by editor Dunner in the preface:

"The dictionary does not contain every single term, event and name," and that omissions were inevitable.

In fact, it may be wiser for the reader to scan through the pages to see what is included rather than to keep it as reference to be used as a "dictionary" when unfamiliar names or terms come up.

Because it is a collection of contributions, it seems to suffer from the lack of a set standard by which items are included or left out.

For example, brief biographies of Henry Cabot Lodge and Thomas H. Kuchel are included, but there is none under Nelson Rockefeller, Harold Stassen, Bobby Baker, or Richard Nixon.

And you won't find definitions of extremism and moderation, probably because Barry Goldwater's famous reference to them came last July, after the publication cutoff date, which was January.

However, terms that are included are valuable in that more background and interpretation are presented than in a Webster. For example, the word "aggression" rates two full pages, with a variety of definitions as used in the League of Nations, United Nations, and by the communist countries.

Our Constitution's History And How It Developed

SECURING THE BLESSINGS OF LIBERTY: The Constitutional System, by Arthur N. Holcombe, Scott, Foresman, 208 pages, $3.75. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

Dr. Arthur N. Holcombe, Eaton Professor of the Science of Government, Emeritus, Harvard University, presents here the history and development of the American constitutional system and shows us the way in which it operates to maintain our political freedom and stability.

This edition, part of the American Government Series, features excerpts from the Declaration of Independence, Articles of Confederation, U. S. Constitution, and the U. N. Charter.

This makes timely and fascinating reading. Dr. Holcombe succinctly relates these documents with historical and biographical background that makes the law come alive.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE MALABANG PEARL by Frank Archer, Crime Club, 180 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Frank Archer's "The Malabang Pearl" just doesn't make it as mystery or suspense reading.

There's a treasure map. And some sinister characters are out to take it from Robert Morland, even to the extent of committing kidnaping and murder.

But Archer's plot contains too many cliches, and his dialogue is unconvincing. The best thing about the novel for Marinites will be the familiar but still fascinating San Francisco setting—plus a pretty solid cast of characters. Most of this is wasted, however, in a formula story lacking in imagination or fire.

THE GREEK AFFAIR by Frank Gruber, E. P. Dutton and Co., 224 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Busy Frank Gruber has topped all his earlier efforts with his newest mystery-suspense-adventure yarn.

"The Greek Affair" mixes murder with archaeology and adds the spice of international politics and a concluding chase, all in a colorful setting, for just about as exciting and entertaining a piece of escapist reading as one could hope to find.

John Ives, just divorced, is in Europe trying to forget. His tour takes him to Greece. And there an ancient Greek coin that has been thrust upon him by a mysterious woman just prior to her slaying involves him in violence, intrigue and romance.

The pace is fast. The characters are skillfully drawn. And the plot is solid, yet imaginative, and with a full quota of surprises.

THE LAUGHTER TRAP by Judson Philips, Dodd Mead, 213 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

A magazine writer seeking a laughing man who caused him to have a tragic accident, arrives at a New England ski resort in time to participate in a weekend of murder.

There is violence galore, two murders, an attempted murder, severe beatings, rioting mobs and some grisly pranks.

At the same time, the hero and the investigating detective decry the lack of morality and changing standards that generate such acts.

Without giving away too much of the plot, it might be said their moralizing does not apply to the killer.

Aside from the hero, Peter Styles, and the killer, the author presents some well-drawn minor characters and a rather racy impression of skiing resorts.

It all adds up to a fair evening of reading for mystery fans.

Marx And The Jew

A WORLD WITHOUT JEWS: KARL MARX, edited with an introduction by Dagobert D. Runes, Philosophical Library, 83 pages, $2.75. Reviewed by Richard Lyttle.

In the introduction to these selections of Marx' writings, Runes is seeking to expose the anti-Semitism of Karl Marx. And in the text, many paragraphs are set off in large, bold face type.

This does make the book any easier to understand. Most of the writings seem to expound Marx' arguments for doing away with all religions, at least all "public" religions that would have any influence on the state.

He further concludes that a Jew is set aside by something more than his religion. In support of this he makes generalizations, about the Jew, all very derogatory. These were deleted by Marx' first editors.

For students of Marx and his work, this book would make an interesting supplement. For the layman, I fear, it will only add to the confusion over a man who appears thoroughly confused.

Our Report On New Reading

Musical Knowledge

HOW TO UNDERSTAND MUSIC by Oscar Thompson, Fawcett World Library, 239 pages, 60 cents. Reviewed by Maybelle Speckmann.

This is a newly revised edition in paperback by the editor of "The International Cyclopedia of Music and Musicians." It is for adults who enjoy and know something of music and want to know more.

Believing that to listen well requires only "musicality" and not "musicianship" and that understanding of music is gained through listening to it, the author includes a list of over 500 recommended recordings.

His major premise is that comprehension of music depends on learning to think of it in its own terms, not words or images. One problem to overcome, he says, is the tendency to look for elementary tunes in everything.

Instead, he recommends the listener should learn to understand the various kinds of music, such as opera, symphony and others, in terms of their essential characteristics and not look for what is not in them.

These he analyzes in chapters headed opera and music drama, symphony and the orchestra, program music, piano music, violin music, song and choral music. Major composers and examples of their work as well as schools and periods are discussed under most of them.

One chapter is devoted to a thumbnail synopsis of 50 symphonies and one to common musical forms.

A great deal of interesting and valuable information is concisely dealt with in this little book.

The Life Of Macy

THE INDOMITABLE R. H. MACY, by Curtiss S. Johnson. Vantage Press, 215 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Curtiss Johnson wrote this short biography of the founder of the department stores, Rowland H. Macy, with a special interest — his grandmother was Macy's second cousin.

A retired publisher of a small newspaper, Johnson writes with great fervor the story of the young man who went bankrupt in his first store venture in Haverhill, Mass., and then moved on to success in New York using the same sales policies. But his style is only mildly effective and sometimes the book tends to lapse into a family genealogy that rivals the Begats. Yet there are interesting facts in Macy's life. For instance, his years aboard a New England whaler, his declaration of bankruptcy and salvaging some $3,000 for himself which caused credit problems for his later mercantile ventures, his only son turning out an incorrigible black sheep, and Macy's original advertising and sales policies that guide the Macy stores to this day.

Though Macy's accomplishments are strong in retrospect, the author takes a thoroughly contemporary view of his subject by continually apologizing for Macy's lack of effort toward family togetherness, and devotion, instead, to developing the first "department store," which after all, is what has made the Macy name famous.

In Every Closet

SPEAK NOT EVIL by Edwin Lanham, Farrar, Straus and Co., 591 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Against the backdrop of a 300th anniversary celebration at a small New England town, the author unveils a long line of the town's dirty linen.

As scandals and dark secrets are uncovered in a manner reminiscent of Peyton Place, the reader gets the feeling that the writer is overstating his case.

Undoubtedly there is much behind-the-scenes activity in small New England towns, but Lanham manages to find a skeleton in just about every closet.

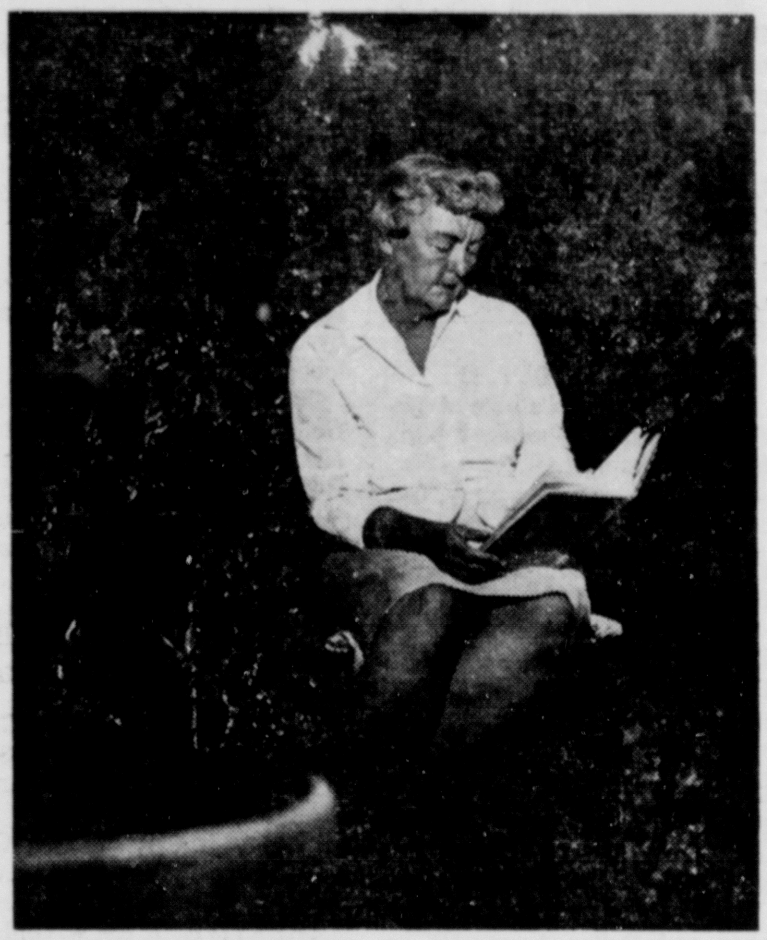

With all this swinging activity going on in town, one wonders why the younger generation wants to leave for the big city.

Lanham's town is Sagamore, a quaint coastal town that exists on its past and a summer flock of vacationers, and he presents it in depth.

His characters, representing several generations, are not stereotypes, but full-blown individuals full of life and human failings.

There are several gripping scenes—the wanton destruction of a summer cottage by two teen-agers—the gathering nude-photo clan—and a slashing hurricane.

Lanham's prose is clear and his plot fast moving despite its length but the overall effect is melodrama with an overdose of sex.

Lagunitas Poet Offers Top Quality Collection

HEROES, ADVISE US by Adrien Stoutenburg, Charles Scribners' Sons, 127 pages, $1.65. Reviewed by Richard Lyttle.

Lagunitas poet Miss Adrien Stoutenburg is certainly one of our top West Coast poets. Her collection presented in this volume demonstrates that fact with little room for argument.

This book has won for Miss Stoutenburg the 1964 Lamont Poetry Selection award from the Academy of American Poets.

Many of the poems, or parts of them, have already appeared in reviews and magazines, including the Commonweal, the Nation and the New Yorker. But many others are printed here for the first time.

The long narrative poem on Capt. Robert F. Scott's expedition to Antarctica is carried here in full. Miss Stoutenburg's stanzas describe with impact the emotional and physical struggle of the epic.

The impact is artfully heightened by the use of excerpts from Scott's own journal. These words from the past give the narrative a rare dramatic quality.

Miss Stoutenburg's shorter poems have delicate and clear descriptive phrasing. A fine example is this first stanza from "Mote."

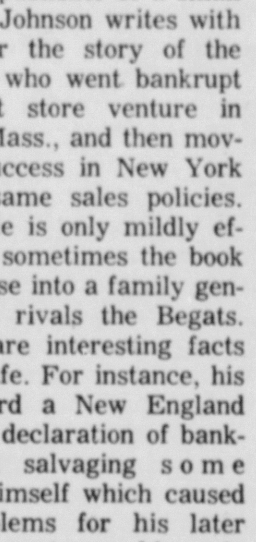

"The Hummingbird, acquaintance,
"hanging at the feeder,
"fencing with his beak,
"suspended as by whirling arms
"or two round harps,
"is instant color."

Miss Stoutenburg embraces original phrasing and yet maintains a devotion to clarity, a rare thing with modern poets.

This reviewer, however, found the collection much like a gallery of modern paintings, reacting subjectively and liking some poems much more than others.

Yet the poems presented here surely have more universal appeal than most current works. And Miss Stoutenburg is fulfilling her role as a poet, by preserving the beauty and exploring the vast frontier of the English language.

Stereo Hi-Fi

By. C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

If you have purchased a tape recorder, you will have many opportunities to display your talents as a recording engineer. There will be many occasions to record family gatherings, children's parties, musical groups, and vocalists.

To obtain good recordings, the proper type of microphone should be used. Two of the important specifications of a microphone are its frequency response, and its directivity patterns. The frequency response means its ability to pick up the entire musical range smoothly without overemphasizing any part of the range. The more costly the microphone, the wider the frequency or musical range, and the smoother the response. For recording voices such as those in office conferences, or children's parties, etc., the frequency range need not be greater than 8000 cycles per second. For music the microphone should be wide range and of smooth response.

The directivity of microphones fall into three basic patterns, the omnidirectional, the bidirectional, and the unidirectional patterns. The omnidirectional microphone is one that picks up sound equally well from all directions. This type of microphone should be used for picking up conferences, voices from many directions, etc.

The bidirectional microphone is one that picks up sound from two opposite directions. This type can be used successfully where two voices are to be recorded, because each voice can be properly placed on each side of the microphone at the correct distance to provide balance. The same could apply to singing voices or to small musical groups. Another use for this type microphone is to place the voice to be recorded in front of the microphone, and place a prompter that is not to be recorded on the side of the microphone. The bidirectional microphone is comparitively insensitive on the sides.

The unidirectional microphone is one that picks up sound from one direction. The most commonly used unidirectional microphone is the cardioid type which has a wide pick-up pattern in front of the microphone, and is comparitively insensitive to sounds arriving from the rear. The cardioid type is the most practical for recording purposes. It can be positioned to pick up the performers in a wide frontal arrangement and yet be placed to reject noise and reflections arriving from the back.

VARIATIONS FOR KEYBOARD: Fernando Valenti, harpsichord—Music Guild Stereo S-46:

This former Boston-based mail-order record company is now part of the ABC-Paramount stables, along with the fine concert music label, Westminster.

More than 50 different albums are now available, ranging from early music to Alban Berg. Most of these concentrate on music of the 18th Century.

While many were originally recorded by French companies, a number of the Music Guild recordings were made in this country with American performers. The intent seems to be to add to the lp catalog recordings of works not before available.

Valenti is best known for his tremendous project of recording all of the Scarlatti sonatas for Westminster.

He has chosen for this album seven pieces making use of the variations form of composition. The composers are Rameau, Handel, Mozart, Scarlatti, Pachelbel, Mattheson, and Balbastre. A commendable idea for an lp, fascinating music and — in common with all Music Guild recordings I have heard — exceedingly clean and realistic stereo sound.

CARLO GRAZIANI: Sonatas for Cello and Continuo Op. 3 — Aldo Parisot, cello with Fernando Valenti and Italo Babini, continuo—Music Guild Stereo S-48:

Graziani was an 18th century composer and cello virtuoso who wrote a number of fairly lengthy cello sonatas which are distinguished by an uninhibited flow of interesting musical ideas.

Three of them, Nos. 1, 5 and 6, are contained on this album as played by the French-Brazilian cellist, Aldo Parisot.

Parisot is known to stereo fans as the soloist on one of the very first classical stereodisc to be manufactured — Boccherini's Cello Concerto. This is quite captivating music.

THE WORD FROM MOSE: Mose Allison with bass and drums—Atlantic Stereo SD 1424:

Mose's latest lp for this label is devoted entirely to vocals, 11 of them, accompanied only by rhythm section.

The blues are the base of Mose's work, and the everyday situations which he describes in such witty and philosophical style are the substance of folk music.

However, put Mose's pungent modern jazz piano behind him and you have something quite different from Pete Seeger or Joan Baez. There is a new version of the classic "Parchman Farm," here. I also dug "Your Red Wagon." If you're hip to Mose, you'll want this one absolutely.

SWING HALLELUJAH: The Christian Tabernacle Church Choir of New York City—Elektra Stereo EKS-7270:

Most rip-roaring hallelujah-shouting lp of gospel music I've ever heard!

Whether you're a connoisseur of this unique Negro music or not, you can't fail to be caught up in this rejoicing, hand-clapping, foot-tapping 72-member choir's music. Recorded on the spot in Harlem, and intended to be played back in only one way—Loud. Pick up your tambourine and join in if you're in the spirit.

COLUMBINES are an old stand-by among perennials and this is the time to plant them. There are many perennials that can add color to the garden and do away with some of the attention demanded by annuals.

Autumn Is Time For Perennials

Perennials are the more permanent plants around which most flower gardens are built.

When annuals are combined with perennials, to give summer brilliance while perennials bloom in their various seasons, the most colorful gardens result.

MANY perennials are as easy to grow from seeds as any anual. Among these are alyssum, carnations, calliopsis, painted daisies, Shasta daisies, gaillardias and columbines.

A packet of each kind of seeds will furnish sufficient plants for even a large garden.

For flowers next year, seeds of perennials should be planted this fall. If you have a cold frame, sow in that.

Otherwise choose a sheltered location that gets some shade each day and make a seedbed there. Prepare the soil so the top inch is very fine because seeds of many perennials are tiny.

SOW seeds in rows or broadcast them over a small area, but try to sow as evenly and thinly as possible. Press seeds to (not into) the soil with the palm of your hand before covering them lightly with additional soil.

After planting, the seeds are dependent on an even supply of moisture. Watch to see that they do not lack water and, if sun is hot, provide shade during the heat of the day.

WHEN seedlings have sprouted and grown their second set of leaves they may be transplanted to another, larger bed and spaced 6 to 8 inches apart.

Water well. Shade for the first week after moving. Then gradually remove shade and water only as needed. Protect from rabbits and from extreme winter cold.

A chicken wire fence around the bed will keep rabbits off. A light covering of straw will protect the young plants. Move them to their permanent places in the garden in spring.

Homemade Humidity

You can make effective use of such ancient kitchenware as iron or aluminum frying, boiling or baking pans by turning them into homemade humidifiers for your house plants.

Enamel them in shades to match your woodwork, then fill them with an inch or so of sand, pebbles and vermiculite. Set clay-potted house plants in them and water to the top of the pebble or sand layer. Evaporation of this moisture will increase humidity of the air around your plants.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- The stunningly colored lilies should be planted now for bloom in late spring and summer.
- Plant calendula in sunny beds for bright winter color.
- When your fuchsia finally is finished blooming, do NOT do any pruning. Just because the flowers are finished does not mean that it is time for clipping. Wait until next February for any pruning.
- Many evergreens are best set out in fall. They benefit from the winter rains which will come later. Check with your local nurseryman for the types best suited for October planting.
- The newer spreading Lantanas, if planted now, will often bloom right through winter in California's milder regions.

Pyracantha Or Firethorn, It Translates Into Color

Gardening Pages

Sometimes you hear the question—What would California gardens be like without Pyracantha, translated into English —Firethorn?

Our gardens would not be very colorful in fall and winter, that's sure. Graceful branches loaded with red or orange berries, the Firethorn keeps our gardens alive during a very dull part of the year.

AND LOOK at the selection of varieties—a kind for every garden use: Suppose you have a sloping bank that needs cover. Firethorn 'Santa Cruz' has a low, spreading habit with dark red berries in fall. The variety 'Walderi' is similar, best known in the interior valleys.

Need an espalier against a blank wall or fence? You have a number of Firethorns from which to choose, for example: Leland Firethorn is naturally upright in habit, easily trained, and has a crop of delightful bright orange berries. Graber Firethorn has large, lush foliage, husky branches capable of carrying enormous loads of big, red berries.

HOW ABOUT something lower growing and compact for foundation planting? See your nurseryman about the variety 'Wyatti,' with crops of orange-red berries or 'Pauciflora,' with orange berries. Both are easily controlled with light trimming.

Need a Firethorn for background planting? Then choose 'Rosedale,' with graceful upright, arching branches and a fine display of bright red berries fall and winter. Then there is 'Government Red,' another vigorously upright grower with red berries.

NOW IS the very best time of the year to make a planting of Firethorn in your garden, you will find them on display in one-gallon and five-gallon containers, as well as already-made espaliers, all with a nice crop of berries to provide an immediate effect.

And while you are shopping for Firethorn, have a look at its thornless cousin, the Cotoneaster, pronounced (Ko - tone - ee - aster).

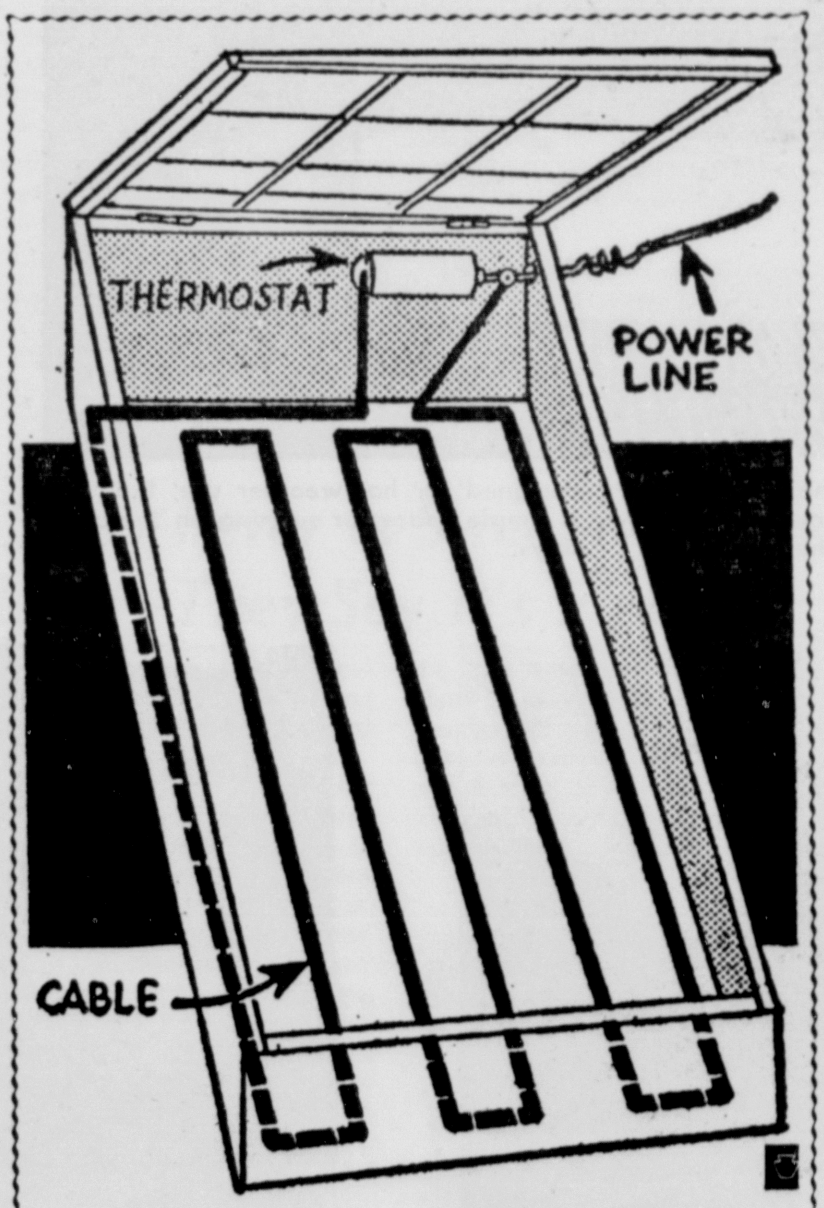

Red berries are combined with bright or dull green foliage with silvery undersides. The plants may be either ground-hugging or vigorously upright with berries in clusters on gracefully arching branches.

LET'S TAKE a look at the ground covers first: Oldtimers are the Rock Cotoneaster, low and spreading, with red berries in fall and winter, conspicuous because of the absence of leaves in December and January, and the Rockspray Cotoneaster, which is evergreen, some branches upright, other spreading, dark red berries.

The variety 'Glaucophylla' is especially valuable where an all-gray appearance is desired. Red berries sparkle in this background. A native of the Pyrenees, 'Congesta,' makes a shiny-leaf mound. So does the 'Early' Cotoneaster, which loses its leaves to show off bright red fruits.

AMONG THE vigorous upright Cotoneasters are the Red Clusterberry, well known for its tall, arching branches, foliage dull green above, gray beneath, and 'Silverleaf,' almost a gray cloud with red berries. This last form has a smaller, compact version, much used as a foundation shrub. Ask for the Compact Silverleaf.

Your nurseryman keeps a good selection of Cotoneasters on hand the year round, but you can see them at their best right now. Assortments are available in containers.

COLD WINTER months are ahead and the circumspect gardener might well want to convert a cold frame into a hot bed with this simple layout of electric heating cable with thermostat control. Be sure to loop the cable evenly to assure equal heat distribution. The wires should be about six inches deep. After installing the cable, put down about an inch of soil and then lay wire mesh across the floor of the bed before replacing the rest of the soil. The mesh will prevent hand tools from damaging the cable.

For Bouquet That Lasts

Being able to cut flowers from the garden and arrange them to ornament the house is one of the satisfactions of gardening. But doing so can be even more pleasing if the flowers last as long as they are capable of doing.

Matching water temperature to air temperature is the start of conditioning garden flowers.

WHEN YOU go into the garden to pluck them, take along a pail of water the same temperature as the outdoor air. Set each stem into the pail immediately after cutting.

The less time there is between the instant the stem is severed and that when the flower stem is immersed, the less time there is for air to enter the cells of the stem to dry them.

That's also the reason why, when ready to arrange flowers, you cut the stems under water if you need to shorten some of them.

IN BETWEEN cutting and arranging, condition your flowers further by setting the pail into which you inserted them in a cool, draft-free place for several hours. During this period, with stems well immersed, the blooms will become accustomed to indoor temperature and the stems will fill with water.

SLEEPY HOLLOW'S halcyon atmosphere is retained in this garden designed by Katy and Paul Steinmetz, San Rafael landscape architects. Owners, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carlson of 1 Fawn Court ,wanted some open area and paving to surround their back yard pool. The architects provided this and also included plenty of shaded areas. Low steps to the pool area and flagstone planter wall successfully break the wide expanse of the yard.

(Ken Molino photos)

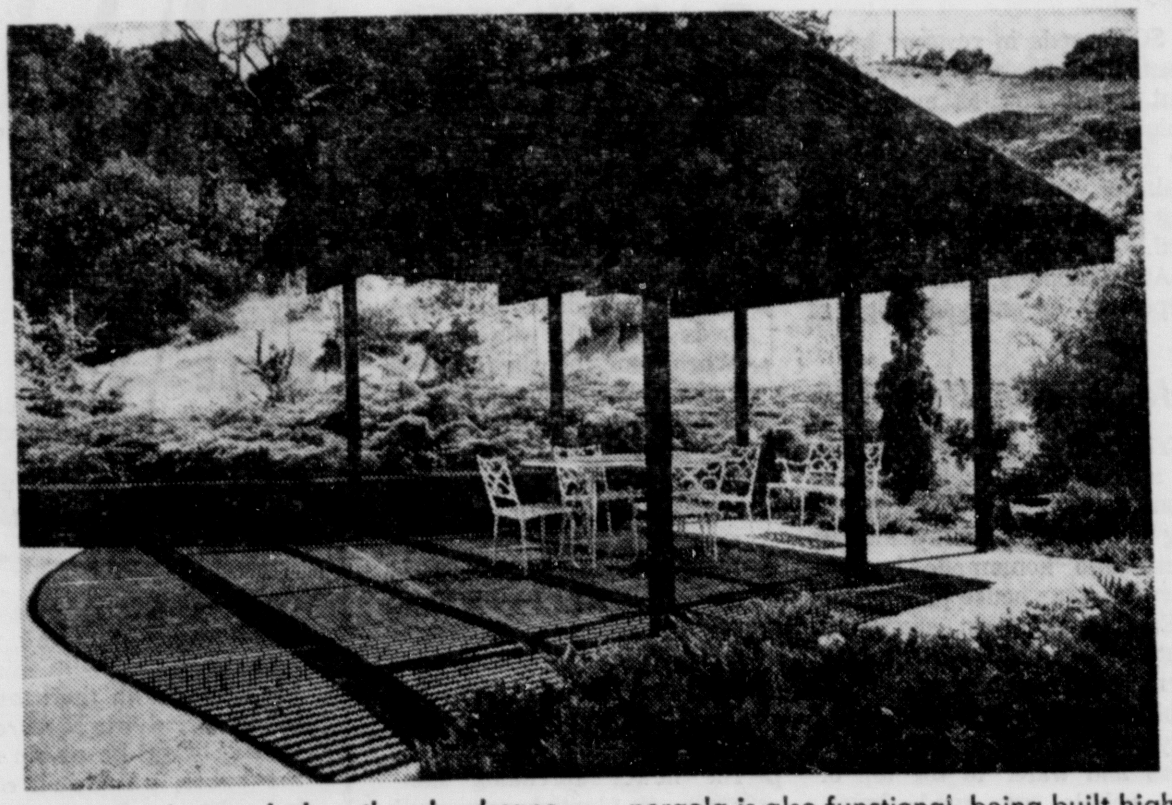

PATTERN of shade from the pool side pergola provides a big attraction in this setting at Sleepy Hollow. The garden is designed for hot weather use, but there is ample space for sunning on the cooler days.

ANTIQUE hitching post on top of the retaining wall gives just the right touch of character to this area of the garden. Daisies provide a year-round plant that keeps upkeep to a minimum.

INVITING LAWN provides a cool approach to the pool area. Border planting detailed by Katy and Paul Steinmetz takes advantage of the alternate shade and sun areas.

PERGOLA designed by the landscape architects has simple lines that avoid taking emphasis from the planting. This pergola is also functionai, being built high enough to allow full circulation of air on hot days.

Curves Cure Patio Puzzle

The shape's the thing. Or so say landscape architects when planning wood decked lounge areas for their clients.

Whether built close to the ground or high in the sky on a hillside lot, an intriguingly shaped deck puts extra zip into outdoor living.

CURRENTLY, the half moon deck is running a great favorite. It looks complex, but is actually simple to build. Framing is essentially the same as for an ordinary rectangle, and the curved shape results simply from sawing off the deck boards to conform to the plotted curve. In this case, deck boards are set at right angles to house walls.

Douglas fir two-by-fours are usually specified for deck boards and may be laid on edge or flat. If laid on edge, over-all strength and stiffness are added to the deck. Spacing between deck boards should be an eighth or quarter inch.

THE CURVED shape is especially good when it's desirable to run a deck the entire length of the house. Here, a standard rectangle can look prosaic, even awkward and ungainly, while a half moon curves gracefully from corner to corner.

A deck built high above the ground needs a safety railing, which can be used to emphasize the curving line of the half moon deck.

It's no problem to build a railing on a half moon deck, but the cap board will need to be nail-laminated of one-inch fir lumber to describe the curve. While building the railing, it's also smart to add a bench along one section and design it to utilize the railing as a backrest.

When built close to the ground, no safety railing is needed for a deck, but benches set along the edges are useful and help ease the deck into the garden beyond. Planter boxes may also be used or combined with low benches.

A winning feature of these wood decks, whether built in a half moon or other interesting geometric shape, is their low upkeep. Smart home owners will install the Douglas fir deck boards without finish of any kind, allowing them to weather naturally to a rich pewter shade. Cleaning can be done with spray from the garden hose.

It's not necessary to use treated lumber unless the deck boards lie within four inches of the ground. However, any framing members in direct contact with the ground should be treated.

Fencing Can Be Happy Job

You don't have to keep putting off the business of planning that new fence, because fence building can be a really pleasurable autumn chore.

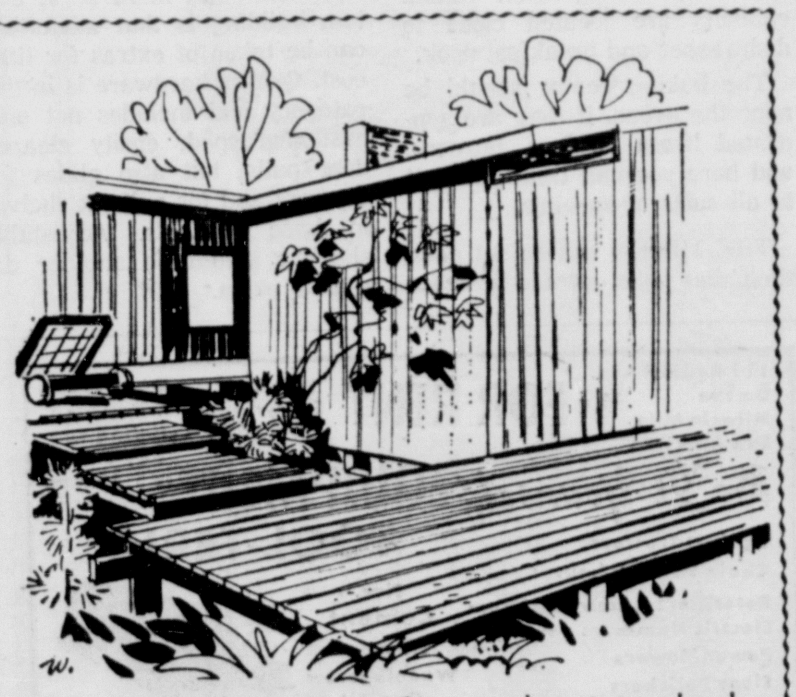

It can be made even easier if you get your hands on one of the most interesting books on the subject called "Fashions in Fences." This booklet can be had free of charge by writing to West Coast Lumbermen's Assn., 1410 S.W. Morrison St., Portland 5, Ore. Ask for the fence booklet.

You will find all the common styles of fences shown with detailed instructions on how to build them. You'll also find some new ideas in fence design which create interesting separators between neighboring properties.

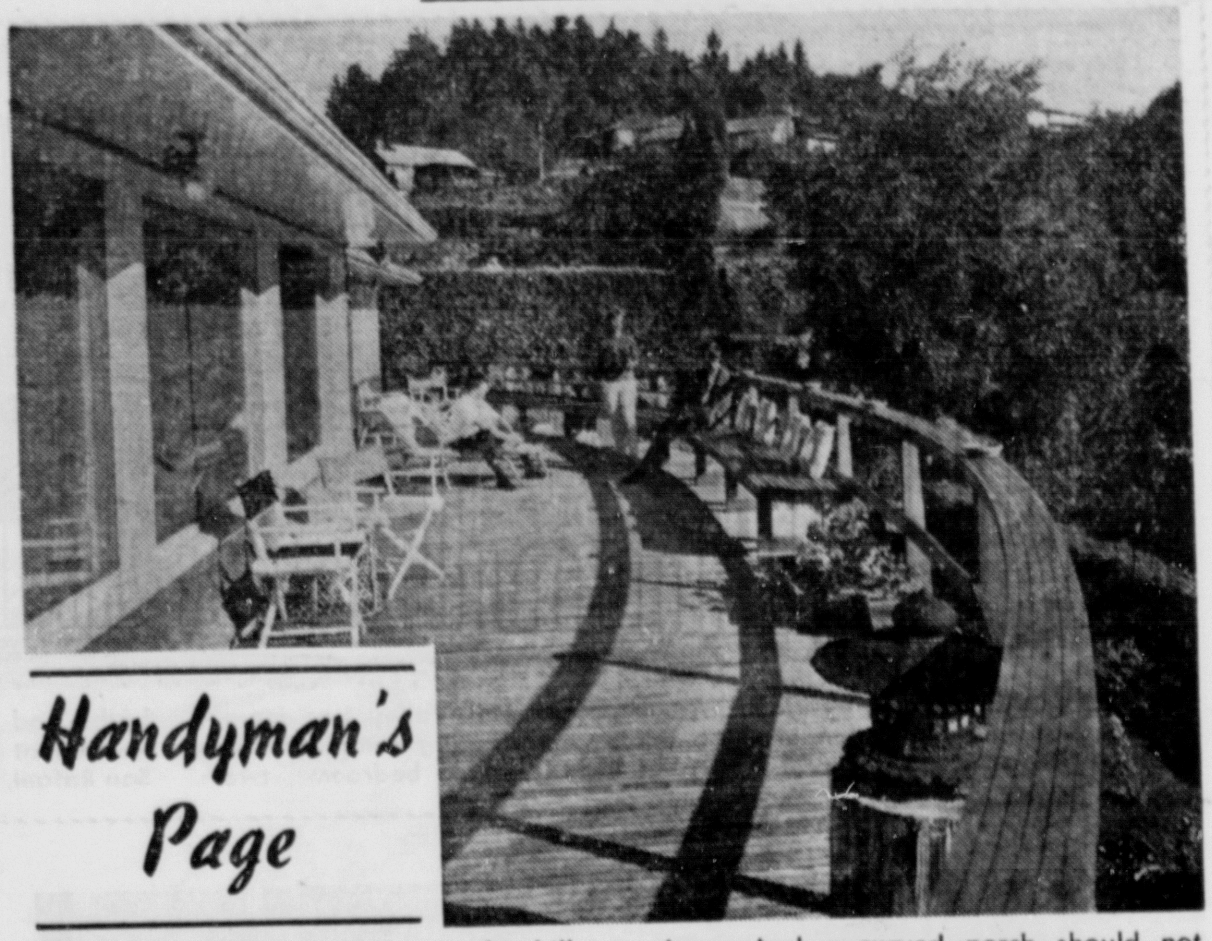

Some Steps To Ease Foam Rubber Cutting

Cutting foam rubber with a scissors will be easier if the blades of the scissors are occasionally dipped in water.

When you are cutting foam rubber in order to put fabric over it, cut the rubber about one-quarter of an inch oversize. When the fabric is put over it, a slightly oversize piece of rubber will fit more snugly.

DECKS on a slope do not have to be at one level. A little ingenuity in design and you can build a stepped deck that can provide outdoor leisure space and an attractive walkway. Simple planting can make the stepped deck a real asset to your garden.

Handyman's Page

A CURVED porch adds charm to this hillside home, giving it much more charm than the often awkward rectangular design. And a curved porch should not frighten the home builder. With good planning it can be a simple job.

THE 'TOO-TALL' LOOK

Horizontals For High House

Does your house have the too-tall look? Does it stand up on the lot like the jolly green giant?

This effect can occur when a two-story house is built in an area mainly populated by ranch-style homes, or just when a big house is built to accommodate a big family. But there is a solution—the introduction of horizontal lines which can do much to cut the house down to eye-pleasing proportions.

The best place to look for potential horizontals is around the front door. Working here, you can not only accomplish your prime objective, but also create an exterior entrance area of importance.

BEGIN BY laying out an area that would correspond to a large porch. It should run about half the front of the house and be slight off-center. Outline, but don't enclose, this area with simply styled low screens and you will have gotten the project well under way.

Only two screens are actually needed. One should lie parallel to the house walls at the front edge of the entrance area. The other can be at right angles and situated at the opposite end from the front door. It is not necessary to join them, and is usually more pleasing to the eye if there is space between, where the walk can come up, then turn over to the door.

THE SCREENS should be crisp but not ordinary. For one good pattern, begin with the standard framework of Douglas fir four-by-four posts and two-by-four stringers. Then set one-by-four-inch fir boards narrow edge out between the stringers. They should be spaced evenly to correspond to the thickness of the exposed edge. An easy way to do it is to use even length pieces of one-by-four as spacer blocks top and bottom.

The pattern can be varied with handsome effect by using one-by-two-inch boards narrow edge out and spaced in the same manner. They should be set between horizontal one-by-twos with a two-by-four used as a finishing cap board and bottom rail.

If the house siding is stained a natural wood tone or one of the new and lovely bronzed greens, it's a good idea to paint the screens the same shade rather than to try to introduce an accent color. For a traditionally styled home, the screens can pick up the trim color successfully.

The project is completed with a front walk that circles up through the entrance area and with appropriate plantings.

Cabin Fever Is Sweeping Land; They Say It's Fun

There's a new kind of cabin fever in America — the kind that a lot of people look forward to catching.

Building publications say that Americans are building more than 100,000 second homes, or cabins, a year and they predict that the figure will grow as industry and leisure time grow.

The second home summer hideaway used to be something only for the very rich. Today thousands of not-so-rich families are enjoying the pleasure and the investment of recreation property.

One of the big reasons for the boom in vacation property, according to American Plywood Assn., is that second homes don't cost as much as they once did. The Association has a brochure showing 18 low-cost cabin designs. To get a copy send a dime to American Plywood Association, 1119 A Street, Tacoma, Wash. 98401 and ask for the second home brochure.

KITCHENS like the one above make the woman of the house feel at home, especially if she has had a hand in designing it. Builders are fast realizing that a standardized kitchen fails to give enough individuality for most homemakers.

Custom Kitchen Can Please The Women By Fitting Her Habits

Women can't be standardized.

Consider that, and you'll see why more and more homemakers insist on custom-designed kitchen cabinets. Given a choice, a gal willingly will sacrifice little luxuries in a house in favor of putting those dollars into a truly workable kitchen.

Custom designing allows for differences of opinion and habit—a most necessary ingredient in the kitchen. A cook's procedures and methods are as personal a matter as her collection of pots and pans, and it's far more sensible to build the kitchen to suit the lady than the other way around.

PERSONAL design also counts high for efficiency. Cabinets can be tailored for their specific contents, saving space—and motion. They can also be placed just where needed to separate the kitchen into time-saving work centers.

Cooking operations go near the range, with needed utensil drawers and condiment shelves. Salad making and general food preparation goes between the sink and refrigerator. China cabinets are located close to dishwasher and breakfast nook.

The baking center should be near the ovens, if they are separated from surface burners, and here you can treat yourself to all sorts of specials.

THE MIXER can be set on a shelf that pulls out and up from base cabinets, locking into position at counter level. You can build in an extra-wide breadboard, flour and sugar dispensers, and give yourself counter space without overhead cabinets.

Equally important, custom design means beauty. The kitchen is a hardwork area, and beauty helps you whistle while you work.

For cabinets, prestige western woods like west coast hemlock can be specified and the finish can be a clear, washable plastic lacquer that captures all the wood's natural beauty while insuring easy upkeep.

WOMEN WHO like to decorate will also appreciate golden hued hemlock for its compatibility with other textures and colors. The wood's fine vertical graining allows a choice of counter and floor materials with as much or as little pattern as desired.

In colors, it combines beautifully with intriguing schemes like pink and charcoal, the blues and blue-greens, and even with butter yellow to orange hues.

A final point in favor of custom building is that advantage can be taken of extras for little cost. Quality hardware is in this category and includes not only easily grasped, easily cleaned door pulls, but also glides for drawers and for pull-out shelves in base cabinets. Adjustable shelving would be another desirable extra.

WHO?? Bellach's

housekeepers
closets once a year!)

Having a clearance compares quite a bit to cleaning a closet. You find a perfectly good dress you haven't worn because the color isn't right . . . a hat that's terribly chic but your husband hates it. We find ourselves in somewhat the same shape . . . a purple sofa that's absolutely gorgeous but we haven't yet found a "purple person" who loves it . . . a bedroom set that is so luxurious that we couldn't resist it even though the price tag said "for millionaires only" (millionaires seem to be good at resisting temptation so we're reducing the bedroom set $609 even though it hurts our pride). The moral of the story is: Our closet is a little crowded . . . or to make a long story short . . .

BELLACH'S IS HAVING AN OCTOBER CLEARANCE OF HOME FURNISHINGS . . . SO IF YOU LOVE BEAUTIFUL THINGS AND A BARGAIN TO BOOT . . .
